TO MY READERS.

NAY, blame me not; I might have spared
Your patience many a trivial verse,
Yet these my earlier welcome shared,
So, let the better shield the worse.

And some might say, "Those ruder songs

Had freshness which the new have lost;

To spring the opening leaf belongs,
The chestnut-burs await the frost."

When those I wrote, my locks were brown,

When these I write—ah, well-a-day!

The autumn thistle's silvery down
Is not the purple bloom of May!

Go, little book, whose pages hold
Those garnered years in loving trust;
How long before your blue and gold
Shall fade and whiten in the dust?

O sexton of the alcoved tomb,
Where souls in leathern cerements lie,
Tell me each living poet's doom!
How long before his book shall die?

It matters little, soon or late,
A day, a month, a year, an age,—
I read oblivion in its date,
And Finis on its title-page.

Before we sighed, our griefs were told;
Before we smiled, our joys were sung;
And all our passions shaped of old
In accents lost to mortal tongue.

In vain a fresher mould we seek,—
Can all the varied phrases tell
That Babel's wandering children speak
How thrushes sing or lilacs smell?

Caged in the poet's lonely heart,
Love wastes unheard its tenderest tone;
The soul that sings must dwell apart,
Its inward melodies unknown.

Deal gently with us, ye who read!
Our largest hope is unfulfilled,—
The promise still outruns the deed,—
The tower, but not the spire, we build.

Our whitest pearl we never find;
Our ripest fruit we never reach;
The flowering moments of the mind
Drop half their petals in our speech.

These are my blossoms; if they wear
One streak of morn or evening's glow,
Accept them; but to me more fair
The buds of song that never blow.

HOLDEN'S POEMS

The title 'HOLDEN'S POEMS' is rendered in a highly decorative, blackletter-style font. The letters are thick and feature intricate scrollwork and flourishes. The text is presented on a horizontal scroll that has a folded, ribbon-like appearance at both ends. The scroll is embellished with various decorative elements: a pair of crossed musical instruments, possibly a lute and a harp, are positioned behind the letters 'O' and 'L' in 'HOLDEN'S'. A laurel wreath with leaves and small flowers is draped across the bottom of the scroll. The entire composition is centered on the page and enclosed within a simple rectangular border.

EARLIER POEMS.

OLD IRONSIDES.

Ay, tear her tattered ensign down !
Long has it waved on high,
And many an eye has danced to see
That banner in the sky ;
Beneath it rung the battle shout,
And burst the cannon's roar ; —
The meteor of the ocean air Shall sweep the clouds no more !

Her deck, once red with heroes' blood,
Where knelt the vanquished foe,
When winds were hurrying o'er the flood,
And waves were white below,
No more shall feel the victor's tread,
Or know the conquered knee ; —
The harpies of the shore shall pluck
The eagle of the sea !

O better that her shattered hulk
Should sink beneath the wave ;
Her thunders shook the mighty deep,
And there should be her grave ;
Nail to the mast her holy flag,
Set every threadbare sail,
And give her to the god of storms,
The lightning and the gale !

THE LAST LEAF.

I SAW him once before,
As he passed by the door,
And again

The pavement stones resound,
As he totters o'er the ground
With his cane.

They say that in his prime,
Ere the pruning-knife of Time
Cut him down,
Not a better man was found
By the Crier on his round
Through the town.

But now he walks the streets,
And he looks at all he meets Sad and wan,
And he shakes his feeble head,
That it seems as if he said,
“ They are gone.”

The mossy marbles rest
On the lips that he has prest
In their bloom,
And the names he loved to hear
Have been carved for many a year
On the tomb.

My grandmamma has said —
Poor old lady, she is dead Long ago —
That he had a Roman nose,
And his cheek was like a rose
In the snow.

But now his nose is thin,
And it rests upon his chin
Like a staff,

And a crook is in his back,
And a melancholy crack
In his laugh.

I know it is a sin
For me to sit and grin
At him here ;
But the old three-cornered hat,
And the breeches, and all that,
Are so queer !

And if I should live to be
The last leaf upon the tree
In the spring,
Let them smile, as I do now,
At the old forsaken bough
Where I cling.

THE CAMBRIDGE CHURCHYARD.

OUR ancient church ! its lowly tower,
Beneath the loftier spire,
Is shadowed when the sunset hour
Clothes the tall shaft in fire ;
It sinks beyond the distant eye,
Long ere the glittering vane,
High wheeling in the western sky,
Has faded o'er the plain.

Like Sentinel and Nun, they keep Their vigil on the green ;
One seems to guard, and one to weep,
The dead that lie between ;
And both roll out, so full and near,
Their music's mingling waves,
They shake the grass, whose pennoned spear
Leans on the narrow graves.

The stranger parts the flaunting weeds,
Whose seeds the winds have strown
So thick beneath the line he reads,
They shade the sculptured stone ;
The child unveils his clustered brow,
And ponders for a while

The graven willow's pendent bough,
Or rudest cherub's smile.

But what to them the dirge, the knell ?
These were the mourner's share ;
The sullen clang, whose heavy swell
Throbbed through the beating air ;
The rattling cord, — the rolling stone, —
The shelving sand that slid,
And, far beneath, with hollow tone,
Rung on the coffin's lid.

The slumberer's mound grows fresh and
green,
Then slowly disappears ;
The mosses creep, the gray stones lean,
Earth hides his date and years ;
But, long before the once-loved name
Is sunk or worn away,
No lip the silent dust may claim,
That pressed the breathing clay.

Go where the ancient pathway guides,
See where our sires laid down Their smiling babes, their cherished brides,
The patriarchs of the town ;
Hast thou a tear for buried love ?
A sigh for transient power ?
All that a century left above,
Go, read it in an hour !

The Indian's shaft, the Briton's ball,
The sabre's thirsting edge,
The hot shell, shattering in its fall,
The bayonet's rending wedge, —
Here scattered death ; yet, seek the spot,
No trace thine eye can see,
No altar, — and they need it not
Who leave their children free !

Look where the turbid rain-drops stand . In many a chiselled square ;
The knightly crest, the shield, the brand
Of honored names were there ; —

“The mossy marbles rest
On the lips that he has prest.”

Alas ! for every tear is dried
 Those blazoned tablets knew,
 Save when the icy marble's side
 Drips with the evening dew.

Or gaze upon yon pillared stone,
 The empty urn of pride ;
 There stand the Goblet and the Sun, —
 What need of more beside ?
 Where lives the memory of the dead,
 Who made their tomb a toy ?
 Whose ashes press that nameless bed ?
 Go, ask the village boy !

Lean o'er the slender western wall,
 Ye ever-roaming girls ;
 The breath that bids the blossom fall
 May lift your floating curls,
 To sweep the simple lines that tell
 An exile's date and doom ;
 And sigh, for where his daughters dwell,
 They wreath the stranger's tomb.

And one amid these shades was born,
 Beneath this turf who lies,
 Once beaming as the summer's morn,
 That closed her gentle eyes ;
 If sinless angels love as we,
 Who stood thy grave beside,
 Three seraph welcomes waited thee,
 The daughter, sister, bride !

I wandered to thy buried mound
 When earth was hid below
 The level of the glaring ground,
 Choked to its gates with snow,
 And when with summer's flowery waves
 The lake of verdure rolled,
 As if a Sultan's white-robed slaves
 Had scattered pearls and gold.

Nay, the soft pinions of the air,
 That lift this trembling tone,
 Its breath of love may almost bear,
 To kiss thy funeral stone ;

And, now thy smiles have passed away,
 For all the joy they gave,
 May sweetest dews and warmest ray Lie on thine early grave !

When damps beneath, and storms above,
 Have bowed these fragile towers,
 Still o'er the graves yon locust-grove
 Shall swing its Orient flowers ;
 And I would ask no mouldering bust,
 If e'er this humble line,
 Which breathed a sigh o'er other's dust,
 Might call a tear on mine.

TO AN INSECT.

I LOVE to hear thine earnest voice, Wherever thou art hid,
 Thon testy little dogmatist,
 Thou pretty Katydid !
 Thou mindest me of gentlefolks, — Old gentlefolks are they, — Thou say'st an undisputed thing
 In such a solemn way.

Thou art a female, Katydid !
 I know it by the trill
 That quivers through thy piercing notes,
 So petulant and shrill ;
 I think there is a knot of you Beneath the hollow tree, —
 A knot of spinster Katydids, —
 Do Katydids drink tea ?

O tell me where did Katy live,
 And what did Katy do ?
 And was she very fair and young,
 And yet so wicked, too ?
 Did Katy love a naughty man,
 Or kiss more cheeks than one ?
 I warrant Katy did no more Than many a Kate has done.

Dear me ! I'll tell you all about My fuss with little Jane,

And Ann, with whom I used to walk
 So often down the lane,
 And all that tore their locks of black,
 Or wet their eyes of blue, — Pray tell me, sweetest Katydid,
 What did poor Katy do ?

Ah no ! the living oak shall crash,
 That stood for ages still,
 The rock shall rend its mossy base
 And thunder down the hill,
 Before the little Katydid Shall add one word, to tell
 The mystic story of the maid
 Whose name she knows so well.

Peace to the ever-murmuring race !
 And when the latest one Shall fold in death her feeble wings
 Beneath the autumn sun,
 Then shall she raise her fainting voice,
 And lift her drooping lid,
 And then the child of future years
 Shall hear what Katy did.

THE DILEMMA.

Now, by the blessed Paphian queen,
 Who heaves the breast of sweet sixteen ;
 By every name I cut on bark Before my morning star grew dark
 By Hymen's torch, by Cupid's dart,
 By all that thrills the beating heart ;
 The bright black eye, the melting blue, —
 I cannot choose between the two.

I had a vision in my dreams ; —
 I saw a row of twenty beams ;
 From every beam a rope was hung,
 In every rope a lover swung ;
 I asked the hue of every eye,
 That bade each luckless lover die ;
 Ten shadowy lips said, heavenly blue,
 And ten accused the darker hue.

I asked a matron which she deemed
 With fairest light of beauty beamed ;
 She answered, some thought both were fair, —

Give her blue eyes and golden hair.
 I might have liked her judgment well,
 But, as she spoke, she rung the bell,
 And all her girls, nor small nor few,
 Came marching in, — their eyes were blue.

I asked a maiden ; back she flung
 The locks that round her forehead hung,
 And turned her eye, a glorious one,
 Bright as a diamond in the sun,
 On me, until beneath its rays
 I felt as if my hair would blaze ;
 She liked all eyes but eyes of green ;
 She looked at me ; what could she mean ?

Ah ! many lids Love lurks between,
 Nor heeds the coloring of his screen ;
 And when his random arrows fly,
 The victim falls, but knows not why.
 Gaze not upon his shield of jet,
 The shaft upon the string is set ;
 Look not beneath his azure veil,
 Though every limb were cased in mail.

Well, both might make a martyr break
 The chain that bound him to the stake ;
 And both, with but a single ray,
 Can melt our very hearts away ;
 And both, when balanced, hardly seem
 To stir the scales, or rock the beam ;
 But that is dearest, all the while,
 That wears for us the sweetest smile.

MY AUNT.

My aunt ! my dear unmarried aunt !
 Long years have o'er her flown ;
 Yet still she strains the aching clasp
 That binds her virgin zone ;
 I know it hurts her, — though she looks
 As cheerful as she can ;

Her waist is ampler than her life,
For life is but a span.

My aunt ! my poor deluded aunt !
Her hair is almost gray ;
Why will she train that winter curl
In such a spring-like way ?
How can she lay her glasses down,
And say she reads as well,
When, through a double convex lens,
She just makes out to spell ?

Her father — grandpapa ! forgive
This erring lip its smiles —
Vowed she should make the finest girl
Within a hundred miles ;
He sent her to a stylish school ;
'T was in her thirteenth June ;
And with her, as the rules required,
“Two towels and a spoon.”

They braced my aunt against a board,
To make her straight and tall ;
They laced her up, they starved her down,
To make her light and small ;
They pinched her feet, they singed her
hair,
They screwed it up with pins ;—
O never mortal suffered more
In penance for her sins.

So, when my precious aunt was done,
My grandsire brought her back ;
(By daylight, lest some rabid youth Might follow on the track ;)
“Ah !” said my grandsire, as he shook
Some powder in his pan, “What could this lovely creature do Against a desperate man !”

Alas ! nor chariot, nor barouche,
Nor bandit cavalcade,
Tore from the trembling father's arms
His all-accomplished maid.

For her how happy had it been !
And Heaven had spared to me
To see one sad, ungathered rose
On my ancestral tree.

REFLECTIONS OF A PROUD PEDESTRIAN.

I SAW the curl of his waving lash,
And the glance of his knowing eye,
And I knew that he thought he was cutting a dash,
As his steed went thundering by.

And he may ride in the rattling gig,
Or flourish the Stanhope gay,
And dream that he looks exceeding big
To the people that walk in the way ;

But he shall think, when the night is still,
On the stable-boy's gathering numbers,
And the ghost of many a veteran bill
Shall hover around his slumbers ;

The ghastly dun shall worry his sleep,
And constables cluster around him,
And he shall creep from the wood-hole deep
Where their spectre eyes have found him !

Ay ! gather your reins, and crack your thong,
And bid your steed go faster ;
He does not know, as he scrambles along,
That he has a fool for his master ;

And hurry away on your lonely ride,
Nor deign from the mire to save me ;
I will paddle it stoutly at your side With the tandem that nature gave me !

DAILY TRIALS.

BY A SENSITIVE MAN.

O, THERE are times
When all this fret and tumult that we hear
Do seem more stale than to the sexton's ear
His own dull chimes.

Ding dong ! ding dong !
The world is in a simmer like a sea
Over a pent volcano, — woe is me
All the day long !

From crib to shroud !
Nurse o'er our cradles screameth lullaby,
And friends in boots tramp round us as we die,
Snuffling aloud.

At morning's call
The small-voiced pug-dog welcomes in
the sun,
And flea-bit mongrels, wakening one by one,
Give answer all.

When evening dim Draws round us, then the lonely caterwaul,
Tart solo, sour duet, and general squall,—
These are our hymn.

Women, with tongues
Like polar needles, ever on the jar ;
Men, plugless word-spouts, whose deep fountains are Within their lungs.

Children, with drums Strapped round them by the fond paternal ass ;
Peripatetics with a blade of grass Between their thumbs.

Vagrants, whose arts
Have caged some devil in their mad machine,
Which grinding, squeaks, with husky groans between,
Come out by starts.

Cockneys that kill Thin horses of a Sunday, — men, with clams, Hoarse as young bisons roaring for their dams
From hill to hill.

Soldiers, with guns,
Making a nuisance of the blessed air, Child-crying bellmen, children in despair,
Screeching for buns.

Storms, thunders, waves !
Howl, crash, and bellow till ye get your fill ;
Yesometimes rest ; men never can be still
But in their graves.

EVENING.

BY A TAILOR.

DAY hath put on his jacket, and around
His burning bosom buttoned it with stars.
Here will I lay me on the velvet grass,
That is like padding to earth's meagre ribs,
And hold communion with the things about me.
Ah me ! how lovely is the golden braid
That binds the skirt of night's descending robe !
The thin leaves, quivering on their silken threads,
Do make a music like to rustling satin,
As the light breezes smooth their downy nap.

Ha! what is this that rises to my touch,
 So like a cushion? Can it be a cabbage?
 It is, it is that deeply injured flower,
 Which boys do flout us with;— but yet
 I love thee,
 Thou giant rose, wrapped in a green surtout.
 Doubtless in Eden thou didst blush as bright
 As these, thy puny brethren; and thy breath
 Sweetened the fragrance of her spicy air;
 But now thou seemest like a bankrupt bean,
 Stripped of his gaudy hues and essences,
 And growing portly in his sober garments.

Is that a swan that rides upon the water?

O no, it is that other gentle bird,
 Which is the patron of our noble calling.
 I well remember, in my early years,
 When these young hands first closed upon a goose;
 I have a scar upon my thimble finger,
 Which chronicles the hour of young ambition.

My father was a tailor, and his father,
 And my sire's grandsire, all of them were tailors;
 They had an ancient goose,— it was an heirloom
 From some remoter tailor of our race.
 It happened I did see it on a time When none was near, and I did deal with it,
 And it did burn me,— O, most fearfully!

It is a joy to straighten out one's limbs,
 And leap elastic from the level counter,
 Leaving the petty grievances of earth,
 The breaking thread, the din of clashing shears,
 And all the needles that do wound the spirit,

For such a pensive hour of soothing silence.
 Kind Nature, shuffling in her loose undress,
 Lays bare her shady bosom;— I can feel With all around me;— I can hail the flowers
 That sprig earth's mantle,— and yon quiet bird,
 That rides the stream, is to me as a brother.
 The vulgar know not all the hidden pockets,
 Where Nature stows away her loveliness.
 But this unnatural posture of the legs
 Cramps my extended calves, and I must go Where I can coil them in their wonted fashion.

THE DORCHESTER GIANT.

THERE was a giant in time of old,
 A mighty one was he;
 He had a wife, but she was a scold,
 So he kept her shut in his mammoth fold;
 And he had children three.

It happened to be an election day,
 And the giants were choosing a king;
 The people were not democrats then,
 They did not talk of the rights of men,
 And all that sort of thing.

Then the giant took his children three,
 And fastened them in the pen;
 The children roared; quoth the giant,
 "Be still!"

And Dorchester Heights and Milton Hill
 Rolled back the sound again.

Then he brought them a pudding stuffed with plums,
 As big as the State-House dome; Quoth he, "There's something for you to eat;

So stop your mouths with your 'lection treat,
And wait till your dad comes home."

So the giant pulled him a chestnut stout,
And whittled the boughs away ;
The boys and their mother set up a shout,
Said he, " You 're in, and you can't get out,
Bellow as loud as you may."

Off he went, and he growled a tune
As he strode the fields along ;
'T is said a buffalo fainted away,
And fell as cold as a lump of clay,
When he heard the giant's song.

But whether the story 's true or not,
It is n't for me to show ;
There 's many a thing that 's twice as queer
In somebody's lectures that we hear,
And those are true, you know.

* * *

What are those lone ones doing now,
The wife and the children sad ?
O, they are in a terrible rout, Screaming, and throwing their pudding about,
Acting as they were mad.

They flung it over to Roxbury hills,
They flung it over the plain,
And all over Milton and Dorchester too Great lumps of pudding the giants threw ;
They tumbled as thick as rain.

Giant and mammoth have passed away,
For ages have floated by ;
The suet is hard as a marrow-bone,
And every plum is turned to a stone,
But there the puddings lie.

And if, some pleasant afternoon,
You 'll ask me out to ride,

The whole of the story I will tell,
And you shall see where the puddings fell,
And pay for the punch beside.

TO THE PORTRAIT OF "A LADY."

IN THE ATHENÆUM GALLERY.

WELL, Miss, I wonder where you live,
I wonder what 's your name,
I wonder how you came to be
In such a stylish frame ;
Perhaps you were a favorite child,
Perhaps an only one ;
Perhaps your friends were not aware
You had your portrait done !

Yet you must be a harmless soul ;
I cannot think that Sin
Would care to throw his loaded dice,
With such a stake to win ;
I cannot think you would provoke
The poet's wicked pen,
Or make young women bite their lips,
Or ruin fine young men.

Pray, did you ever hear, my love,
Of boys that go about,
Who, for a very trifling sum,
Will snip one's picture out ?
I'm not averse to red and white,
But all things have their place,
I think a profile cut in black
Would suit your style of face !

I love sweet features ; I will own
That I should like myself
To see my portrait on a wall,
Or bust upon a shelf ;
But nature sometimes makes one up
Of such sad odds and ends,
It really might be quite as well
Hushed up among one's friends !

THE COMET.

THE Comet ! He is on his way,
 And singing as he flies ;
 The whizzing planets shrink before
 The spectre of the skies ;
 Ah ! well may regal orbs burn blue,
 And satellites turn pale,
 Ten million cubic miles of head,
 Ten billion leagues of tail !

On, on by whistling spheres of light
 He flashes and he flames ;
 He turns not to the left nor right,
 He asks them not their names ;
 One spurn from his demoniac heel, —
 Away, away they fly,
 Where darkness might be bottled up
 And sold for "Tyrian dye."

And what would happen to the land,
 And how would look the sea,
 If in the bearded devil's path
 Our earth should chance to be ?
 Full hot and high the sea would boil,
 Full red the forests gleam ; Methought I saw and heard it all
 In a dyspeptic dream !

I saw a tutor take his tube
 The Comet's course to spy ;
 I heard a scream, — the gathered rays
 Had stewed the tutor's eye ;
 I saw a fort, — the soldiers all
 Were armed with goggles green ;
 Popcracked the guns ! whiz flew the balls !
 Bang went the magazine !

I saw a poet dip a scroll
 Each moment in a tub,
 I read upon the warping back,
 "The Dream of Beelzebub" ;
 He could not see his verses burn,
 Although his brain was fried,
 And ever and anon he bent
 To wet them as they dried.

I saw the scalding pitch roll down
 The crackling, sweating pines,
 And streams of smoke, like water-spouts,
 Burst through the rumbling mines ;
 I asked the firemen why they made Such noise about the town ;
 They answered not, — but all the while
 The brakes went up and down.

I saw a roasting pullet sit Upon a baking egg ;
 I saw a cripple scorch his hand
 Extinguishing his leg ;
 I saw nine geese upon the wing Towards the frozen pole,
 And every mother's gosling fell Crisped to a crackling coal.

I saw the ox that browsed the grass
 Writhe in the blistering rays,
 The herbage in his shrinking jaws
 Was all a fiery blaze ;
 I saw huge fishes, boiled to rags,
 Bob through the bubbling brine ;
 And thoughts of supper crossed my soul ;
 I had been rash at mine.

Strange sights ! strange sounds ! O fearful dream !
 Its memory haunts me still,
 The steaming sea, the crimson glare,
 That wreathed each wooded hill ;
 Stranger ! if through thy reeling brain
 Such midnight visions sweep, Spare, spare, O, spare thine evening meal,
 And sweet shall be thy sleep !

THE MUSIC-GRINDERS.

THERE are three ways in which men take One's money from his purse,
 And very hard it is to tell Which of the three is worse ;
 But all of them are bad enough
 To make a body curse.

You 're riding out some pleasant day,
 And counting up your gains ;
 A fellow jumps from out a bush,
 And takes your horse's reins,
 Another hints some words about
 A bullet in your brains.

It 's hard to meet such pressing friends
 In such a lonely spot ;
 It 's very hard to lose your cash,
 But harder to be shot ;
 And so you take your wallet out,
 Though you would rather not.

Perhaps you 're going out to dine, —
 Some odious creature begs
 You 'll hear about the cannon-ball
 That carried off his pegs,
 And says it is a dreadful thing
 For men to lose their legs.

He tells you of his starving wife,
 His children to be fed,
 Poor little, lovely innocents,
 All clamorous for bread, —
 And so you kindly help to put A bachelor to bed.

You 're sitting on your window-seat,
 Beneath a cloudless moon ;
 You hear a sound, that seems to wear
 The semblance of a tune,
 As if a broken fife should strive
 To drown a cracked bassoon.

And nearer, nearer still, the tide
 Of music seems to come,
 There 's something like a human voice,
 And something like a drum ;
 You sit in speechless agony,
 Until your ear is numb.

Poor "home, sweet home" should seem to be A very dismal place ;

Your "auld acquaintance" all at once
 Is altered in the face ;
 Their discords sting through Burns and Moore,
 Like hedgehogs dressed in lace.

You think they are crusaders, sent
 From some infernal elime,
 To pluck the eyes of Sentiment,
 And dock the tail of Rhyme,
 To crack the voice of Melody,
 And break the legs of Time.

But hark ! the air again is still,
 The music all is ground,
 And silence, like a poultice, comes
 To heal the blows of sound ;
 It cannot be, — it is, — it is, —
 A hat is going round !

No ! Pay the dentist when he leaves
 A fracture in your jaw,
 And pay the owner of the bear
 That stunned you with his paw,
 And buy the lobster that has had Your knuckles in his claw ;

But if you are a portly man,
 Put on your fiercest frown,
 And talk about a constable
 To turn them out of town ;
 Then close your sentence with an oath,
 And shut the window down !

And if you are a slender man,
 Not big enough for that,
 Or, if you cannot make a speech,
 Because you are a flat,
 Go very quietly and drop
 A button in the hat !

THE TREADMILL SONG.

THE stars are rolling in the sky,
 The earth rolls on below,
 And we can feel the rattling wheel Revolving as we go.

Then tread away, my gallant boys,
 And make the axle fly ;
 Why should not wheels go round about,
 Like planets in the sky ?
 Wake up, wake up, my duck-legged man,
 And stir your solid pegs !
 Arouse, arouse, my gawky friend,
 And shake your spider legs ;
 What though you 're awkward at the trade,
 There 's time enough to learn, —
 So lean upon the rail, my lad,
 And take another turn.

They 've built us up a noble wall,
 To keep the vulgar out ;
 We 've nothing in the world to do
 But just to walk about ;
 So faster, now, you middle men,
 And try to beat the ends, —
 It 's pleasant work to ramble round
 Among one's honest friends.

Here, tread upon the long man's toes,
 He sha' n't be lazy here, —
 And punch the little fellow's ribs,
 And tweak that lubber's ear, —
 He 's lost them both, — don't pull his
 hair,
 Because he wears a scratch,
 But poke him in the further eye,
 That is n't in the patch.

Hark ! fellows, there 's the supper-bell,
 And so our work is done ;
 It 's pretty sport, — suppose we take
 A round or two for fun !
 If ever they should turn me out,
 When I have better grown,
 Now hang me, but I mean to have A treadmill of my own !

THE SEPTEMBER GALE.

I'M not a chicken ; I have seen
 Full many a chill September,

And though I was a youngster then,
 That gale I well remember ;
 The day before, my kite-string snapped,
 And I, my kite pursuing,
 The wind whisked off my palm-leaf hat ; —
 For me two storms were brewing !

It came as quarrels sometimes do,
 When married folks get clashing ;
 There was a heavy sigh or two,
 Before the fire was flashing, —
 A little stir among the clouds,
 Before they rent asunder, —
 A little rocking of the trees,
 And then came on the thunder.

Lord ! how the ponds and rivers boiled !
 They seemed like bursting craters !
 And oaks lay scattered on the ground
 As if they were p'taters ;
 And all above was in a howl,
 And all below a clatter, —
 The earth was like a frying-pan,
 Or some such hissing matter.

It chanced to be our washing-day,
 And all our things were drying ;
 The storm came roaring through the lines,
 And set them all a flying ;
 I saw the shirts and petticoats
 Go riding off like witches ;
 I lost, ah ! bitterly I wept, —
 I lost my Sunday breeches !

I saw them straddling through the air,
 Alas ! too late to win them ;
 I saw them chase the clouds, as if The devil had been in them ;
 They were my darlings and my pride,
 My boyhood's only riches, —
 "Farewell, farewell," I faintly cried, —
 "My breeches ! O my breeches !"

That night I saw them in my dreams,
 How changed from what I knew them !
 The dews had steeped their faded threads,
 The winds had whistled through them !
 I saw the wide and ghastly rents
 Where demon claws had torn them ;
 A hole was in their amplest part,
 As if an imp had worn them.

I have had many happy years,
 And tailors kind and clever,
 But those young pantaloons have gone Forever and forever !
 And not till fate has cut the last
 Of all my earthly stitches,
 This aching heart shall cease to mourn
 My loved, my long-lost breeches !

THE HEIGHT OF THE RIDICULOUS.

I WROTE some lines once on a time
 In wondrous merry mood,
 And thought, as usual, men would say
 They were exceeding good.

They were so queer, so very queer,
 I laughed as I would die ;
 Albeit, in the general way,
 A sober man am I.

I called my servant, and he came ;
 How kind it was of him
 To mind a slender man like me,
 He of the mighty limb !

“These to the printer,” I exclaimed,
 And, in my humorous way,
 I added, (as a trifling jest,) “There ’ll be the devil to pay.”

He took the paper, and I watched,
 And saw him peep within ;
 At the first line he read, his face
 Was all upon the grin.

He read the next ; the grin grew broad,
 And shot from ear to ear ;
 He read the third ; a chuckling noise
 I now began to hear.

The fourth ; he broke into a roar ;
 The fifth ; his waistband split ;
 The sixth ; he burst five buttons off,
 And tumbled in a fit.

Ten days and nights, with sleepless eye,
 I watched that wretched man,
 And since, I never dare to write
 As funny as I can.

THE LAST READER.

I SOMETIMES sit beneath a tree,
 And read my own sweet songs ;
 Though naught they may to others be,
 Each humble line prolongs
 A tone that might have passed away,
 But for that scarce remembered lay.

I keep them like a lock or leaf
 That some dear girl has given ;
 Frail record of an hour, as brief
 As sunset clouds in heaven,
 But spreading purple twilight still High over memory’s shadowed hill.

They lie upon my pathway bleak,
 Those flowers that once ran wild,
 As on a father’s careworn cheek
 The ringlets of his child ;
 The golden mingling with the gray,
 And stealing half its snows away.

What care I though the dust is spread Around these yellow leaves,
 Or o’er them his sarcastic thread
 Oblivion’s insect weaves,
 Though weeds are tangled on the stream,
 It still reflects my morning’s beam.

And therefore love I such as smile
 On these neglected songs

“ I sometimes sit beneath a tree.”

Nor deem that flattery's needless wile
 My opening bosom wrongs ;
 For who would trample, at my side,
 A few pale buds, my garden's pride ?

It may be that my scanty ore
 Long years have washed away,
 And where were golden sands before,
 Is naught but common clay ;
 Still something sparkles in the sun
 For memory to look back upon.

And when my name no more is heard,
 My lyre no more is known,
 Still let me, like a winter's bird,
 In silence and alone,
 Fold over them the weary wing
 Once flashing through the dews of spring.

Yes, let my fancy fondly wrap
 My youth in its decline,
 And riot in the rosy lap
 Of thoughts that once were mine,
 And give the worm my little store
 When the last reader reads no more !

POETRY :

A METRICAL ESSAY, READ BEFORE THE Φ B K SOCIETY, HARVARD UNIVER-SITY, AUGUST, 1836.

TO CHARLES WENTWORTH UPHAM, THE FOLLOW-ING METRICAL ESSAY IS AFFECTION-ATELY INSCRIBED.

SCENES of my youth ! awake its slumbering fire !
 Ye winds of Memory, sweep the silent
 lyre !
 Ray of the past, if yet thou canst appear,
 Break through the clouds of Fancy's waning year ;
 Chase from her breast the thin autumnal
 snow,
 If leaf or blossom still is fresh below !
 Long have I wandered ; the returning tide

Brought back an exile to his cradle's side ;
 And as my bark her time-worn flag unrolled,
 To greet the land-breeze with its faded
 fold,
 So, in remembrance of my boyhood's
 time,
 I lift these ensigns of neglected rhyme ;
 O more than blest, that, all my wanderings through,
 My anchor falls where first my pennons flew !

The morning light, which rains its quivering beams Wide o'er the plains, the summits, and the streams,
 In one broad blaze expands its golden glow
 On all that answers to its glance below ;
 Yet, changed on earth, each far reflected ray Braids with fresh hues the shining brow of day ;
 Now, clothed in blushes by the painted
 flowers,
 Tracks on their cheeks the rosy-fingered hours ;
 Now, lost in shades, whose dark entangled leaves Drip at the noontide from their pendent eaves,
 Fades into gloom, or gleams in light again
 From every dew-drop on the jewelled plain.

We, like the leaf, the summit, or the wave,
 Reflect the light our common nature gave,
 But every sunbeam, falling from her
 throne,
 Wears on our hearts some coloring of our own ;
 Chilled in the slave, and burning in the free,

Like the sealed cavern by the sparkling
 sea ;
 Lost, like the lightning in the sullen clod,
 Or shedding radiance, like the smiles of God,
 Pure, pale in Virtue, as the star above,
 Or quivering roseate on the leaves of Love ;
 Glaring like noontide, where it glows upon Ambition's sands, — the desert in the sun ;
 Or soft suffusing o'er the varied scene Life's common coloring, — intellectual green.

Thus Heaven, repeating its material
 plan,
 Arched over all the rainbow mind of man ;
 But he who, blind to universal laws, Sees but effects, unconscious of their cause, —
 Believes each image in itself is bright,
 Not robed in drapery of reflected light, —
 Is like the rustic who, amidst his toil,
 Has found some crystal in his meagre
 soil,
 And, lost in rapture, thinks for him alone
 Earth worked her wonders on the sparkling stone,
 Nor dreams that Nature, with as nice a line, Carved countless angles through the boundless mine.

Thus err the many, who, entranced to find
 Unwonted lustre in some clearer mind, Believe that Genius sets the laws at naught
 Which chain the pinions of our wildest
 thought ;
 Untaught to measure, with the eye of art,

The wandering fancy or the wayward
 heart ;
 Who match the little only with the less,
 And gaze in rapture at its slight excess,
 Proud of a pebble, as the brightest gem Whose light might crown an emperor's diadem.

And, most of all, the pure ethereal
 fire,
 Which seems to radiate from the poet's
 lyre,
 Is to the world a mystery and a charm,
 An Ægis wielded on a mortal's arm, While Reason turns her dazzled eye
 away,
 And bows her sceptre to her subject's sway ;
 And thus the poet, clothed with godlike state,
 Usurped his Maker's title — to create ;
 He, whose thoughts differing not in shape, but dress,
 What others feel, more fitly can express, Sits like the maniac on his fancied
 throne,
 Peeps through the bars, and calls the world his own.

There breathes no being but has some pretence
 To that fine instinct called poetic sense :
 The rudest savage roaming through the wild ;
 The simplest rustic bending o'er his child ;
 The infant listening to the warbling bird ;
 The mother smiling at its half-formed
 word ;
 The boy uncaged, who tracks the fields at large ;
 The girl, turned matron to her babe-like charge ;
 The freeman, casting with unpurchased
 hand

“The slave, who, slumbering on his rusted chain, Dreams of the palm-trees on his burning plain.”

The vote that shakes the turrets of the land ;
The slave, who, slumbering on his rusted
chain,
Dreams of the palm-trees on his burning plain ;
The hot-checked reveller, tossing down
the wine,
To join the chorus pealing "Auld lang syne" ;
The gentle maid, whose azure eye grows dim,
While Heaven is listening to her evening
hymn ;
The jewelled beauty, when her steps draw near
The circling dance and dazzling chandelier ;
E'en trembling age, when Spring's renewing air Waves the thin ringlets of his silvered
hair ; —
All, all are glowing with the inward
flame,
Whose wider halo wreathes the poet's
name,
While, unembalmed, the silent dreamer dies,
His memory passing with his smiles and sighs !

If glorious visions, born for all mankind,
The bright auroras of our twilight mind ;
If fancies, varying as the shapes that lie
Stained on the windows of the sunset
sky ;
If hopes, that beckon with 'delusive gleams,
Till the eye dances in the void of dreams ;
If passions, following with the winds that urge Earth's wildest wanderer to her farthest verge ; —

If these on all some transient hours bestow
Of rapture tingling with its hectic glow, Then all are poets ; and, if earth had rolled
Her myriad centuries, and her doom were told,
Each moaning billow of her shoreless
wave
Would wail its requiem o'er a poet's grave !

If to embody in a breathing word Tones that the spirit trembled when it
heard ;
To fix the image all unveiled and warm,
And carve in language its ethereal form,
So pure, so perfect, that the lines express
No meagre shrinking, no unlaced excess ;
To feel that art, in living truth, has taught Ourselves, reflected in the sculptured
thought ; —
If this alone bestow the right to claim
The deathless garland and the sacred
name ;
Then none are poets, save the saints on high,
Whose harps can murmur all that words deny !

But though to none is granted to reveal,
In perfect semblance, all that each may feel,
As withered flowers recall forgotten love,
So, warmed to life, our faded passions move
In every line, where kindling fancy throws
The gleam of pleasures, or the shade of woes.

When, schooled by time, the stately queen of art

Had smoothed the pathways leading to the heart,
 Assumed her measured tread, her solemn tone,
 And round her courts the clouds of fable thrown,
 The wreaths of heaven descended on her shrine,
 And wondering earth proclaimed the Muse divine.
 Yet, if her votaries had but dared profane
 The mystic symbols of her sacred reign, How had they smiled beneath the veil
 to find
 What slender threads can chain the mighty mind !

Poets, like painters, their machinery
 claim,
 And verse bestows the varnish and the frame ;
 Our grating English, whose Teutonic jar Shakes the racked axle of Art's rattling car,
 Fits like mosaic in the lines that gird
 Fast in its place each many-angled word ;
 From Saxon lips Anacreon's numbers glide,
 As once they melted on the Teian tide,
 And, fresh transfused, the Iliad thrills
 again
 From Albion's cliffs as o'er Achaia's
 plain !
 The proud heroic, with its pulse-like beat,
 Rings like the cymbals clashing as they meet ;
 The sweet Spenserian, gathering as it flows,
 Sweeps gently onward to its dying close,
 Where waves on waves in long succession pour,
 Till the ninth billow melts along the shore ;

The lonely spirit of the mournful lay,
 Which lives immortal as the verse of Gray,
 In sable plumage slowly drifts along,
 On eagle pinion, through the air of
 song ;
 The glittering lyric bounds elastic by,
 With flashing ringlets and exulting eye,
 While every image, in her airy whirl, Gleams like a diamond on a dancing girl !

Born with mankind, with man's expanded range
 And varying fates the poet's numbers change ;
 Thus in his history may we hope to find
 Some clearer epochs of the poet's mind,
 As from the cradle of its birth we trace,
 Slow wandering forth, the patriarchal race.

I.

WHEN the green earth, beneath the zephyr's wing,
 Wears on her breast the varnished buds
 of Spring ;
 When the loosed current, as its folds uncoil,
 Slides in the channels of the mellowed
 soil ;
 When the young hyacinth returns to seek
 The air and sunshine with her emerald beak ;
 When the light snowdrops, starting from their cells,
 Hang each pagoda with its silver bells ;
 When the frail willow twines her trailing bow
 With pallid leaves that sweep the soil
 below ;
 When the broad elm, sole empress of the plain,

“ When the green earth, beneath the zephyr’s wing, Wears on her breast the varnished buds of Spring.”

Whose circling shadow speaks a century's reign, Wreathes in the clouds her regal diadem, —
 A forest waving on a single stem ; —
 Then mark the poet ; though to him unknown
 The quaint-mouthed titles, such as scholars own,
 See how his eye in ecstasy pursues
 The steps of Nature tracked in radiant hues ;
 Nay, in thyself, whate'er may be thy fate,
 Pallid with toil, or surfeited with state,
 Mark how thy fancies, with the vernal rose,
 Awake, all sweetness, from their long repose ;
 Then turn to ponder o'er the classic page,
 Traced with the idyls of a greener age,
 And learn the instinct which arose to warm
 Art's earliest essay, and her simplest form.

To themes like these her narrow path confined
 The first-born impulse moving in the mind ;
 In vales unshaken by the trumpet's sound,
 Where peaceful Labor tills his fertile ground,
 The silent changes of the rolling years,
 Marked on the soil, or dialled on the spheres,
 The crested forests and the colored flowers,
 The dewy grottos and the blushing bowers,
 These, and their guardians, who, with liquid names,

Strephons and Chloes, melt in mutual flames,
 Woo the young Muses from their mountain shade,
 To make Arcadias in the lonely glade.

Nor think they visit only with their smiles
 The fabled valleys and Elysian isles ;
 He who is wearied of his village plain
 May roam the Edens of the world in vain.
 'T is not the star-crowned cliff, the cataract's flow,
 The softer foliage, or the greener glow,
 The lake of sapphire, or the spar-hung cave,
 The brighter sunset, or the broader wave,
 Can warm his heart whom every wind has blown
 To every shore, forgetful of his own.

Home of our childhood ! how affection clings
 And hovers round thee with her seraph wings !
 Dearer thy hills, though clad in autumn brown,
 Than fairest summits which the cedars crown !
 Sweeter the fragrance of thy summer breeze
 Than all Arabia breathes along the seas !
 The stranger's gale wafts home the exile's sigh,
 For the heart's temple is its own blue sky !

O happiest they, whose early love unchanged,
 Hopes undissolved, and friendship unestranged,
 Tired of their wanderings, still can deign to see
 Love, hopes, and friendship, centring all in thee !

And thou, my village! as again I tread
 Amidst thy living, and above thy dead;
 Though some fair playmates guard with chaster fears
 Their cheeks, grown holy with the lapse of years;
 Though with the dust some reverend locks may blend,
 Where life's last mile-stone marks the journey's end;
 On every bud the changing year recalls,
 The brightening glance of morning memory falls,
 Still following onward as the months unclose
 The balmy lilac or the bridal rose;
 And still shall follow, till they sink once more
 Beneath the snow-drifts of the frozen shore,
 As when my bark, long tossing in the gale,
 Furled in her port her tempest-rended sail!

What shall I give thee? Can a simple lay,
 Flung on thy bosom like a girl's bouquet,
 Do more than deck thee for an idle hour,
 Then fall unheeded, fading like the flower?
 Yet, when I trod, with footsteps wild and free,
 The crackling leaves beneath yon linden-tree,
 Panting from play, or dripping from the stream,
 How bright the visions of my boyish dream!
 Or, modest Charles, along thy broken edge,
 Black with soft ooze and fringed with arrowy sedge,

As once I wandered in the morning sun,
 With reeking sandal and superfluous gun;
 How oft, as Fancy whispered in the gale,
 Thou wast the Avon of her flattering tale!
 Ye hills, whose foliage, fretted on the skies,
 Prints shadowy arches on their evening dyes,
 How should my song with holiest charm invest
 Each dark ravine and forest-lifting crest!
 How clothe in beauty each familiar scene,
 Till all was classic on my native green!

As the drained fountain, filled with autumn leaves,
 The field swept naked of its garnered sheaves;
 So wastes at noon the promise of our dawn,
 The springs all choking, and the harvest gone.

Yet hear the lay of one whose natal star
 Still seemed the brightest when it shone afar;
 Whose cheek, grown pallid with ungracious toil,
 Glows in the welcome of his parent soil;
 And ask no garlands sought beyond the tide,
 But take the leaflets gathered at your side.¹

II.

BUT times were changed; the torch of terror came,
 To light the summits with the beacon's flame;
 The streams ran crimson, the tall mountain pines
 Rose a new forest o'er embattled lines;

The bloodless sickle lent the warrior's steel,
 The harvest bowed beneath his chariot
 wheel ;
 Where late the wood-dove sheltered her repose
 The raven waited for the conflict's close ;
 The cuirassed sentry walked his sleepless round
 Where Daphne smiled or Amaryllis frowned ;
 Where timid minstrels sung their blushing charms,
 Some wild Tyrtæus called aloud, "To arms !"

When Glory wakes, when fiery spirits leap,
 Roused by her accents from their tranquil sleep,
 The ray that flashes from the soldier's crest
 Lights, as it glances, in the poet's
 breast ; —
 Not in pale dreamers, whose fantastic lay Toys with smooth trifles like a child at play,
 But men, who act the passions they inspire,
 Who wave the sabre as they sweep the
 lyre !

Ye mild enthusiasts, whose pacific frowns
 Are lost like dew-drops caught in burning towns,
 Pluck as ye will the radiant plumes of
 fame,
 Break Cæsar's bust to make yourselves
 a name ;
 But, if your country bares the avenger's blade
 For wrongs unpunished, or for debts unpaid,

When the roused nation bids her armies form,
 And screams her eagle through the gathering storm,
 When from your ports the bannered frigate rides,
 Her black bows scowling to the crested tides,
 Your hour has past ; in vain your feeble
 cry,
 As the babe's wailings to the thundering
 sky !

Scourge of mankind ! with all the dread array
 That wraps in wrath thy desolating way,
 As the wild tempest wakes the slumbering sea,
 Thou only teachest all that man can be.
 Alike thy tocsin has the power to charm
 The toil-knit sinews of the rustic's arm,
 Or swell the pulses in the poet's veins,
 And bid the nations tremble at his strains.

The city slept beneath the moonbeam's
 glance,
 Her white walls gleaming through the vines of France,
 And all was hushed, save where the footsteps fell,
 On some high tower, of midnight sentinel.
 But one still watched ; no self-encircled woes
 Chased from his lids the angel of repose ;
 He watched, he wept, for thoughts of bitter years
 Bowed his dark lashes, wet with burning tears :
 His country's sufferings and her children's shame
 Streamed o'er his memory like a forest's
 flame,

Each treasured insult, each remembered wrong,
 Rolled through his heart and kindled into song :
 His taper faded ; and the morning gales Swept through the world the war-song of Marseilles !

Now, while around the smiles of Peace expand,
 And Plenty's wreaths festoon the laughing land ;
 While France ships outward her reluctant ore,
 And half our navy basks upon the shore ;
 From ruder themes our meek-eyed Muses turn
 To crown with roses their enamelled urn.

If e'er again return those awful days Whose clouds were crimsoned with the beacon's blaze,
 Whose grass was trampled by the soldier's heel, Whose tides were reddened round the rushing keel,
 God grant some lyre may wake a nobler strain
 To rend the silence of our tented plain !
 When Gallia's flag its triple fold displays,
 Her marshalled legions peal the Marseillaise ;
 When round the German close the war-clouds dim,
 Far through their shadows floats his battle-hymn ;
 When, crowned with joy, the camps of England ring,
 A thousand voices shout, " God save the King !"
 When victory follows with our eagle's
 glance,
 Our nation's anthem pipes a country dance !

Some prouder Muse, when comes the hour at last,
 May shake our hillsides with her bugle-
 blast ;
 Not ours the task ; but since the lyric dress
 Relieves the statelier with its sprightliness,
 Hear an old song, which some, perchance, have seen
 In stale gazette, or cobwebbed magazine.
 There was an hour when patriots dared profane
 The mast that Britain strove to bow in vain ;
 And one, who listened to the tale of shame,
 Whose heart still answered to that sacred name,
 Whose eye still followed o'er his country's tides
 Thy glorious flag, our brave Old Ironsides !
 From yon lone attic, on a summer's morn, Thus mocked the spoilers with his school-boy scorn.¹

III.

WHEN florid Peace resumed her golden
 reign,
 And arts revived, and valleys bloomed
 again ;
 While War still panted on his broken
 blade,
 Once more the Muse her heavenly wing essayed.
 Rude was the song ; some ballad, stern and wild,
 Lulled the light slumbers of the soldier's child ;
 Or young romancer, with his threatening

And fearful fables of his bloodless lance,
Scared the soft fancy of the clinging girls,
Whose snowy fingers smoothed his raven curls.

But when long years the stately form had bent,

And faithless memory her illusions lent,
So vast the outlines of Tradition grew,
That History wondered at the shapes she drew,

And veiled at length their too ambitious hues

Beneath the pinions of the Epic Muse.

Far swept her wing ; for stormier days had brought

With darker passions deeper tides of
thought.

The camp's harsh tumult and the conflict's glow,

The thrill of triumph and the gasp of woe,
The tender parting and the glad return,
The festal banquet and the funeral urn,—

And all the drama which at once uprears
Its spectral shadows through the clash of spears,

From camp and field to echoing verse transferred,

Swelled the proud song that listening nations heard.

Why floats the amaranth in eternal bloom

O'er Ilium's turrets and Achilles' tomb ?
Why lingers fancy, where the sunbeams smile

On Circe's gardens and Calypso's isle ?
Why follows memory to the gate of Troy

Her plumed defender and his trembling boy ?

Lo! the blind dreamer, kneeling on the sand,

To trace these records with his doubtful
hand ;

In fabled tones his own emotion flows,
And other lips repeat his silent woes ;
In Hector's infant see the babes that shun

Those deathlike eyes, unconscious of the
sun,

Or in his hero hear himself implore,
"Give me to see, and Ajax asks no more !"

Thus live undying through the lapse of time

The solemn legends of the warrior's clime ;

Like Egypt's pyramid, or Pæstum's fane,
They stand the heralds of the voiceless
plain ;

Yet not like them, for Time, by slow degrees,

Saps the gray stone, and wears the embroided frieze,

And Isis sleeps beneath her subject Nile,

And crumbled Neptune strews his Dorian pile ;

But Art's fair fabric, strengthening as it rears

Its laurelled columns through the mist of years,

As the blue arches of the bending skies
Still gird the torrent, following as it flies,

Spreads, with the surges bearing on mankind,

Its starred pavilion o'er the tides of mind !

In vain the patriot asks some lofty lay
To dress in state our wars of yesterday.

The classic days, those mothers of romance,

That roused a nation for a woman's
glance ;

The age of mystery with its hoarded
power,

That girt the tyrant in his storied tower,
Have past and faded like a dream of youth,
And riper eras ask for history's truth.

On other shores, above their mouldering towns,
In sullen pomp the tall cathedral frowns, Pride in its aisles, and paupers at the door,
Which feeds the beggars whom it fleeced of yore.

Simple and frail, our lowly temples throw

Their slender shadows on the paths
below ;

Scarce steal the winds, that sweep his woodland tracks,

The larch's perfume from the settler's axe,

Ere, like a vision of the morning air,
His slight-framed steeple marks the house of prayer ;

Its planks all reeking, and its paint undried,

Its rafters sprouting on the shady side,
It sheds the raindrops from its shingled
eaves,

Ere its green brothers once have changed their leaves.

Yet Faith's pure hymn, beneath its shelter rude,

Breathes out as sweetly to the tangled wood,

As where the rays through pictured glories pour

On marble shaft and tessellated floor ;— Heaven asks no surplice round the heart that feels,

And all is holy where devotion kneels.

Thus on the soil the patriot's knee should bend,

Which holds the dust once living to defend ;

Where'er the hireling shrinks before
the free,

Each pass becomes " a new Thermopy-læ " !

Where'er the battles of the brave are won,

There every mountain " looks on Marathon " !

Our fathers live ; they guard in glory
still

The grass-grown bastions of the fortressed hill ;

Still ring the echoes of the trampled gorge,
With God and Freedom ! England and Saint George !

The royal cipher on the captured gun Mocks the sharp night-dews and the blistering sun ;

The red-cross banner shades its captor's bust,

Its folds still loaded with the conflict's dust ;

The drum, suspended by its tattered
marge,

Once rolled and rattled to the Hessian's
charge ;

The stars have floated from Britannia's mast,

The redecoat's trumpets blown the rebel's
blast.

Point to the summits where the brave have bled,

Where every village claims its glorious
dead ;

Say, when their bosoms met the bayonet's shock,

Their only corselet was the rustic frock ;
Say, when they mustered to the gathering horn,

The titled chieftain curled his lip in scorn,

Yet, when their leader bade his lines advance,

“ In sullen pomp the tall cathedral frowns.”

No musket wavered in the lion's glance ;
 Say, when they fainted in the forced retreat,
 They tracked the snow-drifts with their bleeding feet,
 Yet still their banners, tossing in the blast,
 Bore Ever Ready, faithful to the last,
 Through storm and battle, till they waved again
 On Yorktown's hills and Saratoga's
 plain !

Then, if so fierce the insatiate pa-triot's flame,
 Truth looks too pale, and history seems too tame,
 Bid him await some new Columbiad's
 page,
 To gild the tablets of an iron age,
 And save his tears, which yet may fall
 upon
 Some fabled field, some fancied Washington !

IV.

BUT once again, from their Æolian
 cave,
 The winds of Genius wandered on the wave.
 Tired of the scenes the timid pencil drew,
 Sick of the notes the sounding clarion
 blew ;
 Sated with heroes who had worn so long
 The shadowy plumage of historic song ;
 The new-born poet left the beaten course,
 To track the passions to their living source.

Then rose the Drama ;—and the world admired
 Her varied page with deeper thought inspired ;

Bound to no clime, for Passion's throb is one
 In Greenland's twilight or in India's
 sun ;
 Born for no age, — for all the thoughts that roll
 In the dark vortex of the stormy soul, Unchained in song, no freezing years
 can tame ;
 God gave them birth, and man is still the same.

So full on life her magic mirror shone,
 Her sister Arts paid tribute to her
 throne ;
 One reared her temple, one her canvas warned,
 And Music thrilled, while Eloquence informed.
 The weary rustic left his stinted task For smiles and tears, the dagger and the mask ;
 The sage, turned scholar, half forgot his lore,
 To be the woman he despised before ;
 O'er sense and thought she threw her golden chain,
 And Time, the anarch, spares her deathless reign.

Thus lives Medea, in our tamer age,
 As when her buskin pressed the Grecian stage ;
 Not in the cells where frigid learning delves
 In Aldine folios mouldering on their shelves ;
 But breathing, burning in the glittering throng,
 Whose thousand bravoës roll untired
 along,
 Circling and spreading through the gilded halls,
 From London's galleries to San Carlo's
 walls !

Thus shall he live whose more than mortal name
 Mocks with its ray the pallid torch of Fame ;
 So proudly lifted, that it seems afar
 No earthly Pharos, but a heavenly star ;
 Who, unconfined to Art's diurnal
 bound,
 Girds her whole zodiac in his flaming
 round,
 And leads the passions, like the orb that guides,
 From pole to pole, the palpitating tides !

V.

THOUGH round the Muse the robe of song is thrown,
 Think not the poet lives in verse alone.
 Long ere the chisel of the sculptor
 taught
 The lifeless stone to mock the living
 thought ;
 Long ere the painter bade the canvas glow
 With every line the forms of beauty
 know ;
 Long ere the iris of the Muses threw
 On every leaf its own celestial hue ;
 In fable's dress the breath of genius poured,
 And warmed the shapes that later times adored.

Untaught by Science how to forge the keys,
 That loose the gates of Nature's mysteries ;
 Unschooled by Faith, who, with her angel tread,
 Leads through the labyrinth with a single thread,
 His fancy, hovering round her guarded
 tower,
 Rained through its bars like Danae's golden shower.

He spoke ; the sea-nymph answered from her cave :
 He called ; the naiad left her mountain
 wave :
 He dreamed of beauty ; lo, amidst his
 dream,
 Narcissus, mirrored in the breathless
 stream ;
 And night's chaste empress, in her bridal play,
 Laughed through the foliage where Endymion lay ;
 And ocean dimpled, as the languid swell
 Kissed the red lip of Cytherea's shell :
 Of power, — Bellona swept the crimson
 field,
 And blue-eyed Pallas shook her Gor-gon shield ;
 O'er the hushed waves their mightier monarch drove,
 And Ida trembled to the tread of Jove !

So every grace that plastic language knows
 To nameless poets its perfection owes.
 The rough-hewn words to simplest thoughts confined Were cut and polished in their nicer
 mind ;
 Caught on their edge, imagination's ray Splits into rainbows, shooting far away ; —
 From sense to soul, from soul to sense, it flies,
 And through all nature links analogies ;
 He who reads right will rarely look upon
 A better poet than his lexicon !

There is a race, which cold, ungenial
 skies
 Breed from decay, as fungous growths arise ;
 Though dying fast, yet springing fast
 again,

Which still usurps an unsubstantial
 reign,
 With frames too languid for the charms of sense,
 And minds worn down with action too intense ;
 Tired of a world whose joys they never knew,
 Themselves deceived, yet thinking all untrue ;
 Scarce men without, and less than girls within,
 Sick of their life before its cares begin ; —
 The dull disease, which drains their feeble hearts,
 To life's decay some hectic thrills imparts,
 And lends a force, which, like the maniac's power,
 Pays with blank years the frenzy of an hour.

And this is Genius ! Say, does Heaven degrade
 The manly frame, for health, for action made ?
 Break down the sinews, rack the brow with pains,
 Blanch the bright cheek, and drain the purple veins,
 To clothe the mind with more extended
 sway,
 Thus faintly struggling in degenerate clay ?

No ! gentle maid, too ready to admire,
 Though false its notes, the pale enthusiast's lyre ;
 If this be genius, though its bitter springs Glowed like the morn beneath Aurora's
 wings,
 Seek not the source whose sullen bosom feeds

But fruitless flowers, and dark, envenomed weeds.

But, if so bright the dear illusion seems,
 Thou wouldst be partner of thy poet's dreams,
 And hang in rapture on his bloodless charms,
 Or die, like Raphael, in his angel arms ;
 Go, and enjoy thy blessed lot, — to share
 In Cowper's gloom, or Chatterton's despair !

Not such were they, whom, wandering o'er the waves,
 I looked to meet, but only found their graves ;
 If friendship's smile, the better part of
 fame,
 Should lend my song the only wreath I
 claim,
 Whose voice would greet me with a sweeter tone,
 Whose living hand more kindly press
 my own,
 Than theirs, — could Memory, as her silent tread Prints the pale flowers that blossom o'er the dead,
 Those breathless lips, now closed in peace, restore,
 Or wake those pulses hushed to beat no
 more ?

Thou calm, chaste scholar ! I can see thee now,
 The first young laurels on thy pallid brow,
 O'er thy slight figure floating lightly
 down
 In graceful folds the academic gown,
 On thy curled lip the classic lines, that taught

How nice the mind that sculptured them with thought,
 And triumph glistening in the clear blue eye,
 Too bright to live,— but O, too fair to die !

And thou, dear friend, whom Science still deplores,
 And love still mourns, on ocean-severed shores,
 Though the bleak forest twice has bowed with snow,
 Since thou wast laid its budding leaves
 below,
 Thine image mingles with my closing
 strain,
 As when we wandered by the turbid Seine,
 Both blest with hopes, which revelled, bright and free,
 On all we longed, or all we dreamed to
 be ;
 To thee the amaranth and the cypress fell,—
 And I was spared to-breathe this last farewell !

But lived there one in unremembered days,
 Or lives there still, who spurns the poet's bays,
 Whose fingers, dewy from Castalia's springs,
 Rest on the lyre, yet scorn to touch the strings ?
 Who shakes the senate with the silver
 tone
 The groves of Pindus might have sighed to own ?

Have such e'er been ? Remember Canning's name !
 Do such still live ? Let "Alaric's Dirge" proclaim !

Immortal Art ! where'er the rounded
 sky
 Bends o'er the cradle where thy children
 lie,
 Their home is earth, their herald every tongue
 Whose accents echo to the voice that sung.
 One leap of Ocean scatters on the sand
 The quarried bulwarks of the loosening
 land ;
 One thrill of earth dissolves a century's toil Strewed like the leaves that vanish in the soil ;
 One hill o'erflows, and cities sink below,
 Their marbles splintering in the lava's
 glow ;
 But one sweet tone, scarce whispered to the air,
 From shore to shore the blasts of ages
 bear ;
 One humble name, which oft, perchance, has borne
 The tyrant's mockery and the courtier's
 scorn,
 Towers o'er the dust of earth's forgotten
 graves,
 As once, emerging through the waste of waves,
 The rocky Titan, round whose shattered spear
 Coiled the last whirlpool of the drowning sphere !

1837-1848.

THE PILGRIM'S VISION.

IN the hour of twilight shadows
The Pilgrim sire looked out ;
He thought of the "bloody Salvages"
That lurked all round about,
Of Wituwamet's pictured knife
And Pecksuot's whooping shout ;
For the baby's limbs were feeble,
Though his father's arms were stout.

His home was a freezing cabin,
Too bare for the hungry rat,
Its roof was thatched with ragged grass,
And bald enough of that ;
The hole that served for casement
Was glazed with an ancient hat ;
And the ice was gently thawing
From the log whereon he sat.

Along the dreary landscape
His eyes went to and fro,
The trees all clad in icicles,
The streams that did not flow ;
A sudden thought flashed o'er him, —
A dream of long ago, —
He smote his leathern jerkin,
And murmured, "Even so !"

"Come hither, God-be-Glorified,
And sit upon my knee,
Behold the dream unfolding,
Whereof I spake to thee

By the winter's hearth in Leyden
And on the stormy sea ;
True is the dream's beginning, — So may its ending be !

"I saw in the naked forest
Our scattered remnant cast,
A screen of shivering branches
Between them and the blast ;
The snow was falling round them,
The dying fell as fast ;
I looked to see them perish,
When lo, the vision passed.

"Again mine eyes were opened ; —
The feeble had waxed strong,
The babes had grown to sturdy men,
The remnant was a throng ;
By shadowed lake and winding stream,
And all the shores along,
The howling demons quaked to hear
The Christian's godly song.

"They slept, — the village fathers, —
By river, lake, and shore,
When far adown the steep of Time
The vision rose once more ;
I saw along the winter snow
A spectral column pour,
And high above their broken ranks
A tattered flag they bore.

"Their Leader rode before them,
Of bearing calm and high,

The light of Heaven's own kindling Throned in his awful eye ;
 These were a Nation's champions
 Her dread appeal to try ;
 God for the right ! I faltered,
 And lo, the train passed by.

"Once more ; — the strife is ended,
 The solemn issue tried,
 The Lord of Hosts, his mighty arm
 Has helped our Israel's side ;
 Gray stone and grassy hillock
 Tell where our martyrs died,
 But peaceful smiles the harvest,
 And stainless flows the tide.

"A crash, — as when some swollen cloud Cracks o'er the tangled trees !
 With side to side, and spar to spar,
 Whose smoking decks are these ?
 I know Saint George's blood-red cross,
 Thou Mistress of the Seas, —
 But what is she, whose streaming bars Roll out before the breeze ?

"Ah, well her iron ribs are knit,
 Whose thunders strive to quell
 The bellowing throats, the blazing lips,
 That pealed the Armada's knell !
 The mist was cleared, — a wreath of stars
 Rose o'er the crimsoned swell,
 And, wavering from its haughty peak,
 The cross of England fell !

"O trembling Faith ! though dark the morn,
 A heavenly torch is thine ;
 While feebler races melt away,
 And paler orbs decline,
 Still shall the fiery pillar's ray,
 Along thy pathway shine,
 To light the chosen tribe that sought
 This Western Palestine !

"I see the living tide roll on ;
 It crowns with flaming towers
 The icy capes of Labrador,
 The Spaniard's 'land of flowers' !
 It streams beyond the splintered ridge
 That parts the Northern showers ;
 From eastern rock to sunset wave
 The Continent is ours !"

He ceased, — the grim old soldier-saint, —
 Then softly bent to cheer
 The pilgrim-child, whose wasting face
 Was meekly turned to hear ;
 And drew his toil-worn sleeve across,
 To brush the manly tear
 From cheeks that never changed in woe,
 And never blanched in fear.

The weary pilgrim slumbers,
 His resting-place unknown ;
 His hands were crossed, his lids were closed,
 The dust was o'er him strown ;
 The drifting soil, the mouldering leaf,
 Along the sod were blown ;
 His mound has melted into earth,
 His memory lives alone.

So let it live unfading,
 The memory of the dead,
 Long as the pale anemone
 Springs where their tears were shed,
 Or, raining in the summer's wind
 In flakes of burning red,
 The wild rose sprinkles with its leaves
 The turf where once they bled !

Yea, when the frowning bulwarks
 That guard this holy strand
 Have sunk beneath the trampling surge
 In beds of sparkling sand,
 While in the waste of ocean
 One hoary rock shall stand,
 Be this its latest legend, —
 HERE WAS THE PILGRIM'S LAND !

“With clashing wheel, and lifting keel,
And smoking torch on high.”

THE STEAMBOAT.

SEE how you flaming herald treads
 The ridged and rolling waves,
 As, crashing o'er their crested heads,
 She bows her surly slaves !
 With foam before and fire behind,
 She rends the clinging sea,
 That flies before the roaring wind,
 Beneath her hissing lee.

The morning spray, like sea-born flowers,
 With heaped and glistening bells, Falls round her fast, in ringing showers,

With every wave that swells ;
 And, burning o'er the midnight deep,
 In lurid fringes thrown,
 The living gems of ocean sweep
 Along her flashing zone.

With clashing wheel, and lifting keel,
 And smoking torch on high,
 When winds are loud, and billows reel,
 She thunders foaming by ;
 When seas are silent and serene,
 With even beam she glides,
 The sunshine glimmering through the
 green
 That skirts her gleaming sides.

Now, like a wild nymph, far apart
 She veils her shadowy form,
 The beating of her restless heart
 Still sounding through the storm ;
 Now answers, like a courtly dame,
 The reddening surges o'er,
 With flying scarf of spangled flame,
 The Pharos of the shore.

To-night yon pilot shall not sleep,
 Who trims his narrowed sail ;
 To-night yon frigate scarce shall keep Her broad breast to the gale ;

And many a foresail, scooped and strained,
 Shall break from yard and stay,
 Before this smoky wreath has stained
 The rising mist of day.

Hark ! hark ! I hear you whistling shroud,
 I see you quivering mast ;
 The black throat of the hunted cloud
 Is panting forth the blast !
 An hour, and, whirled like winnowing chaff,
 The giant surge shall fling
 His tresses o'er yon pennon staff,
 White as the sea-bird's wing !

Yet rest, ye wanderers of the deep ;
 Nor wind nor wave shall tire
 Those fleshless arms, whose pulses leap
 With floods of living fire ;
 Sleep on,—and, when the morning light
 Streams o'er the shining bay,
 O think of those for whom the night
 Shall never wake in day !

LEXINGTON.

SLOWLY the mist o'er the meadow was creeping,
 Bright on the dewy buds glistened
 the sun,
 When from his couch, while his children were sleeping, Rose the bold rebel and shouldered his gun.
 Waving her golden veil
 Over the silent dale, Blithe looked the morning on cottage and spire ;
 Hushed was his parting sigh,
 While from his noble eye
 Flashed the last sparkle of liberty's fire.

On the smooth green where the fresh leaf is springing

Calmly the first-born of glory have met ;

Hark ! the death-volley around them is ringing !

Look ! with their life-blood the young grass is wet !

Faint is the feeble breath,

Murmuring low in death,

“Tell to our sons how their fathers have died” ;

Nerveless the iron hand,

Raised for its native land,

Lies by the weapon that gleams at its side.

Over the hillsides the wild knell is tolling,

From their far hamlets the yeomanry come ;

As through the storm-clouds the thunder-burst rolling,

Circles the beat of the mustering drum.

Fast on the soldier's path

Darken the waves of wrath,

Long have they gathered and loud shall they fall ;

Red glares the musket's flash,

Sharp rings the rifle's crash,

Blazing and clanging from thicket and wall.

Gayly the plume of the horseman was dancing,

Never to shadow his cold brow again ;

Proudly at morning the war-steed was prancing,

Reeking and panting he droops on the rein ;

Pale is the lip of scorn,

Voiceless the trumpet horn,

Torn is the silken-fringed red cross on high ;

Many a belted breast

Low on the turf shall rest,

Ere the dark hunters the herd have passed by.

Snow-girdled crags where the hoarse wind is raving,

Rocks where the weary floods murmur and wail,

Wilds where the fern by the furrow is waving,

Reeled with the echoes that rode on the gale ;

Far as the tempest thrills

Over the darkened hills,

Far as the sunshine streams over the plain,

Roused by the tyrant band,

Woke all the mighty land,

Girded for battle, from mountain to main.

Green be the graves where her martyrs are lying !

Shroudless and tombless they sunk to their rest, —

While o'er their ashes the starry fold flying

Wraps the proud eagle they roused from his nest.

Borne on her Northern pine,

Long o'er the foaming brine

Spread her broad banner to storm and to sun ;

Heaven keep her ever free,

Wide as o'er land and sea

Floats the fair emblem her heroes have won !

ON LENDING A PUNCH-BOWL.

THIS ancient silver bowl of mine, it tells of good old times,

Of joyous days, and jolly nights, and merry Christmas chimes ;

They were a free and jovial race, but honest, brave, and true,
That dipped their ladle in the punch when this old bowl was new.

A Spanish galleon brought the bar ; so runs the ancient tale ;
'T was hammered by an Antwerp smith, whose arm was like a flail ;
And now and then between the strokes, for fear his strength should fail,
He wiped his brow, and quaffed a cup of good old Flemish ale.

'T was purchased by an English squire to please his loving dame, Who saw the cherubs, and conceived a longing for the same ;
And oft as on the ancient stock another twig was found,
'T was filled with caudle spiced and hot,
and handed smoking round.

But, changing hands, it reached at length a Puritan divine, Who used to follow Timothy, and take a little wine,
But hated punch and prelacy ; and so it was, perhaps,
He went to Leyden, where he found conventicles and schnaps.

And then, of course, you know what 's next, — it left the Dutchman's shore With those that in the Mayflower came,
— a hundred souls and more, — Along with all the furniture, to fill their new abodes, —
To judge by what is still on hand, at least a hundred loads.

'T was on a dreary winter's eve, the night was closing dim, When brave Miles Standish took the bowl, and filled it to the brim ;

The little Captain stood and stirred the posset with his sword,
And all his sturdy men-at-arms were ranged about the board.

He poured the fiery Hollands in, — the man that never feared, — He took a long and solemn draught, and wiped his yellow beard ;
And one by one the musketeers — the men that fought and prayed — All drank as 't were their mother's milk, and not a man afraid.

That night, affrighted from his nest, the screaming eagle flew,
He heard the Pequot's ringing whoop,
the soldier's wild halloo ;
And there the sachem learned the rule
he taught to kith and kin,
" Run from the white man when you find he smells of Hollands gin ! "

A hundred years, and fifty more, had spread their leaves and snows, A thousand rubs had flattened down each little chernub's nose,
When once again the bowl was filled,
but not in mirth or joy,
'T was mingled by a mother's hand to cheer her parting boy.

Drink, John, she said, 't will do you good, — poor child, you 'll never bear

This working in the dismal trench, out in the midnight air ;
And if — God bless me ! — you were hurt, 't would keep away the chill ;
So John did drink, — and well he wrought that night at Bunker's Hill !

I tell you, there was generous warmth in good old English cheer ;
I tell you, 't was a pleasant thought to bring its symbol here ;

'T is but the fool that loves excess ;
 hast thou a drunken soul ?
 Thy bane is in thy shallow skull, not in my silver bowl !

I love the memory of the past, — its pressed yet fragrant flowers, —
 The moss that clothes its broken walls, — the ivy on its towers ; — Nay, this poor bawble it bequeathed, — my eyes grow moist and dim,
 To think of all the vanished joys that danced around its brim.

Then fill a fair and honest cup, and bear it straight to me ;
 The goblet hallows all it holds, whate'er the liquid be ;
 And may the cherubs on its face protect me from the sin,
 That dooms one to those dreadful words,
 — "My dear, where have you been ?"

A SONG

FOR THE CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION OF HARVARD COLLEGE, 1836.

WHEN the Puritans came over,
 Our hills and swamps to clear,
 The woods were full of catamounts,
 And Indians red as deer,
 With tomahawks and scalping-knives,
 That make folks' heads look queer ; — O the ship from England used to bring A hundred wigs a year !

The crows came cawing through the air
 To pluck the pilgrims' corn,
 The bears came snuffing round the door
 Whene'er a babe was born,
 The rattlesnakes were bigger round
 Than the but of the old ram's horn
 The deacon blew at meeting time
 On every "Sabbath" morn.

But soon they knocked the wigwams
 down,

And pine-tree trunk and limb
 Began to sprout among the leaves
 In shape of steeples slim ;
 And out the little wharves were stretched Along the ocean's rim,
 And up the little school-house shot
 To keep the boys in trim.

And, when at length the College rose,
 The sachem cocked his eye
 At every tutor's meagre ribs Whose coat-tails whistled by :
 But when the Greek and Hebrew words
 Came tumbling from their jaws,
 The copper-colored children all Ran screaming to the squaws.

And who was on the Catalogue
 When college was begun ?
 Two nephews of the President,
 And the Professor's son ; (They turned a little Indian by,
 As brown as any bun ;)
 Lord ! how the seniors knocked about
 The freshman class of one !

They had not then the dainty things
 That commons now afford,
 But succotash and homony
 Were smoking on the board ;
 They did not rattle round in gigs,
 Or dash in long-tail blues,
 But always on Commencement days
 The tutors blacked their shoes.

God bless the ancient Puritans !
 Their lot was hard enough ;
 But honest hearts make iron arms,
 And tender maids are tough ;
 So love and faith have formed and fed
 Our true-born Yankee stuff,
 And keep the kernel in the shell
 The British found so rough !

“The little Captain stood and stirred the posset with his sword.”

THE ISLAND HUNTING-SONG.

No more the summer floweret charms,
 The leaves will soon be sere,
 And Autumn folds his jewelled arms
 Around the dying year ;
 So, ere the waning seasons claim
 Our leafless groves awhile,
 With golden wine and glowing flame
 We 'll crown our lonely isle.

Once more the merry voices sound
 Within the antlered hall,
 And long and loud the baying hounds
 Return the hunter's call ;
 And through the woods, and o'er the hill,
 And far along the bay,
 The driver's horn is sounding shrill, —
 Up, sportsmen, and away !

No bars of steel, or walls of stone,
 Our little empire bound,
 But, circling with his azure zone,
 The sea runs foaming round ;
 The whitening wave, the purpled skies,
 The blue and lifted shore,
 Braid with their dim and blending dyes
 Our wide horizon o'er.

And who will leave the grave debate
 That shakes the smoky town,
 To rule amid our island-state,
 And wear our oak-leaf crown ?
 And who will be awhile content
 To hunt our woodland game,
 And leave the vulgar pack that scent
 The reeking track of fame ?

Ah, who that shares in toils like these Will sigh not to prolong
 Our days beneath the broad-leaved trees,
 Our nights of mirth and song ?
 Then leave the dust of noisy streets,
 Ye outlaws of the wood,
 And follow through his green retreats
 Your noble Robin Hood.

DEPARTED DAYS.

Yes, dear departed, cherished days,
 Could Memory's hand restore
 Your morning light, your evening rays
 From Time's gray urn once more, — Then might this restless heart be still,
 This straining eye might close,
 And Hope her fainting pinions fold,
 While the fair phantoms rose.

But, like a child in ocean's arms,
 We strive against the stream,
 Each moment farther from the shore
 Where life's young fountains gleam ; —
 Each moment fainter wave the fields,
 And wider rolls the sea ;
 The mist grows dark, — the sun goes
 down, —
 Day breaks, — and where are we ?

THE ONLY DAUGHTER.

THEY bid me strike the idle strings,
 As if my summer days
 Had shaken sunbeams from their wings
 To warm my autumn lays ;
 They bring to me their painted urn,
 As if it were not time
 To lift my gauntlet and to spurn
 The lists of boyish rhyme ;
 And, were it not that I have still Some weakness in my heart
 That clings around my stronger will
 And pleads for gentler art,
 Perchance I had not turned away
 The thoughts grown tame with toil,
 To cheat this lone and pallid ray,
 That wastes the midnight oil.

Alas ! with every year I feel
 Some roses leave my brow ;
 Too young for wisdom's tardy seal,
 Too old for garlands now ;

Yet, while the dewy breath of spring
 Steals o'er the tingling air,
 And spreads and fans each emerald wing
 The forest soon shall wear,
 How bright the opening year would seem,
 Had I one look like thine,
 To meet me when the morning beam
 Unseals these lids of mine !
 Too long I bear this lonely lot,
 That bids my heart run wild
 To press the lips that love me not,
 To clasp the stranger's child.

How oft beyond the dashing seas,
 Amidst those royal bowers,
 Where danced the lilacs in the breeze,
 And swung the chestnut-flowers,
 I wandered like a wearied slave
 Whose morning task is done,
 To watch the little hands that gave Their whiteness to the sun ;
 To revel in the bright young eyes,
 Whose lustre sparkled through The sable fringe of Southern skies
 Or gleamed in Saxon blue !
 How oft I heard another's name Called in some truant's tone ;
 Sweet accents ! which I longed to claim,
 To learn and lisp my own !

Too soon the gentle hands, that pressed
 The ringlets of the child,
 Are folded on the faithful breast
 Where first he breathed and smiled ;
 Too oft the clinging arms untwine,
 The melting lips forget,
 And darkness veils the bridal shrine
 Where wreaths and torches met ;
 If Heaven but leaves a single thread
 Of Hope's dissolving chain,
 Even when her parting plumes are spread,
 It bids them fold again ;
 The cradle rocks beside the tomb ;
 The cheek now changed and chill

Smiles on us in the morning bloom
 Of one that loves us still.

Sweet image ! I have done thee wrong
 To claim this destined lay ;
 The leaf that asked an idle song
 Must bear my tears away.
 Yet, in thy memory shouldst thou keep
 This else forgotten strain,
 Till years have taught thine eyes to weep,
 And flattery's voice is vain ;
 O then, thou fledgling of the nest,
 Like the long-wandering dove,
 Thy weary heart may faint for rest,
 As mine, on changeless love ;
 And while these sculptured lines retrace
 The hours now dancing by,
 This vision of thy girlish grace
 May cost thee, too, a sigh.

SONG

WRITTEN FOR THE DINNER GIVEN TO CHARLES DICKENS, BY THE YOUNG MEN OF BOSTON, FEB. 1, 1842.

THE stars their early vigils keep,
 The silent hours are near,
 When drooping eyes forget to weep, —
 Yet still we linger here ;
 And what — the passing churl may ask —
 Can claim such wondrous power,
 That Toil forgets his wonted task,
 And Love his promised hour ?

The Irish harp no longer thrills,
 Or breathes a fainter tone ;
 The clarion blast from Scotland's hills,
 Alas ! no more is blown ;
 And Passion's burning lip bewails
 Her Harold's wasted fire,
 Still lingering o'er the dust that veils
 The Lord of England's lyre.

But grieve not o'er its broken strings,
 Nor think its soul hath died,

While yet the lark at heaven's gate sings,
 As once o'er Avon's side ;—
 While gentle summer sheds her bloom,
 And dewy blossoms wave,
 Alike o'er Juliet's storied tomb
 And Nelly's nameless grave.

Thou glorious island of the sea !
 Though wide the wasting flood
 That parts our distant land from thee,
 We claim thy generous blood ;
 Nor o'er thy far horizon springs
 One hallowed star of fame,
 But kindles, like an angel's wings,
 Our western skies in flame !

LINES

RECITED AT THE BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL.

COME back to your mother, ye children, for shame,
 Who have wandered like truants, for riches or fame !

With a smile on her face, and a sprig in her cap,
 She calls you to feast from her bountiful lap.

Come out from your alleys, your courts,
 and your lanes,
 And breathe, like young eagles, the air of our plains ;

Take a whiff from our fields, and your excellent wives
 Will declare it's all nonsense insuring your lives.

Come you of the law, who can talk, if you please,
 Till the man in the moon will allow it's a cheese,
 And leave "the old lady, that never tells lies,"
 To sleep with her handkerchief over her eyes.

Ye healers of men, for a moment decline
 Your feats in the rhubarb and ipecac
 line ;

While you shut up your turnpike, your neighbors can go,
 The old roundabout road, to the regions
 below.

You clerk, on whose ears are a couple of pens,
 And whose head is an ant-hill of units and tens ;

Though Plato denies you, we welcome you still
 As a featherless biped, in spite of your quill.

Poor drudge of the city ! how happy he feels,

With the burs on his legs, and the grass at his heels !

No dodger behind, his bandannas to
 share,

No constable grumbling, "You must n't walk there !"

In yonder green meadow, to memory
 dear,

He slaps a mosquito and brushes a tear ;
 The dew-drops hang round him on blossoms and shoots,

He breathes but one sigh for his youth and his boots.

There stands the old school-house, hard by the old church ;

That tree at its side had the flavor of birch ;

O sweet were the days of his juvenile tricks,

Though the prairie of youth had so many "big licks."

By the side of yon river he weeps and he slumps,

The boots fill with water, as if they were pumps,

Till, sated with rapture, he steals to his bed,
With a glow in his heart and a cold in his head.

'T is past, — he is dreaming, — I see him
again ;
The ledger returns as by legerdemain ;
His neckcloth is damp with an easterly flaw,
And he holds in his fingers an omnibus stfaw.

He dreams the chill gust is a blossomy gale,
That the straw is a rose from his dear native vale ;
And murmurs, unconscious of space and
of time,
“A 1. Extra super. Ah, is n't it PRIME !”

O what are the prizes we perish to win
To the first little “shiner” we caught with a pin !
No soil upon earth is so dear to our eyes
As the soil we first stirred in terrestrial pies !

Then come from all parties, and parts,
to our feast ;
Though not at the “Astor,” we 'll give you at least
A bite at an apple, a seat on the grass,
And the best of old — water — at nothing a glass.

NUX POSTCÆNATICA.

I WAS sitting with my microscope, upon my parlor rug,
With a very heavy quarto and a very lively bug ;
The true bug had been organized with only two antennæ,
But the humbug in the copperplate would have them twice as many.

And I thought, like Dr. Faustus, of the emptiness of art,
How we take a fragment for the whole,
and call the whole a part,
When I heard a heavy footstep that was loud enough for two,
And a man of forty entered, exclaiming,
— “How d'ye do ?”

He was not a ghost, my visitor, but solid flesh and bone ;
He wore a Palo Alto hat, his weight was twenty stone ; (It's odd how hats expand their brims as riper years invade,
As if when life had reached its noon, it wanted them for shade !)

I lost my focus, — dropped my book, —
the bug, who was a flea,
At once exploded, and commenced experiments on me.
They have a certain heartiness that frequently appalls, —
Those mediæval gentlemen in semilunar smalls !

“My boy,” he said, — (colloquial ways, — the vast, broad-hatted man,) — “Come dine with us on Thursday next,
— you must, you know you can ;
We're going to have a roaring time, with lots of fun and noise, Distinguished guests, et cetera, the JUDGE, and all the boys.”

Not so, — I said, — my temporal bones are showing pretty clear.
It's time to stop, — just look and see that hair above this ear ;
My golden days are more than spent, —
— and, what is very strange,
If these are real silver hairs, I'm getting lots of change.

Besides — my prospects — don't you know that people won't employ

A man that wrongs his manliness by laughing like a boy?
And suspect the azure blossom that unfolds upon a shoot,
As if wisdom's old potato could not flourish at its root?

It's a very fine reflection, when you're etching out a smile
On a copperplate of faces that would stretch at least a mile,
That, what with sneers from enemies,
and cheapening shrugs of friends,
It will cost you all the earnings that a month of labor lends!

It's a vastly pleasing prospect, when you're screwing out a laugh, That your very next year's income is diminished by a half,
And a little boy trips barefoot that Pegasus may go,
And the baby's milk is watered that your Helicon may flow!

No; — the joke has been a good one, — but I'm getting fond of quiet,
And I don't like deviations from my customary diet;
So I think I will not go with you to hear the toasts and speeches, But stick to old Montgomery Place, and have some pig and peaches.

The fat man answered: — Shut your mouth, and hear the genuine creed;
The true essentials of a feast are only fun and feed;
The force that wheels the planets round delights in spinning tops,
And that young earthquake t' other day was great at shaking props.

I tell you what, philosopher, if all the longest heads

That ever knocked their sinciputs in stretching on their beds Were round one great mahogany, I'd beat those fine old folks With twenty dishes, twenty fools, and twenty clever jokes!

Why, if Columbus should be there, the company would beg He'd show that little trick of his of balancing the egg!
Milton to Stilton would give in, and Solomon to Salmon,
And Roger Bacon be a bore, and Francis Bacon gammon!

And as for all the "patronage" of all the clowns and boors
That squint their little narrow eyes at any freak of yours,
Do leave them to your prosier friends,
— such fellows ought to die
When rhubarb is so very scarce and ipecac so high!

And so I come, — like Lochinvar, to tread a single measure,
To purchase with a loaf of bread a sugarplum of pleasure,
To enter for the cup of glass that's run for after dinner,
Which yields a single sparkling draught, then breaks and cuts the winner.

Ah, that's the way delusion comes, — a glass of old Madeira,
A pair of visual diaphragms revolved by Jane or Sarah,
And down go vows and promises without the slightest question If eating words won't compromise the organs of digestion!

And yet, among my native shades, beside my nursing mother,

Where every stranger seems a friend,
and every friend a brother,
I feel the old convivial glow (unaided) o'er me stealing, —
The warm, champagne, old-particular, brandy-punchy feeling.

We're all alike ; — Vesuvius flings the scoriæ from his fountain,
But down they come in volleying rain back to the burning mountain ;
We leave, like those volcanic stones, our precious Alma Mater, But will keep dropping in again to see the dear old crater.

VERSES FOR AFTER-DINNER.

Φ B K SOCIETY, 1844.

I WAS thinking last night, as I sat in the cars,
With the charmingest prospect of cinders and stars,
Next Thursday is — bless me ! — how hard it will be,
If that cannibal president calls upon me !
There is nothing on earth that he will not devour,
From a tutor in seed to a freshman in flower ;
No sage is too gray, and no youth is too
green,
And you can't be too plump, though you
're never too lean.
While others enlarge on the boiled and the roast,
He serves a raw clergyman up with a toast,
Or catches some doctor, quite tender and young,
And basely insists on a bit of his tongue.
Poor victim, prepared for his classical spit,

With a stuffing of praise, and a basting of wit,
You may twitch at your collar, and wrinkle your brow,
But you're up on your legs, and you're in for it now.

O think of your friends, — they are waiting to hear
Those jokes that are thought so remarkably queer ;
And all the Jack Horners of metrical buns
Are prying and fingering to pick out the puns.

Those thoughts which, like chickens, will always thrive best When reared by the heat of the natural nest,
Will perish if hatched from their embryo
dream
In the mist and the glow of convivial steam.

O pardon me, then, if I meekly retire,
With a very small flash of ethereal fire ;
No rubbing will kindle your Lucifer match,
If the fiz does not follow the primitive scratch.

Dear friends, who are listening so sweetly the while,
With your lips double-reefed in a snug little smile, —
I leave you two fables, both drawn from the deep, —
The shells you can drop, but the pearls you may keep.

* * *

The fish called the FLOUNDER, perhaps you may know,
Has one side for use and another for show ;

One side for the public, a delicate brown,
And one that is white, which he always keeps down.

A very young flounder, the flattest of flats, (And they 're none of them thicker than opera hats,)

Was speaking more freely than charity
taught

Of a friend and relation that just had been caught.

"My ! what an exposure ! just see what a sight !

I blush for my race, — he is showing his white !

Such spinning and wriggling, — why, what does he wish ?

How painfully small to respectable fish !"

Then said an old SCULPIN, — "My freedom excuse,

But you 're playing the cobbler with holes in your shoes ;

Your brown side is up, — but just wait till you 're tried

And you 'll find that all flounders are white on one side."

* * *

There 's a slice near the PICKEREL's pectoral fins,

Where the thorax leaves off and the venter begins ;

Which his brother, survivor of fish-hooks and lines,

Though fond of his family, never declines.

He loves his relations ; he feels they 'll be missed ;

But that one little titbit he cannot resist ;

So your bait may be swallowed, no matter how fast,

For you catch your next fish with a piece of the last.

And thus, O survivor, whose merciless fate

Is to take the next hook with the president's bait,

You are lost while you snatch from the end of his line

The morsel he rent from this bosom of mine !

A MODEST REQUEST

COMPLIED WITH AFTER THE DINNER AT PRESIDENT EVERETT'S INAUGURATION.

SCENE, — a back parlor in a certain square,

Or court, or lane, — in short, no matter where ;

Time, — early morning, dear to simple souls

Who love its sunshine, and its fresh-baked rolls ;

Persons, — take pity on this telltale blush,

That, like the Æthiop, whispers, "Hush, O hush !"

Delightful scene ! where smiling comfort broods,

Nor business frets, nor anxious care intrudes ;

O si sic omnia ! were it ever so !

But what is stable in this world below ?

Medio e fonte, — Virtue has her faults, —
The clearest fountains taste of Epsom salts ;

We snatch the cup and lift to drain it dry, —

Its central dimple holds a drowning fly !
Strong is the pine by Maine's ambrosial streams,

But stronger augers pierce its thickest
beams ;

No iron gate, no spiked and panelled
door,

Can keep out death, the postman, or the bore ; — .

O for a world where peace and silence
reign,

And blunted dulness terebrates in vain !
— The door-bell jingles, — enter Richard Fox,

And takes this letter from his leathern box.

“ Dear Sir,

In writing on a former day,
One little matter I forgot to say ;
I now inform you in a single line,
On Thursday next our purpose is to dine.
The act of feeding, as you understand,
Is but a fraction of the work in hand ;
Its nobler half is that ethereal meat
The papers call ‘ the intellectual treat ’ ; Songs, speeches, toasts, around the festive board

Drowned in the juice the College pumps afford ;

For only water flanks our knives and forks,

So, sink or float, we swim without the corks.

Yours is the art, by native genius taught,
To clothe in eloquence the naked thought ;
Yours is the skill its music to prolong Through the sweet effluence of mellifluous song ;

Yours the quaint trick to cram the pithy
line

That cracks so crisply over bubbling wine ;
And since success your various gifts attends,

We — that is, I and all your numerous friends —

Expect from you — your single self a host —

A speech, a song, excuse me, and a toast ;
Nay, not to haggle on so small a claim,
A few of each, or several of the same.

(Signed), Yours, most truly, — ”

No ! my sight must fail, —
If that ain't Judas on the largest scale !

Well, this is modest ; — nothing else than that ?

My coat ? my boots ? my pantaloons ?
my hat ?

My stick ? my gloves ? as well as all my wits,

Learning and linen, — everything that fits !

Jack, said my lady, is it grog you 'll try,
Or punch, or toddy, if perhaps you 're
dry ?

Ah, said the sailor, though I can't refuse,

You know, my lady, 't ain't for me to choose ; —

I 'll take the grog to finish off my lunch,
And drink the toddy while you mix the punch.

THE SPEECH. (The speaker, rising to be seen,

Looks very red, because so very green.)

I rise — I rise — with unaffected fear, (Louder ! — speak louder ! — who the deuce can hear ?)

I rise — I said — with undisguised dismay —

— Such are my feelings as I rise, I say !
Quite unprepared to face this learned throng,

Already gorged with eloquence and song ;
Around my view are ranged on either
hand

The genius, wisdom, virtue, of the land ; “ Hands that the rod of empire might have swayed ”

Close at my elbow stir their lemonade ;
Would you like Homer learn to write and speak,

That bench is groaning with its weight of Greek ;

Behold the naturalist who in his teens
 Found six new species in a dish of greens;
 And lo, the master in a statelier walk, Whose annual ciphering takes a ton of chalk ;
 And there the linguist, who by common roots
 Thro' all their nurseries tracks old Noah's shoots, —
 How Shem's proud children reared the Assyrian piles,
 While Ham's were scattered through the Sandwich Isles !

— Fired at the thought of all the present shows,
 My kindling fancy down the future
 flows :
 I see the glory of the coming days
 O'er Time's horizon shoot its streaming rays ;
 Near and more near the radiant morning draws
 In living lustre (rapturous applause) ;
 From east to west the blazing heralds run, Loosed from the chariot of the ascending sun,
 Through the long vista of uncounted
 years
 In cloudless splendor (three tremendous cheers).
 My eye prophetic, as the depths unfold,
 Sees a new advent of the age of gold ;
 While o'er the scene new generations
 press,
 New heroes rise the coming time to bless, —
 Not such as Homer's, who, we read in Pope, Dined without forks and never heard of soap, —
 Not such as May to Marlborough Chapel brings,
 Lean, hungry, savage, anti-everythings,

Copies of Luther in the pasteboard style, —
 But genuine articles, — the true Carlyle ; While far on high the blazing orb shall shed
 Its central light on Harvard's holy head,
 And Learning's ensigns ever float unfurled
 Here in the focus of the new-born world !
 The speaker stops, and, trampling down
 the pause,
 Roars through the hall the thunder of applause,
 One stormy gust of long-suspended Ahs !
 One whirlwind chaos of insane hurrahs !

THE SONG. But this demands a briefer
 line, —
 A shorter muse, and not the old long Nine ; —
 Long metre answers for a common song, Though common metre does not answer
 long.

She came beneath the forest dome
 To seek its peaceful shade,
 An exile from her ancient home, —
 A poor, forsaken maid ;
 No banner, flaunting high above,
 No blazoned cross, she bore ;
 One holy book of light and love
 Was all her worldly store.

The dark brown shadows passed away,
 And wider spread the green,
 And, where the savage used to stray,
 The rising mart was seen ;
 So, when the laden winds had brought Their showers of golden rain,
 Her lap some precious gleanings caught,
 Like Ruth's amid the grain.

But wrath soon gathered uncontrolled
 Among the baser churls,

To see her ankles red with gold,
 Her forehead white with pearls ;
 " Who gave to thee the glittering bands
 That lace thine azure veins ?
 Who bade thee lift those snow-white
 hands
 We bound in gilded chains ? "

" These are the gems my children gave, "
 The stately dame replied ;
 " The wise, the gentle, and the brave,
 I nurtured at my side ;
 If envy still your bosom stings,
 Take back their rims of gold ;
 My sons will melt their wedding-rings,
 And give a hundred-fold ! "

THE TOAST. O tell me, ye who thoughtless ask

Exhausted nature for a threefold task,
 In wit or pathos if one share remains,
 A safe investment for an ounce of brains ?
 Hard is the job to launch the desperate pun,

A pun-job dangerous as the Indian one.
 Turned by the current of some stronger
 wit

Back from the object that you mean to hit,

Like the strange missile which the Australian throws,

Your verbal boomerang slaps you on the nose.

One vague inflection spoils the whole with doubt,

One trivial letter ruins all, left out ;
 A knot can choke a felon into clay,
 A not will save him, spelt without the k ;
 The smallest word has some unguarded
 spot,

And danger lurks in i without a dot.

Thus great Achilles, who had shown his zeal

In healing wounds, died of a wounded heel ;

Unhappy chief, who, when in childhood doused,

Had saved his bacon, had his feet been soured !

Accursed heel that killed a hero stout !
 O, had your mother known that you were out,

Death had not entered at the trifling part

That still defies the small chirurgeon's art

With corns and bunions, — not the glorious John,

Who wrote the book we all have pondered on, —

But other bunions, bound in fleecy hose,
 To " Pilgrim's Progress ". unrelenting foes !

A health, unmingled with the reveller's
 wine,

To him whose title is indeed divine ;
 Truth's sleepless watchman on her midnight tower,

Whose lamp burns brightest when the tempests lower.

O who can tell with what a leaden flight Drag the long watches of his weary night,

While at his feet the hoarse and blinding gale

Strews the torn wreck and bursts the fragile sail,

When stars have faded, when the wave is dark,

When rocks and sands embrace the foundering bark,

And still he pleads with unavailing cry, Behold the light, O wanderer, look or die !

A health, fair Themis ! Would the enchanted vine

Wreathed its green tendrils round this cup of thine ;
If Learning's radiance fill thy modern court,
Its glorious sunshine streams through Blackstone's port !
Lawyers are thirsty, and their clients too, Witness at least, if memory serve me
true,
Those old tribunals, famed for dusty suits,
Where men sought justice ere they brushed their boots ; —
And what can match, to solve a learned
doubt,
The warmth within that comes from " cold without " ?

Health to the art whose glory is to give The crowning boon that makes it life to live.
Ask not her home ; — the rock where nature flings
Her arctic lichen, last of living things,
The gardens, fragrant with the orient's balm,
From the low jasmine to the star-like palm,
Hail her as mistress o'er the distant
waves,
And yield their tribute to her wandering slaves.
Wherever, moistening the ungrateful
soil,
The tear of suffering tracks the path of toil,
There, in the anguish of his fevered
hours,
Her gracious finger points to healing
flowers ;
Where the lost felon steals away to die,
Her soft hand waves before his closing
eye ;
Where hunted misery finds his darkest lair,

The midnight taper shows her kneeling
there !
VIRTUE, — the guide that men and nations own ;
And LAW, — the bulwark that protects
her throne ;
And HEALTH, — to all its happiest charm that lends ;
These and their servants, man's untiring
friends ;
Pour the bright lymph that Heaven itself lets fall, —
In one fair bumper let us toast them all !

THE STETHOSCOPE SONG.

A PROFESSIONAL BALLAD.

THERE was a young man in Boston town,
He bought him a STETHOSCOPE nice and new,
All mounted and finished and polished
down,
With an ivory cap and a stopper too.

It happened a spider within did crawl,
And spun him a web of ample size,
Wherein there chanced one day to fall
A couple of very imprudent flies.

The first was a bottle-fly, big and blue,
The second was smaller, and thin and
long ;
So there was a concert between the two,
Like an octave flute and a tavern gong.

Now being from Paris but recently,
This fine young man would show his skill ;
And so they gave him, his hand to try,
A hospital patient extremely ill.

Some said that his liver was short of bile,
And some that his heart was over size,

While some kept arguing all the while He was crammed with tubercles up to his eyes.

This fine young man then up stepped he,
And all the doctors made a pause ;
Said he, — The man must die, you see,
By the fifty-seventh of Louis's laws.

But since the case is a desperate one,
To explore his chest it may be well ;
For if he should die and it were not done,
You know the autopsy would not tell.

Then out his stethoscope he took,
And on it placed his curious ear ;
Mon Dieu! said he, with a knowing look,
Why here is a sound that 's mighty queer !

The bourdonnement is very clear, —
Amphoric buzzing, as I'm alive !
Five doctors took their turn to hear ;
Amphoric buzzing, said all the five.

There 's empyema beyond a doubt ;
We 'll plunge a trocar in his side. —
The diagnosis was made out,
They tapped the patient ; so he died.

Now such as hate new-fashioned toys
Began to look extremely glum ;
They said that rattles were made for boys,
And vowed that his buzzing was all a hum.

There was an old lady had long been sick,
And what was the matter none did
know :
Her pulse was slow, though her tongue was quick ;
To her this knowing youth must go.

So there the nice old lady sat,
With phials and boxes all in a row ;

She asked the young doctor what he was at,
To thumper and tumble her ruffles so.

Now, when the stethoscope came out,
The flies began to buzz and whiz ; —
O ho ! the matter is clear, no doubt ;
An aneurism there plainly is.

The bruit de râpe and the bruit de seie
And the bruit de diable are all combined ;
How happy Bouillaud would be,
If he a case like this could find !

Now, when the neighboring doctors found
A case so rare had been descried,
They every day her ribs did pound
In squads of twenty ; so she died.

Then six young damsels, slight and frail, Received this kind young doctor's cares ;
They all were getting slim and pale,
And short of breath on mounting stairs.

They all made rhymes with "sighs" and
"skies,"
And loathed their puddings and buttered rolls,
And dieted, much to their friends' surprise,
On pickles and pencils and chalk and coals.

So fast their little hearts did bound,
The frightened insects buzzed the
more ;

So over all their chests he found
The râle sifflant, and râle sonore.

He shook his head ; — there 's grave disease, —
I greatly fear you all must die ;

A slight post-mortem, if you please,
Surviving friends would gratify.

The six young damsels wept aloud,
Which so prevailed on six young men,
That each his honest love avowed,
Whereat they all got well again.

This poor young man was all aghast ;
The price of stethoscopes came down ;
And so he was reduced at last
To practise in a country town.

The doctors being very sore,
A stethoscope they did devise,
That had a rammer to clear the bore,
With a knob at the end to kill the flies.

Now use your ears, all you that can,
But don't forget to mind your eyes,
Or you may be cheated, like this young
man,
By a couple of silly, abnormal flies.

EXTRACTS FROM A MEDICAL POEM.

THE STABILITY OF SCIENCE.

THE feeble sea-birds, blinded in the storms,
On some tall lighthouse dash their little forms,
And the rude granite scatters for their pains
Those small deposits that were meant for brains.
Yet the proud fabric in the morning's sun Stands all unconscious of the mischief done ;
Still the red beacon pours its evening rays
For the lost pilot with as full a blaze, Nay, shines, all radiance, o'er the scattered fleet
Of gulls and boobies brainless at its feet.
I tell their fate, though courtesy dis-claims

To call our kind by such ungentle names ;
Yet, if your rashness bid you vainly dare, Think of their doom, ye simple, and beware !

See where aloft its hoary forehead rears
The towering pride of twice a thousand years !

Far, far below the vast incumbent pile Sleeps the gray rock from art's Ægean isle ;

Its massive courses, circling as they rise, Swell from the waves to mingle with the
skies ;

There every quarry lends its marble spoil,
And clustering ages blend their common
toil ;

The Greek, the Roman, reared its ancient walls,

The silent Arab arched its mystic halls ;
In that fair niche, by countless billows laved,

Trace the deep lines that Sydenham engraved ;

On yon broad front that breasts the changing swell,

Mark where the ponderous sledge of Hunter fell ;

By that square buttress look where Louis stands,

The stone yet warm from his uplifted
hands ;

And say, O Science, shall thy life-blood freeze,

When fluttering folly flaps on walls like these ?

A PORTRAIT.

THOUGHTFUL in youth, but not austere in age ;

Calm, but not cold, and cheerful though a sage ;

Too true to flatter, and too kind to sneer,

And only just when seemingly severe ;
So gently blending courtesy and art,

That wisdom's lips seemed borrowing friendship's heart.
 Taught by the sorrows that his age had known
 In others' trials to forget his own,
 As hour by hour his lengthened day declined,
 A sweeter radiance lingered o'er his
 mind.
 Cold were the lips that spoke his early
 praise,
 And hushed the voices of his morning
 days,
 Yet the same accents dwelt on every
 tongue,
 And love renewing kept him ever young.

A SENTIMENT.

'Ο βλος βραχύς, — life is but a song ;
 'Η τέχνη μακρή, — art is wondrous long ;
 Yet to the wise her paths are ever fair,
 And Patience smiles, though Genius may despair.
 Give us but knowledge, though by slow
 degrees,
 And blend our toil with moments bright as these ;
 Let Friendship's accents cheer our doubtful way,
 And Love's pure planet lend its guiding ray, —
 Our tardy Art shall wear an angel's wings,
 And life shall lengthen with the joy it brings !

THE PARTING WORD.

I MUST leave thee, lady sweet !
 Months shall waste before we meet ;
 Winds are fair, and sails are spread,
 Anchors leave their ocean bed ;
 Ere this shining day grow dark,
 Skies shall gird my shoreless bark ;

Through thy tears, O lady mine,
 Read thy lover's parting line.

When the first sad sun shall set,
 Thou shalt tear thy locks of jet ;
 When the morning star shall rise,
 Thou shalt wake with weeping eyes ;
 When the second sun goes down,
 Thou more tranquil shalt be grown,
 Taught too well that wild despair
 Dims thine eyes, and spoils thy hair.

All the first unquiet week
 Thou shalt wear a smileless cheek ;
 In the first month's second half Thou shalt once attempt to laugh ;
 Then in Pickwick thou shalt dip,
 Slightly puckering round the lip,
 Till at last, in sorrow's spite,
 Samuel makes thee laugh outright.

While the first seven mornings last,
 Round thy chamber bolted fast,
 Many a youth shall fume and pout,
 " Hang the girl, she's always out !"
 While the second week goes round,
 Vainly shall they ring and pound ;
 When the third week shall begin,
 " Martha, let the creature in."

Now once more the flattering throng
 Round thee flock with smile and song,
 But thy lips, unweaned as yet,
 Lisp, " O, how can I forget !"
 Men and devils both contrive Traps for catching girls alive ;
 Eve was duped, and Helen kissed, —
 How, O how can you resist ?

First be careful of your fan,
 Trust it not to youth or man ;
 Love has filled a pirate's sail Often with its perfumed gale.
 Mind your kerchief most of all,
 Fingers touch when kerchiefs fall ;

“Still the red beacon pours its evening rays.”

Shorter ell than mercers clip
Is the space from hand to lip.

Trust not such as talk in tropes,
Full of pistols, daggers, ropes ;
All the hemp that Russia bears
Scarce would answer lovers' prayers ;
Never thread was spun so fine,
Never spider stretched the line,
Would not hold the lovers true
That would really swing for you.

Fiercely some shall storm and swear,
Beating breasts in black despair ;
Others murmur with a sigh,
You must melt, or they will die ;
Painted words on empty lies,
Grubs with wings like butterflies ;
Let them die, and welcome, too ;
Pray what better could they do ?

Fare thee well, if years efface
From thy heart love's burning trace,
Keep, O keep that hallowed seat
From the tread of vulgar feet ;
If the blue lips of the sea
Wait with icy kiss for me,
Let not thine forget the vow,
Sealed how often, Love, as now.

A SONG OF OTHER DAYS.

As o'er the glacier's frozen sheet
Breathes soft the Alpine rose,
So, through life's desert springing sweet,
The flower of friendship grows ;
And as, where'er the roses grow,
Some rain or dew descends,

'T is nature's law that wine should flow
To wet the lips of friends.

Then once again, before we part,
My empty glass shall ring ;
And he that has the warmest heart
Shall loudest laugh and sing.

They say we were not born to eat ;
But gray-haired sages think

It means, — Be moderate in your meat,
And partly live to drink ;
For baser tribes the rivers flow
That know not wine or song ;
Man wants but little drink below,
But wants that little strong.
Then once again, etc.

If one bright drop is like the gem
That decks a monarch's crown,
One goblet holds a diadem
Of rubies melted down !
A fig for Cæsar's blazing brow,
But, like the Egyptian queen,
Bid each dissolving jewel glow
My thirsty lips between.
Then once again, etc.

The Grecian's mound, the Roman's urn,
Are silent when we call,
Yet still the purple grapes return
To cluster on the wall ;
It was a bright Immortal's head
They circled with the vine,
And o'er their best and bravest dead
They poured the dark-red wine.
Then once again, etc.

Methinks o'er every sparkling glass
Young Eros waves his wings,
And echoes o'er its dimples pass
From dead Anacreon's strings ;
And, tossing round its beaded brim
Their locks of floating gold,
With bacchant dance and choral hymn Return the nymphs of old.
Then once again, etc.

A welcome then to joy and mirth,
From hearts as fresh as ours,
To scatter o'er the dust of earth
Their sweetly mingled flowers ;
'T is Wisdom's self the cup that fills
In spite of Folly's frown,
And Nature, from her vine-clad hills,
That rains her life-blood down !

Then once again, before we part,
 My empty glass shall ring ;
 And he that has the warmest heart
 Shall loudest laugh and sing.

SONG.

FOR A TEMPERANCE DINNER TO WHICH LADIES WERE INVITED (NEW YORK
 MERCANTILE LIBRARY ASSOCIATION,
 NOV., 1842).

A HEALTH to dear woman ! She bids us untwine,
 From the cup it encircles, the fast-clinging vine ;
 But her cheek in its crystal with pleasure will glow,
 And mirror its bloom in the bright wave
 below.

A health to sweet woman ! The days are no more When she watched for her lord till the revel was o'er,
 And smoothed the white pillow, and blushed when he came,
 As she pressed her cold lips on his forehead of flame.

Alas for the loved one ! too spotless and
 fair
 The joys of his banquet to chasten and
 share ;
 Her eye lost its light that his goblet might shine,
 And the rose of her cheek was dissolved in his wine.

Joy smiles in the fountain, health flows in the rills,
 As their ribbons of silver unwind from the hills ;
 They breathe not the mist of the bacchanal's dream,
 But the lilies of innocence float on their
 stream.

Then a health and a welcome to woman
 once more !
 She brings us a passport that laughs at our door ;
 It is written on crimson, — its letters are pearls, —
 It is countersigned Nature. — So, room for the Girls !

A SENTIMENT.

THE pledge of Friendship ! it is still divine,
 Though watery floods have quenched its burning wine ;
 Whatever vase the sacred drops may hold,
 The gourd, the shell, the cup of beaten
 gold,
 Around its brim the hand of Nature
 throws
 A garland sweeter than the banquet's
 rose.
 Bright are the blushes of the vine-wreathed bowl,
 Warm with the sunshine of Anacreon's
 soul,
 But dearer memories gild the tasteless
 wave
 That fainting Sidney perished as he gave.
 'Tis the heart's current lends the cup its glow, Whate'er the fountain whence the draught may flow, —
 The diamond dew - drops sparkling through the sand, Scooped by the Arab in his sunburnt
 hand,
 Or the dark streamlet oozing from the
 snow,
 Where creep and crouch the shuddering Esquimaux ; — Ay, in the stream that, ere again we meet,

Shall burst the pavement, glistening at our feet,
And, stealing silent from its leafy hills,
Thread all our alleys with its thousand rills, —
In each pale draught if generous feeling blend,
And o'er the goblet friend shall smile on friend,
Even cold Cochituate every heart shall warm,
And genial Nature still defy reform !

(URANIA.)

YES, dear Enchantress, — wandering far and long,
In realms unperfumed by the breath of
song,
Where flowers ill-flavored shed their sweets around,
And bitterest roots invade the ungenial
ground,
Whose gems are crystals from the Epsom
mine,
Whose vineyards flow with antimonial
wine,
Whose gates admit no mirthful feature
in,
Save one gaunt mocker, the Sardonic grin,
Whose pangs are real, not the woes of rhyme
That blue-eyed misses warble out of
time ; —
Truant, not recreant to thy sacred claim, Older by reckoning, but in heart the same,

Freed for a moment from the chains of
toil,
I tread once more thy consecrated soil ;
Here at thy feet my old allegiance own, Thy subject still, and loyal to thy
throne !

My dazzled glance explores the crowded
hall ;
Alas, how vain to hope the smiles of all !
I know my audience. All the gay and young
Love the light antics of a playful tongue ;
And these, remembering some expansive
line
My lips let loose among the nuts and
wine,
Are all impatience till the opening pun
Proclaims the witty shamfight is begun.
Two fifths at least, if not the total half,
Have come infuriate for an earthquake
laugh ;
I know full well what alderman has tied
His red bandanna tight about his side ;
I see the mother, who, aware that boys
Perform their laughter with superfluous noise,
Beside her kerchief, brought an extra
one
To stop the explosions of her bursting
son ;
I know a tailor, once a friend of mine,
Expects great doings in the button
line ; —
For mirth's concussions rip the outward case,
And plant the stitches in a tenderer
place.
I know my audience ; — these shall have their due ;
A smile awaits them ere my song is through !

¹ This poem was delivered before the Boston Mercantile Library Association, October 14, 1846.

I know myself. Not servile for applause,
 My Muse permits no deprecating clause ;
 Modest or vain, she will not be denied
 One bold confession due to honest pride ;
 And well she knows the drooping veil of song
 Shall save her boldness from the cavil-ler's wrong.
 Her sweeter voice the Heavenly Maid imparts
 To tell the secrets of our aching hearts ;
 For this, a suppliant, captive, prostrate,
 bound,
 She kneels imploring at the feet of sound ;
 For this, convulsed in thought's maternal pains,
 She loads her arms with rhyme's resounding chains ;
 Faint though the music of her fetters
 be,
 It lends one charm ; — her lips are ever
 free !

Think not I come, in manhood's fiery noon,
 To steal his laurels from the stage buffoon ;
 His sword of lath the harlequin may wield ;
 Behold the star upon my lifted shield !
 Though the just critic pass my humble
 name,
 And sweeter lips have drained the cup
 of fame,
 While my gay stanza pleased the banquet's lords,
 The soul within was tuned to deeper chords !
 Say, shall my arms, in other conflicts
 taught
 To swing aloft the ponderous mace of
 thought,
 Lift, in obedience to a school-girl's law,

Mirth's tinsel wand or laughter's tickling straw ?
 Say, shall I wound with satire's rankling spear
 The pure, warm hearts that bid me welcome here ?
 No ! while I wander through the land of dreams,
 To strive with great and play with trifling themes,
 Let some kind meaning fill the varied
 line ;
 You have your judgment ; will you trust to mine ?

 Between two breaths what crowded mysteries lie, —
 The first short gasp, the last and long-drawn sigh !
 Like phantoms painted on the magic slide, Forth from the darkness of the past we
 glide,
 As living shadows for a moment seen
 In airy pageant on the eternal screen, Traced by a ray from one unchanging
 flame,
 Then seek the dust and stillness whence we came.

But whence and why, our trembling souls inquire,
 Caught these dim visions their awakening fire ?
 O who forgets when first the piercing
 thought
 Through childhood's musings found its way unsought ?
 I AM ; — I LIVE. The mystery and the fear
 When the dread question, WHAT HAS BROUGHT ME HERE ?
 Burst through life's twilight, as before
 the sun

Roll the deep thunders of the morning gun !

Are angel faces, silent and serene,
Bent on the conflicts of this little scene,
Whose dream-like efforts, whose unreal
strife,
Are but the preludes to a larger life ?

Or does life's summer see the end of all,
These leaves of being mouldering as they fall,
As the old poet vaguely used to deem,
As WESLEY questioned in his youthful
dream ?
O could such mockery reach our souls indeed,
Give back the Pharaohs' or the Athenian's creed ;
Better than this a Heaven of man's device, —
The Indian's sports, the Moslem's paradise !

Or is our being's only end and aim
To add new glories to our Maker's name, As the poor insect, shrivelling in the blaze,
Lends a faint sparkle to its streaming
rays ?
Does earth send upwards to the Eternal's
ear
The mingled discords of her jarring
sphere
To swell his anthem, while creation rings
With notes of anguish from its shattered strings ?
Is it for this the immortal Artist means These conscious, throbbing, agonized machines ?

Dark is the soul whose sullen creed can bind

In chains like these the all-embracing
Mind ;

No ! two-faced bigot, thou dost ill reprove

The sensual, selfish, yet benignant Jove, And praise a tyrant throned in lonely pride,

Who loves himself, and cares for naught beside ;

Who gave thee, summoned from primeval night,

A thousand laws, and not a single right, —

A heart to feel, and quivering nerves to thrill,

The sense of wrong, the death-defying will ;

Who girt thy senses with this goodly
frame,

Its earthly glories and its orbs of flame,
Not for thyself, unworthy of a thought,
Poor helpless victim of a life unsought,
But all for him, unchanging and supreme,

The heartless centre of thy frozen scheme !

Trust not the teacher with his lying scroll,

Who tears the charter of thy shuddering
soul ;

The God of love, who gave the breath that warms

All living dust in all its varied forms,
Asks not the tribute of a world like this
To fill the measure of his perfect bliss.

Though winged with life through all its radiant shores,

Creation flowed with unexhausted stores
Cherub and seraph had not yet enjoyed ;
For this he called thee from the quickening void !

Nor this alone ; a larger gift was thine,
A mightier purpose swelled his vast design ;

Thought,—conscience,—will,—to make them all thine own,
 He rent a pillar from the eternal throne !

Made in his image, thou must nobly dare
 The thorny crown of sovereignty to share.

With eye uplifted, it is thine to view,
 From thine own centre, Heaven's o'er-arching blue ;

So round thy heart a beaming circle lies
 No fiend can blot, no hypocrite disguise ;
 From all its orbs one cheering voice is
 heard,

Full to thine ear it bears the Father's
 word,

Now, as in Eden where his first-born
 trod :

“Seek thine own welfare, true to man and God !”

Think not too meanly of thy low estate ;
 Thou hast a choice ; to choose is to create !

Remember whose the sacred lips that tell, Angels approve thee when thy choice is well ;

Remember, One, a judge of righteous
 men,

Swore to spare Sodom if she held but ten !

Use well the freedom which thy Master gave,

(Think'st thou that Heaven can tolerate a slave ?)

And He who made thee to be just and
 true

Will bless thee, love thee, — ay, respect thee too !

Nature has placed thee on a change-ful tide,
 To breast its waves, but not without a guide ;

Yet, as the needle will forget its aim,
 Jarred by the fury of the electric flame,
 As the true current it will falsely feel,
 Warped from its axis by a freight of steel ;
 So will thy CONSCIENCE lose its balanced truth,

If passion's lightning fall upon thy youth ;

So the pure effluence quit its sacred
 hold,

Girt round too deeply with magnetic
 gold.

Go to yon tower, where busy science
 plies

Her vast antennæ, feeling through the
 skies ;

That little vernier on whose slender lines
 The midnight taper trembles as it shines,
 A silent index, tracks the planets' march
 In all their wanderings through the ethereal arch,

Tells through the mist where dazzled
 Mercury burns,

And marks the spot where Uranus returns.

So, till by wrong or negligence effaced,
 The living index which thy Maker traced Repeats the line each starry Virtue draws Through the wide circuit of creation's laws ;

Still tracks unchanged the everlasting
 ray

Where the dark shadows of temptation stray ;

But, once defaced, forgets the orbs of
 light,

And leaves thee wandering o'er the expance of night.

“What is thy creed ?” a hundred lips inquire ;

“Thou seekest God beneath what Christian spire ?”

Nor ask they idly, for uncounted lies Float upward on the smoke of sacrifice ;

When man's first incense rose above the plain,
Of earth's two altars one was built by Cain !

Uncursed by doubt, our earliest creed we take ;

We love the precepts for the teacher's sake ;

The simple lessons which the nursery taught

Fell soft and stainless on the buds of thought,

And the full blossom owes its fairest hue

To those sweet tear-drops of affection's dew.

Too oft the light that led our earlier hours

Fades with the perfume of our cradle flowers ;

The clear, cold question chills to frozen doubt ;

Tired of beliefs, we dread to live without ;

O then, if Reason waver at thy side,

Let humbler Memory be thy gentle guide ;

Go to thy birthplace, and, if faith was there,

Repeat thy father's creed, thy mother's prayer !

Faith loves to lean on Time's destroying arm,

And age, like distance, lends a double charm ;

In dim cathedrals, dark with vaulted gloom,

What holy awe invests the saintly tomb !

There pride will bow, and anxious care expand,

And creeping avarice come with open hand ;

The gay can weep, the impious can adore,

From morn's first glimmerings on the chancel floor,

Till dying sunset sheds his crimson stains

Through the faint halos of the irised panes.

Yet there are graves, whose rudely-shapen sod

Bears the fresh footprints where the sexton trod ;

Graves where the verdure has not dared to shoot,

Where the chance wild-flower has not fixed its root,

Whose slumbering tenants, dead without a name,

The eternal record shall at length proclaim

Pure as the holiest in the long array
Of hooded, mitred, or tiaraed clay !

Come, seek the air ; some pictures we may gain

Whose passing shadows shall not be in vain ;

Not from the scenes that crowd the stranger's soil,

Not from our own amidst the stir of toil,

But when the Sabbath brings its kind release,

And Care lies slumbering on the lap of Peace.

The air is hushed ; the street is holy ground ;

Hark ! The sweet bells renew their welcome sound ;

As one by one awakes each silent tongue,
It tells the turret whence its voice is flung.

The Chapel, last of sublunary things
That stirs our echoes with the name of Kings,

Whose bell, just glistening from the font and forge,
 Rolled its proud requiem for the second
 George,
 Solemn and swelling, as of old it rang,
 Flings to the wind its deep, sonorous clang ; —
 The simpler pile, that, mindful of the hour
 When Howe's artillery shook its half-built tower,
 Wears on its bosom, as a bride might do,
 The iron breastpin which the "Rebels" threw,
 Wakes the sharp echoes with the quivering thrill
 Of keen vibrations, tremulous and shrill ; —
 Aloft, suspended in the morning's fire, Crash the vast cymbals from the Southern spire ; —
 The Giant, standing by the elm-clad
 green,
 His white lance lifted o'er the silent scene,
 Whirling in air his brazen goblet round, Swings from its brim the swollen floods of sound ; — While, sad with memories of the olden
 time,
 Throbs from his tower the Northern Minstrel's chime, Faint, single tones, that spell their ancient song,
 But tears still follow as they breathe
 along.

Child of the soil, whom fortune sends to range
 Where man and nature, faith and customs change,
 Borne in thy memory, each familiar tone Mourns on the winds that sigh in every zone.

When Ceylon sweeps thee with her perfumed breeze
 Through the warm billows of the Indian seas ;
 When — ship and shadow blended both in one —
 Flames o'er thy mast the equatorial sun,
 From sparkling midnight to refulgent
 noon
 Thy canvas swelling with the still monsoon ;
 When through thy shrouds the wild tornado sings,
 And thy poor seabird folds her tattered
 wings, —
 Oft will delusion o'er thy senses steal,
 And airy echoes ring the Sabbath peal !
 Then, dim with grateful tears, in long array Rise the fair town, the island-studded bay,
 Home, with its smiling board, its cheering fire,
 The half-choked welcome of the expecting sire,
 The mother's kiss, and, still if aught remain,
 Our whispering hearts shall aid the silent
 strain. —
 Ah, let the dreamer o'er the taffrail lean
 To muse unheeded, and to weep unseen ;
 Fear not the tropic's dews, the evening's chills,
 His heart lies warm among his triple hills !

Turned from her path by this deceitful gleam,
 My wayward fancy half forgets her theme ;
 See through the streets that slumbered in repose
 The living current of devotion flows ;
 Its varied forms in one harmonious band,

Age leading childhood by its dimpled
hand,

Want, in the robe whose faded edges
fall

To tell of rags beneath the tartan shawl,
And wealth, in silks that, fluttering to appear,

Lift the deep borders of the proud cashmere.

See, but glance briefly, sorrow-worn and pale,

Those sunken cheeks beneath the widow's veil ;

Alone she wanders where with him she
trod,

No arm to stay her, but she leans on God.

While other doublets deviate here and
there,

What secret handcuff binds that pretty pair ?

Compactest couple ! pressing side to side, —

Ah, the white bonnet that reveals the bride !

By the white neckcloth, with its straitened tie,

The sober hat, the Sabbath-speaking
eye,

Severe and smileless, he that runs may read

The stern disciple of Geneva's creed ;

Decent and slow, behold his solemn march ;

Silent he enters through yon crowded arch.

A livelier bearing of the outward
man,

The light-hued gloves, the undevout
rattan,

Now smartly raised or half-profanely twirled, —

A bright, fresh twinkle from the weekday world, —

Tell their plain story ; — yes, thine eyes behold

A cheerful Christian from the liberal fold.

Down the chill street that curves in gloomiest shade

What marks betray yon solitary maid ?

The cheek's red rose, that speaks of balmier air ;

The Celtic hue that shades her braided
hair ;

The gilded missal in her kerchief tied ;

Poor Nora, exile from Killarney's side !

Sister in toil, though blanched by colder skies,

That left their azure in her downcast
eyes,

See pallid Margaret, Labor's patient
child,

Scarce weaned from home, the nursling
of the wild,

Where white Katahdin o'er the horizon shines,

And broad Penobscot dashes through the pines.

Still, as she hastes, her careful fingers hold

The unfailling hymn-book in its cambric
fold.

Six days at drudgery's heavy wheel she stands,

The seventh sweet morning folds her weary hands ;

Yes, child of suffering, thou mayst well be sure

He who ordained the Sabbath loves the poor !

This weekly picture faithful Memory
draws,

Nor claims the noisy tribute of applause ;
Faint is the glow such barren hopes can lend,

And frail the line that asks no loftier end.

Trust me, kind listener, I will yet beguile
 Thy saddened features of the promised
 smile ;
 This magic mantle thou must well
 divide,
 It has its sable and its ermine side ;
 Yet, ere the lining of the robe appears,
 Take thou in silence what I give in
 tears.

Dear listening soul, this transitory
 scene
 Of murmuring stillness, busily serene, — This solemn pause, the breathing-space of man,
 The halt of toil's exhausted caravan, — Comes sweet with music to thy wearied
 ear ;
 Rise with its anthems to a holier sphere !

Deal meekly, gently, with the hopes that guide
 The lowliest brother straying from thy
 side ;
 If right, they bid thee tremble for thine
 own,
 If wrong, the verdict is for God alone !

What though the champions of thy faith esteem
 The sprinkled fountain or baptismal
 stream ;
 Shall jealous passions in unseemly strife Cross their dark weapons o'er the waves of life ?

Let my free soul, expanding as it can,
 Leave to his scheme the thoughtful Puritan ;
 But Calvin's dogma shall my lips de-ride ?
 In that stern faith my angel Mary died ;—

Or ask if mercy's milder creed can save, Sweet sister, risen from thy new-made
 grave ?

True, the harsh founders of thy church reviled
 That ancient faith, the trust of Erin's
 child ;
 Must thou be raking in the crumbled past
 For racks and fagots in her teeth to cast ?

See from the ashes of Helvetia's pile
 The whitened skull of old Servetus
 smile !

Round her young heart thy "Romish Upas" threw

Its firm, deep fibres, strengthening as she grew ;

Thy sneering voice may call them
 "Popish tricks,"—

Her Latin prayers, her dangling crucifix,—

But De Profundis blessed her father's
 grave ;

That "idol" cross her dying mother
 gave !

What if some angel looks with equal
 eyes

On her and thee, the simple and the wise,

Writes each dark fault against thy brighter creed,

And drops a tear with every foolish bead !

Grieve, as thou must, o'er history's reeking page ;

Blush for the wrongs that stain thy happier age ;

Strive with the wanderer from the better path,

Bearing thy message meekly, not in
 wrath ;

Weep for the frail that err, the weak that fall,
Have thine own faith, — but hope and pray for all !

Faith ; Conscience ; Love. A meaner task remains,
And humbler thoughts must creep in lowlier strains ;
Shalt thou be honest ? Ask the worldly schools,
And all will tell thee knaves are busier
fools ;
Prudent ? Industrious ? Let not modern pens
Instruct " Poor Richard's " fellow-citizens.

Be firm ! one constant element in luck
Is genuine, solid, old Teutonic pluck ;
See yon tall shaft ; it felt the earthquake's thrill, Clung to its base, and greets the sunrise still.

Stick to your aim ; the mongrel's hold will slip,
But only crowbars loose the bulldog's grip ;
Small as he looks, the jaw that never yields Drags down the bellowing monarch of the fields !

Yet in opinions look not always back ;
Your wake is nothing, mind the coming track ;
Leave what you've done for what you have to do ;
Don't be " consistent," but be simply
true.

Don't catch the fidgets ; you have found your place
Just in the focus of a nervous race,

Fretful to change, and rabid to discuss,
Full of excitements, always in a fuss ; — Think of the patriarchs ; then compare as men

These lean-cheeked maniacs of the tongue and pen !

Run, if you like, but try to keep your breath ;

Work like a man, but don't be worked to death ;

And with new notions, — let me change the rule, —

Don't strike the iron till it 's slightly cool.

Choose well your set ; our feeble nature seeks

The aid of clubs, the countenance of cliques ;

And with this object settle first of all

Your weight of metal and your size of ball.

Track not the steps of such as hold you cheap,

Too mean to prize, though good enough to keep ;

The " real, genuine, no-mistake Tom Thumbs "

Are little people fed on great men's crumbs.

Yet keep no followers of that hateful brood

That basely mingles with its wholesome food

The tumid reptile, which, the poet said,
Doth wear a precious jewel in his head.

If the wild filly, " Progress," thou wouldst ride,

Have young companions ever at thy
side ;

But, wouldst thou stride the stanch old mare, " Success,"

Go with thine elders, though they please thee less.

Shun such as lounge through afternoons and eves,
And on thy dial write, "Beware of thieves!"
Felon of minutes, never taught to feel
The worth of treasures which thy fingers steal,
Pick my left pocket of its silver dime,
But spare the right, — it holds my golden time!

Does praise delight thee? Choose some ultra side;
A sure old recipe, and often tried;
Be its apostle, congressman, or bard, Spokesman, or jokesman, only drive it hard;
But know the forfeit which thy choice abides,
For on two wheels the poor reformer rides,
One black with epithets the anti throws,
One white with flattery painted by the pros.

Though books on MANNERS are not out of print,
An honest tongue may drop a harmless hint.
Stop not, unthinking, every friend
you meet,
To spin your wordy fabric in the street;
While you are emptying your colloquial pack,
The fiend Lumbago jumps upon his back.
Nor cloud his features with the unwelcome tale
Of how he looks, if haply thin and pale;
Health is a subject for his child, his wife,
And the rude office that insures his life.
Look in his face, to meet thy neighbor's soul,
Not on his garments, to detect a hole;

"How to observe," is what thy pages
show,
Pride of thy sex, Miss Harriet Martineau!
O, what a precious book the one would be
That taught observers what they're not to see!

I tell in verse, — 't were better done in prose, —
One curious trick that everybody knows;
Once form this habit, and it's very strange
How long it sticks, how hard it is to change.
Two friendly people, both disposed to
smile,
Who meet, like others, every little while,
Instead of passing with a pleasant bow,
And "How d' ye do?" or "How's your uncle now?"
Impelled by feelings in their nature kind,
But slightly weak, and somewhat undefined,
Rush at each other, make a sudden stand,
Begin to talk, expatiate, and expand;
Each looks quite radiant, seems extremely struck,
Their meeting so was such a piece of luck;
Each thinks the other thinks he's greatly pleased
To screw the vice in which they both are squeezed;
So there they talk, in dust, or mud, or
snow,
Both bored to death, and both afraid to go!
Your hat once lifted, do not hang your fire,
Nor, like slow Ajax, fighting still, retire;

When your old castor on your crown
you clap,
Go off ; you've mounted your percussion cap.

Some words on LANGUAGE may be well applied,

And take them kindly, though they touch your pride ;

Words lead to things ; a scale is more precise, —

Coarse speech, bad grammar, swearing, drinking, vice.

Our cold Northeaster's icy fetter clips
The native freedom of the Saxon lips ;

See the brown peasant of the plastic South,

How all his passions play about his mouth!

With us, the feature that transmits the
soul,

A frozen, passive, palsied breathing-hole.
The crampy shackles of the ploughboy's walk

Tie the small muscles when he strives to talk ;

Not all the pumice of the polished town
Can smooth this roughness of the barnyard down ;

Rich, honored, titled, he betrays his race
By this one mark, — he's awkward in the face ; —

Nature's rude impress, long before he knew
The sunnystreet that holds the sifted few.

It can't be helped, though, if we're taken young,

We gain some freedom of the lips and
tongue ;

But school and college often try in vain
To break the padlock of our boyhood's
chain :

One stubborn word will prove this axiom
true, —

No quondam rustic can enunciate view.

A few brief stanzas may be well employed

To speak of errors we can all avoid.

Learning condemns beyond the reach of hope

The careless lips that speak of soap for soap ;

Her edict exiles from her fair abode
The clownish voice that utters road for road :

Less stern to him who calls his coat a coat,

And steers his boat, believing it a boat,

She pardoned one, our classic city's boast,
Who said at Cambridge, most instead of most,

But knit her brows and stamped her angry foot

To hear a Teacher call a root a root.

Once more ; speak clearly, if you speak at all ;

Carve every word before you let it
fall ;

Don't, like a lecturer or dramatic star,
Try over hard to roll the British R ;

Do put your accents in the proper spot ;
Don't, — let me beg you, — don't say

“How ?” for “What ?”

And, when you stick on conversation's burrs,

Don't strew your pathway with those dreadful urs.

From little matters let us pass to less,

And lightly touch the mysteries of DRESS ;
The outward forms the inner man reveal, —

We guess the pulp before we cut the peel.

I leave the broadcloth, — coats and all the rest, —

I leave the broadcloth, — coats and
all the rest, —

The dangerous waistcoat, called by cockneys "vest,"

The things named "pants" in certain documents,

A word not made for gentlemen, but "gents";

One single precept might the whole condense :

Be sure your tailor is a man of sense ;
But add a little care, a decent pride,
And always err upon the sober side.

Three pairs of boots one pair of feet demands,

If polished daily by the owner's hands ;
If the dark menial's visit save from this,

Have twice the number, for he 'll sometimes miss.

One pair for critics of the nicer sex,
Close in the instep's clinging circum-flex,

Long, narrow, light ; the Gallic boot of
love,

A kind of cross between a boot and glove.

Compact, but easy, strong, substantial,
square,

Let native art compile the medium pair.
The third remains, and let your tasteful
skill

Here show some relics of affection still ;
Let no stiff cowhide, reeking from the tan,

No rough caoutchouc, no deformed brogan,

Disgrace the tapering outline of your feet,

Though yellow torrents gurgle through the street.

Wear seemly gloves ; not black, nor yet too light,

And least of all the pair that once was
white ;

Let the dead party where you told your loves

Bury in peace its dead bouquets and gloves ;

Shave like the goat, if so your fancy bids,
But be a parent, — don't neglect your kids.

Have a good hat ; the secret of your looks

Lives with the beaver in Canadian brooks ;
Virtue may flourish in an old cravat,
But man and nature scorn the shocking hat.

Does beauty slight you from her gay abodes ?

Like bright Apollo, you must take to Rhoades, —

Mount the new castor, — ice itself will melt ;

Boots, gloves, may fail ; the hat is always felt !

Be shy of breastpins ; plain, wellironed white,

With small pearl buttons, — two of them in sight, —

Is always genuine, while your gems may pass,

Though real diamonds, for ignoble glass ;
But spurn those paltry Cisatlantic lies,
That round his breast the shabby rustic ties ;

Breathe not the name, profaned to hallow things

The indignant laundress blushes when she brings !

Our freeborn race, averse to every check,

Has tossed the yoke of Europe from its neck ;

From the green prairie to the sea-girt
town,

The whole wide nation turns its collars
down.

The stately neck is manhood's manliest part ;

It takes the life-blood freshest from the heart ;

With short, curled ringlets close around it spread,

How light and strong it lifts the Grecian head !

Thine, fair Erechtheus of Minerva's wall ;—

Or thine, young athlete of the Louvre's hall,

Smooth as the pillar flashing in the sun

That filled the arena where thy wreaths were won, —

Firm as the band that clasps the antlered spoil,

Strained in the winding anaconda's coil !

I spare the contrast ; it were only kind

To be a little, nay, intensely blind :

Choose for yourself : I know it cuts your ear ;

I know the points will sometimes interfere ;

I know that often, like the filial John, Whom sleep surprised with half his drapery on,

You show your features to the astonished town

With one side standing and the other down ;—

But, O my friend ! my favorite fellow-man !

If Nature made you on her modern plan,

Sooner than wander with your windpipe bare, —

The fruit of Eden ripening in the air, — With that lean head-stalk, that protruding chin,

Wear standing collars, were they made of tin !

And have a neck-cloth, — by the throat of Jove !

Cut from the funnel of a rusty stove !

The long-drawn lesson narrows to its close,

Chill, slender, slow, the dwindled current flows ;

Tired of the ripples on its feeble springs, Once more the Muse unfolds her upward wings.

Land of my birth, with this unhallowed tongue,

Thy hopes, thy dangers, I perchance had sung ;

But who shall sing, in brutal disregard Of all the essentials of the "native bard" ?

Lake, sea, shore, prairie, forest, mountain, fall,

His eye omnivorous must devour them all ;

The tallest summits and the broadest tides

His foot must compass with its giant strides,

Where Ocean thunders, where Missouri rolls,

And tread at once the tropics and the poles ;

His food all forms of earth, fire, water, air,

His home all space, his birthplace everywhere.

Some grave compatriot, having seen perhaps

And read in earnest what was said in jest, "Who drives fat oxen" — please to add the rest, —

Sprung the odd notion that the poet's dreams

Grow in the ratio of his hills and streams ;
And hence insisted that the aforesaid
"bard,"

Pink of the future, — fancy's pattern-card, —

The babe of nature in the "giant West," Must be of course her biggest and her best.

O when at length the expected bard shall come,
Land of our pride, to strike thine echoes
dumb,
(And many a voice exclaims in prose and rhyme,
It's getting late, and he's behind his
time,)
When all thy mountains clap their hands in joy,
And all thy cataracts thunder, "That's the boy," —
Say if with him the reign of song shall end,
And Heaven declare its final dividend ?

Be calm, dear brother ! whose impassioned strain
Comes from an alley watered by a drain ;
The little Mincio, dribbling to the Po,
Beats all the epics of the Hoang Ho ;
If loved in earnest by the tuneful maid, Don't mind their nonsense, — never be afraid !

'The nurse of poets feeds her winged brood
By common firesides, on familiar food ;
In a low hamlet, by a narrow stream, Where bovine rustics used to doze and
dream,
She filled young William's fiery fancy full, While old John Shakespeare talked of beeves and wool !

No Alpine needle, with its climbing
spire,

Brings down for mortals the Promethean
fire ;

If careless nature have forgot to frame
An altar worthy of the sacred flame.

Unblest by any save the goatherd's
lines,
Mont Blanc rose soaring through his
"sea of pines" ;

In vain the rivers from their ice-caves flash ;

Nó hymn salutes them but the Ranz des Vaches,

Till lazy Coleridge, by the morning's
light,

Gazed for a moment on the fields of
white,

And lo, the glaciers found at length a
tongue,

Mont Blanc was vocal, and Chamouni
sung !

Children of wealth or want, to each is given
One spot of green, and all the blue of heaven !

Enough, if these their outward shows impart ;

The rest is thine, — the scenery of the
heart.

If passion's hectic in thy stanzas glow, Thy heart's best life-blood ebbing as they flow ;

If with thy verse thy strength and bloom
distil,

Drained by the pulses of the fevered
thrill ;

If sound's sweet effluence polarize thy brain,

And thoughts turn crystals in thy fluid
strain, —

Nor rolling ocean, nor the prairie's
bloom,

Nor streaming cliffs, nor rayless cavern's gloom,

Need'st thou, young poet, to inform thy
line ;

Thy own broad signet stamps thy song
divine !

Let others gaze where silvery streams are rolled,
And chase the rainbow for its cup of
gold ;

To thee all landscapes wear a heavenly dye,

Changed in the glance of thy prismatic
eye ;

Nature evoked thee in sublimer throes,
For thee her inmost Arethusa flows, —
The mighty mother's living depths are stirred, —

Thou art the starred Osiris of the herd !

A few brief lines ; they touch on solemn chords,

And hearts may leap to hear their honest words ;

Yet, ere the jarring bugle-blast is blown,
The softer lyre shall breathe its soothing tone.

New England ! proudly may thy children claim

Their honored birthright by its humblest name !

Cold are thy skies, but, ever fresh and clear,

No rank malaria stains thine atmosphere ;

No fungous weeds invade thy scanty
soil,

Scarred by the ploughshares of unslumbering toil.

Long may the doctrines by thy sages
taught,

Raised from the quarries where their sires have wrought,

Be like the granite of thy rock-ribbed
land, —

As slow to rear, as obdurate to stand :

And as the ice, that leaves thy crystal
mine,

Chills the fierce alcohol in the Creole's
wine,

So may the doctrines of thy sober school
Keep the hot theories of thy neighbors
cool !

If ever, trampling on her ancient path, Cankered by treachery, or inflamed by
wrath,

With smooth " Resolves," or with discordant cries,

The mad Briareus of disunion rise, Chiefs of New England ! by your sires'
renown,

Dash the red torches of the rebel down !
Flood his black hearthstone till its flames expire,

Though your old Sachem fanned his council-fire !

But if at last — her fading cycle run —

The tongue must forfeit what the arm has won,

Then rise, wild Ocean ! roll thy surging shock

Full on old Plymouth's desecrated rock !
Scale the proud shaft degenerate hands have hewn,

Where bleeding Valor stained the flowers of June !

Sweep in one tide her spires and turrets
down,

And howl her dirge above Monadnock's crown !

List not the tale ; the Pilgrim's hallowed shore,

Though strewn with weeds, is granite at the core ;

O rather trust that He who made her free Will keep her true, as long as faith shall
be !

Farewell! yet lingering through the destined hour,
Leave, sweet Enchantress, one memorial
flower!

An Angel, floating o'er the waste of snow
That clad our Western desert, long ago,
(The same fair spirit, who, unseen by day, Shone as a star along the Mayflower's way,)
Sent, the first herald of the Heavenly plan,
To choose on earth a resting-place for
man, —
Tired with his flight along the unvaried
field,
Turned to soar upwards, when his glance revealed
A calm, bright bay, enclosed in rocky bounds,
And at its entrance stood three sister mounds.

The Angel spake: "This threefold hill shall be
The home of Arts, the nurse of Liberty!
One stately summit from its shaft shall pour
Its deep-red blaze along the darkened
shore;
Emblem of thoughts, that, kindling far
and wide,
In danger's night shall be a nation's guide.
Oneswelling crest the citadel shall crown,
Its slanted bastions black with battle's frown,
And bid the sons that tread its scowling heights
Bare their strong arms for man and all his rights!
One silent steep along the northern wave Shall hold the patriarch's and the hero's
grave;

When fades the torch, when o'er the peaceful scene
The embattled fortress smiles in living
green,
The cross of Faith, the anchor staff of Hope,
Shall stand eternal on its grassy slope;
There through all time shall faithful Memory tell,
'Here Virtue toiled, and Patriot Valor
fell;
Thy free, proud fathers slumber at thy
side;
Live as they lived, or perish as they died!'"

AN AFTER-DINNER POEM.¹

(TERPSICHORE.)

IN narrowest girdle, O reluctant Muse,
In closest frock and Cinderella shoes, Bound to the foot-lights for thy brief display,
One zephyr step, and then dissolve away!

Short is the space that gods and men can spare
To Song's twin brother when she is not
there.
Let others water every lusty line,
As Homer's heroes did their purple
wine; Pierian revellers! Know in strains like these
The native juice, the real honest squeeze, —
Strains that, diluted to the twentieth
power,
In yon grave temple might have filled
an hour.

¹ Read at the Annual Dinner of the Φ B K Society, at Cambridge, August 24, 1843.

Small room for Fancy's many-chorded lyre,
 For Wit's bright rockets with their trains of fire,
 For Pathos, struggling vainly to surprise
 The iron tutor's tear-denying eyes,
 For Mirth, whose finger with delusive wile
 Turns the grim key of many a rusty smile,
 For Satire, emptying his corrosive flood
 On hissing Folly's gas-exhaling brood,
 The pun, the fun, the moral and the joke,
 The hit, the thrust, the pugilistic poke, —
 Small space for these, so pressed by niggard Time,
 Like that false matron, known to nursery rhyme, —
 Insidious Morey, — scarce her tale begun,
 Ere listening infants weep the story done.

O had we room to rip the mighty bags
 That Time, the harlequin, has stuffed with rags !
 Grant us one moment to unloose the strings,
 While the old graybeard shuts his leather wings.
 But what a heap of motley trash appears Crammed in the bundles of successive years !
 As the lost rustic on some festal day
 Stares through the coucourse in its vast array, —
 Where in one cake a throng of faces runs,
 All stuck together like a sheet of buns, —
 And throws the bait of some unheeded name,
 Or shoots a wink with most uncertain aim,

So roams my vision, wandering over all,
 And strives to choose, but knows not where to fall.

Skins of flayed authors, — husks of dead reviews, —
 The turn-coat's clothes, — the office-seeker's shoes, —
 Scraps from cold feasts, where conversation runs Through mouldy toasts to oxidated puns,
 And grating songs a listening crowd endures,
 Rasped from the throats of bellowing amateurs ; —
 Sermons, whose writers played such dangerous tricks
 Their own heresiarchs called them heretics (Strange that one term such distant poles should link, The Priestleyan's copper and the Puseyan's zinc) ; — Poems that shuffle with superfluous legs
 A blindfold minuet over addled eggs,
 Where all the syllables that end in éd,
 Like old dragons, have cuts across the head ; —
 Essays so dark Champollion might despair
 To guess what mummy of a thought was there,
 Where our poor English, striped with foreign phrase,
 Looks like a Zebra in a parson's chaise ; —
 Lectures that cut our dinners down to roots,
 Or prove (by monkeys) men should stick to fruits ;
 Delusive error, — as at trifling charge
 Professor Gripes will certify at large ; — Mesmeric pamphlets, which to facts appeal,
 Each fact as slippery as a fresh-caught eel ; —

And figured heads, whose hieroglyphs invite
 To wandering knaves that discount fools at sight ;—
 Such things as these, with heaps of unpaid bills,
 And candy puffs and homœopathic pills,
 And ancient bell-crowns with contracted rim,
 And bonnets hideous with expanded brim,
 And coats whose memory turns the sartor pale,
 Their sequels tapering like a lizard's tail ;—
 How might we spread them to the smiling day,
 And toss them, fluttering like the new-mown hay,
 To laughter's light or sorrow's pitying shower,
 Were these brief minutes lengthened to
 an hour.

The narrow moments fit like Sunday shoes,
 How vast the heap, how quickly must we choose ;
 A few small scraps from out his mountain mass
 We snatch in haste, and let the vagrant
 pass.

This shrunken CRUST that Cerberus could not bite,
 Stamped (in one corner) "Pickwick copyright," Kneaded by youngsters, raised by flattery's yeast,
 Was once a loaf, and helped to make a feast.
 He for whose sake the glittering show appears Has sown the world with laughter and with tears,

And they whose welcome wets the bumper's brim
 Have wit and wisdom, — for they all quote him.
 So, many a tongue the evening hour prolongs
 With spangled speeches, — let alone the songs, —
 Statesmen grow merry, lean attorneys
 laugh,
 And weak teetotals warm to half and half,
 And beardless Tullys, new to festive scenes,
 Cut their first crop of youth's precocious greens,
 And wits stand ready for impromptu claps,
 With loaded barrels and percussion caps,
 And Pathos, cantering through the minor keys,
 Waves all her onions to the trembling
 breeze ;
 While the great Feasted views with silent glee
 His scattered limbs in Yankee fricassee.

Sweet is the scene where genial friendship plays
 The pleasing game of interchanging
 praise ;
 Self-love, grimalkin of the human heart,
 Is ever pliant to the master's art ;
 Soothed with a word, she peacefully withdraws
 And sheathes in velvet her obnoxious claws,
 And thrills the hand that smooths her glossy fur
 With the light tremor of her grateful pur.

But what sad music fills the quiet hall,
 If on her back a feline rival fall ;

And O, what noises shake the tranquil house,
 If old Self-interest cheats her of a mouse !
 Then, O my country, hast thy foolish ways,
 Too apt to pur at every stranger's praise ;
 But, if the stranger touch thy modes or laws,
 Off goes the velvet and out come the claws !
 And thou, Illustrious ! but too poorly paid
 In toasts from Pickwick for thy great crusade,
 Though, while the echoes labored with thy name,
 The public trap denied thy little game,
 Let other lips our jealous laws revile, —
 The marble Talfourd or the rude Carlyle, —
 But on thy lids, which Heaven forbids to close
 Where'er the light of kindly nature glows, Let not the dollars that a churl denies Weigh like the shillings on a dead man's
 eyes !
 Or, if thou wilt, be more discreetly blind,
 Nor ask to see all wide extremes combined.
 Not in our wastes the dainty blossoms
 smile,
 That crowd the gardens of thy seanty isle.
 There white-cheeked Luxury weaves a thousand charms ; — Here sun-browned Labor swings his naked arms.
 Long are the furrows he must trace between
 The ocean's azure and the prairie's green ;
 Full many a blank his destined realm displays,
 Yet see the promise of his riper days :
 Far through yon depths the panting engine moves,

His chariots ringing in their steel-shod grooves ;
 And Eric's naiad flings her diamond wave O'er the wild sea-nymph in her distant cave !
 While tasks like these employ his anxious hours,
 What if his cornfields are not edged with flowers ?
 Though bright as silver the meridian
 beams
 Shine through the crystal of thine English streams,
 Turbid and dark the mighty wave is whirled
 That drains our Andes and divides a world !
 But lo ! a PARCHMENT ! Surely it would seem
 The sculptured impress speaks of power supreme ;
 Some grave design the solemn page must
 claim
 That shows so broadly an emblazoned
 name ;
 A sovereign's promise ! Look, the lines afford
 All Honor gives when Caution asks his
 word :
 There sacred Faith has laid her snow-white hands,
 And awful Justice knit her iron bands ;
 Yet every leaf is stained with treachery's
 dye,
 And every letter crusted with a lie.
 Alas ! no treason has degraded yet
 The Arab's salt, the Indian's calumet ;
 A simple rite, that bears the wanderer's pledge,
 Blunts the keen shaft and turns the dagger's edge ; —
 While 'jockeying senates stop to sign and seal,
 And freeborn statesmen legislate to steal.

Rise, Europe, tottering with thine Atlas load,
Turn thy proud eye to Freedom's blest abode,
And round her forehead, wreathed with heavenly flame,
Bind the dark garland of her daughter's shame!
Ye ocean clouds, that wrap the angry
blast,
Coil her stained ensign round its haughty
mast,
Or tear the fold that wears so foul a scar,
And drive a bolt through every blackened star!

Once more, — once only, — we must stop so soon, —

What have we here? A GERMAN-SIL-VER SPOON;

A cheap utensil, which we often see
Used by the dabblers in æsthetic tea,
Of slender fabric, somewhat light and thin,

Made of mixed metal, chiefly lead and tin;

The bowl is shallow, and the handle small,

Marked in large letters with the name
JEAN PAUL.

Small as it is, its powers are passing strange,

For all who use it show a wondrous
change;

And first, a fact to make the barbers
stare,

It beats Macassar for the growth of hair; See those small youngsters whose expansive ears

Maternal kindness grazed with frequent
shears;

Each bristling crop a dangling mass becomes,

And all the spoonies turn to Absaloms!

Nor this alone its magic power displays, It alters strangely all their works and
ways;

With uncouth words they tire their tender lungs,

The same bald phrases on their hundred tongues;

"Ever" "The Ages" in their page appear,

"Always" the bedlamite is called a
"Seer";

On every leaf the "earnest" sage may scan,

Portentous bore! their "many-sided"
man, —

A weak eclectic, groping vague and
dim,

Whose every angle is a half-starved whim,

Blind as a mole and curious as a lynx,
Who rides a beetle, which he calls a "Sphinx."

And O what questions asked in club-foot rhyme

Of Earth the tongueless and the deaf-mute Time!

Here babbling "Insight" shouts in Nature's ears

His last conundrum on the orbs and spheres;

There Self-inspection sucks its little thumb,

With "Whence am I?" and "Wherefore did I come?"

Deluded infants! will they ever know Some doubts must darken o'er the world
below,

Though all the Platos of the nursery trail

Their "clouds of glory" at the go-cart's tail?

O might these couplets their attention
claim,

That gain their author the Philistine's
name;

(A stubborn race, that, spurning foreign law,
Was much belabored with an ass's jaw !)

Melodious Laura! From the sad retreats
That hold thee, smothered with excess of sweets,

Shade of a shadow, spectre of a dream, Glance thy wan eye across the Stygian
stream !

The slip-shod dreamer treads thy fragrant halls,

The sophist's cobwebs hang thy roseate
walls,

And o'er the crotchets of thy jingling tunes

The bard of mystery scrawls his crooked
"runes."

Yes, thou art gone, with all the tuneful hordes

That candied thoughts in amber-colored words,

And in the precincts of thy late abodes
The clattering verse-wright hammers Orphic odes.

Thou, soft as zephyr, wast content to fly

On the gilt pinions of a balmy sigh ;
He, vast as Phœbus on his burning wheels,

Would stride through ether at Orion's heels ;

Thy emblem, Laura, was a perfume-jar,
And thine, young Orpheus, is a pewter star ;

The balance trembles, — be its verdict told

When the new jargon slumbers with the old!

Cease, playful goddess! From thine airy bound

Drop like a feather softly to the ground ;
This light bolero grows a ticklish dance,
And there is mischief in thy kindling
glance.

To-morrow bids thee, with rebuking
frown,

Change thy gauze tunic for a home-made gown,

Too blest by fortune, if the passing day
Adorn thy bosom with its frail bouquet,
But O still happier if the next forgets Thy daring steps and dangerous pirouettes !

THE MEETING OF THE DRYADS.¹

It was not many centuries since,
When, gathered on the moonlit green,
Beneath the Tree of Liberty,
A ring of weeping sprites was seen.

The freshman's lamp had long been dim,
The voice of busy day was mute,
And tortured Melody had ceased
Her sufferings on the evening flute.

They met not as they once had met,
To laugh o'er many a jocund tale :
But every pulse was beating low,
And every cheek was cold and pale.

There rose a fair but faded one,
Who oft had cheered them with her
song ;
She waved a mutilated arm,
And silence held the listening throng.

"Sweet friends," the gentle nymph began,
"From opening bud to withering leaf,
One common lot has bound us all,
In every change of joy and grief.

¹ Written after a general pruning of the trees around Harvard College.

"While all around has felt decay,
We rose in ever-living prime,
With broader shade and fresher green,
Beneath the crumbling step of Time.

"When often by our feet has past
Some biped, Nature's walking whim, Say, have we trimmed one awkward shape,
Or lopped away one crooked limb ?

"Go on, fair Science ; soon to thee Shall Nature yield her idle boast ;
Her vulgar fingers formed a tree,
But thou hast trained it to a post.

"Go, paint the birch's silver rind,
And quilt the peach with softer down ;
Up with the willow's trailing threads,
Off with the sunflower's radiant crown !

"Go, plant the lily on the shore,
And set the rose among the waves,
And bid the tropic bud unbind
Its silken zone in arctic caves ;

"Bring bellows for the panting winds,
Hang up a lantern by the moon,
And give the nightingale a fife,
And lend the eagle a balloon !

"I cannot smile, — the tide of scorn,
That rolled through every bleeding vein,
Comes kindling fiercer as it flows
Back to its burning source again.

"Again in every quivering leaf
That moment's agony I feel,
When limbs, that spurned the northern
blast,
Shrunk from the sacrilegious steel.

"A curse upon the wretch who dared
To crop us with his felon saw!
May every fruit his lip shall taste Lie like a bullet in his maw.

"In every julep that he drinks,
May gout, and bile, and headache be;
And when he strives to calm his pain,
May colic mingle with his tea.

"May nightshade cluster round his path,
And thistles shoot, and brambles cling;
May blistering ivy scorch his veins,
And dogwood burn, and nettles sting.

"On him may never shadow fall,
When fever racks his throbbing brow,
And his last shilling buy a rope
To hang him on my highest bough!"

She spoke; — the morning's herald beam
Sprang from the bosom of the sea,
And every mangled sprite returned In sadness to her wounded tree.¹

THE MYSTERIOUS VISITOR.

THERE was a sound of hurrying feet,
A tramp on echoing stairs,

¹ A little poem, on a similar occasion, may be found in the works of Swift, from which, perhaps, the idea was borrowed; although I was as much surprised as amused to meet with it some time after writing the preceding lines.

There was a rush along the aisles, —
It was the hour of prayers.

And on, like Ocean's midnight wave,
The current rolled along,
When, suddenly, a stranger form
Was seen amidst the throng.

He was a dark and swarthy man,
That uninvited guest;
A faded coat of bottle-green
Was buttoned round his breast.

There was not one among them all Could say from whence he came;
Nor beardless boy, nor ancient man,
Could tell that stranger's name.

All silent as the sheeted dead,
In spite of sneer and frown,
Fast by a gray-haired senior's side
He sat him boldly down.

There was a look of horror flashed
From out the tutor's eyes;
When all around him rose to pray,
The stranger did not rise!

A murmur broke along the crowd,
The prayer was at an end;
With ringing heels and measured tread,
A hundred forms descend.

Through sounding aisle, o'er grating stair,
The long procession poured,
Till all were gathered on the seats
Around the Commons board.

That fearful stranger! down he sat,
Unasked, yet undismayed;
And on his lip a rising smile
Of scorn or pleasure played.

He took his hat and hung it up,
With slow but earnest air;
He stripped his coat from off his back,
And placed it on a chair.

Then from his nearest neighbor's side
 A knife and plate he drew ;
 And, reaching out his hand again,
 He took his teacup too.

How fled the sugar from the bowl !
 How sunk the azure cream !
 They vanished like the shapes that float
 Upon a summer's dream.

A long, long draught, — an outstretched
 hand, —
 And crackers, toast, and tea,
 They faded from the stranger's touch,
 Like dew upon the sea.

Then clouds were dark on many a brow,
 Fear sat upon their souls,
 And, in a bitter agony,
 They clasped their buttered rolls.

A whisper trembled through the crowd, —
 Who could the stranger be ?
 And some were silent, for they thought
 A cannibal was he.

What if the creature should arise, —
 For he was stout and tall, —
 And swallow down a sophomore,
 Coat, crow's-foot, cap, and all !

All sullenly the stranger rose ;
 They sat in mute despair ;
 He took his hat from off the peg,
 His coat from off the chair.

Four freshmen fainted on the seat,
 Six swooned upon the floor ;
 Yet on the fearful being passed,
 And shut the chapel door.

There is full many a starving man,
 That walks in bottle green,
 But never more that hungry one
 In Commons-hall was seen.

Yet often at the sunset hour,
 When tolls the evening bell,
 The freshman lingers on the steps,
 That frightful tale to tell.

THE TOADSTOOL.

THERE 's a thing that grows by the fainting flower,
 And springs in the shade of the lady's bower ;
 The lily shrinks, and the rose turns pale,
 When they feel its breath in the summer gale,
 And the tulip curls its leaves in pride,
 And the blue-eyed violet starts aside ;
 But the lily may flaunt, and the tulip
 stare,
 For what does the honest toadstool care ?

She does not glow in a painted vest,
 And she never blooms on the maiden's
 breast ;
 But she comes, as the saintly sisters do,
 In a modest suit of a Quaker hue.
 And, when the stars in the evening skies
 Are weeping dew from their gentle eyes,
 The toad comes out from his hermit cell,
 The tale of his faithful love to tell.

O there is light in her lover's glance,
 That flies to her heart like a silver lance ;
 His breeches are made of spotted skin,
 His jacket is tight, and his pumps are
 thin ;
 In a cloudless night you may hear his
 song,
 As its pensive melody floats along,
 And, if you will look by the moonlight
 fair,
 The trembling form of the toad is there.
 And he twines his arms round her slender stem,
 In the shade of her velvet diadem ;

But she turns away in her maiden shame,
 And will not breathe on the kindling
 flame ;
 He sings at her feet through the livelong night,
 And creeps to his cave at the break of
 light ;
 And whenever he comes to the air above,
 His throat is swelling with baffled love.

THE SPECTRE PIG.

A BALLAD.

It was the stalwart butcher man,
 That knit his swarthy brow,
 And said the gentle Pig must die,
 And sealed it with a vow.

And oh ! it was the gentle Pig
 Lay stretched upon the ground,
 And ah ! it was the cruel knife
 His little heart that found.

They took him then, those wicked men,
 They trailed him all along ;
 They put a stick between his lips,
 And through his heels a thong ;

And round and round an oaken beam
 A hempen cord they flung,
 And, like a mighty pendulum,
 All solemnly he swung !

Now say thy prayers, thou sinful man,
 And think what thou hast done,
 And read thy catechism well,
 Thou bloody-minded one ;

For if his sprite should walk by night,
 It better were for thee,
 That thou wert mouldering in the
 ground,
 Or bleaching in the sea.

It was the savage butcher then,
 That made a mock of sin,
 And swore a very wicked oath,
 He did not care a pin.

It was the butcher's youngest son, —
 His voice was broke with sighs,
 And with his pocket-handkerchief
 He wiped his little eyes ;

All young and ignorant was he,
 But innocent and mild,
 And, in his soft simplicity,
 Out spoke the tender child :—

“O father, father, list to me ;
 The Pig is deadly sick,
 And men have hung him by his heels,
 And fed him with a stick.”

It was the bloody butcher then,
 That laughed as he would die,
 Yet did he soothe the sorrowing child,
 And bid him not to cry ;—

“O Nathan, Nathan, what 's a Pig,
 That thou shouldst weep and wail ?
 Come, bear thee like a butcher's child,
 And thou shalt have his tail !”

It was the butcher's daughter then,
 So slender and so fair,
 That sobbed as if her heart would break,
 And tore her yellow hair ;

And thus she spoke in thrilling tone, —
 Fast fell the tear-drops big ;— “Ah ! woe is me ! Alas ! Alas !
 The Pig ! The Pig ! The Pig !”

Then did her wicked father's lips
 Make merry with her woe,
 And call her many a naughty name,
 Because she whimpered so.

Ye need not weep, ye gentle ones,
 In vain your tears are shed,
 Ye cannot wash his crimson hand,
 Ye cannot soothe the dead.

The bright sun folded on his breast
 His robes of rosy flame,
 And softly over all the west
 The shades of evening came

He slept, and troops of murdered Pigs
 Were busy with his dreams ;
 Loud rang their wild, unearthly shrieks,
 Wide yawned their mortal seams.

The clock struck twelve ; the Dead hath
 heard ;
 He opened both his eyes,
 And sullenly he shook his tail
 To lash the feeding flies.

One quiver of the hempen cord, —
 One struggle and one bound, —
 With stiffened limb and leaden eye,
 The Pig was on the ground !

And straight towards the sleeper's house
 His fearful way he wended ;
 And hooting owl, and hovering bat,
 On midnight wing attended.

Back flew the bolt, up rose the latch,
 And open swung the door,
 And little mincing feet were heard
 Pat, pat along the floor.

Two hoofs upon the sanded floor,
 And two upon the bed ;
 And they are breathing side by side,
 The living and the dead !

“Now wake, now wake, thou butcher
 man !
 What makes thy cheek so pale ?
 Take hold ! take hold ! thou dost not fear
 To clasp a spectre's tail ?”

Untwisted every winding coil ;
 The shuddering wretch took hold,
 All like an icicle it seemed,
 So tapering and so cold.

“Thou com'st with me, thou butcher
 man !” —

He strives to loose his grasp,
 But, faster than the clinging vine,
 Those twining spirals clasp.

And open, open swung the door,
 And, fleeter than the wind,
 The shadowy spectre swept before,
 The butcher trailed behind.

Fast fled the darkness of the night,
 And morn rose faint and dim ;
 They called full loud, they knocked full
 long,
 They did not waken him.

Straight, straight towards that oaken
 beam,
 A trampled pathway ran ;
 A ghastly shape was swinging there, —
 It was the butcher man.

TO A CAGED LION.

Poor conquered monarch ! though that haughty glance
 Still speaks thy courage unsubdued by time,
 And in the grandeur of thy sullen tread Lives the proud spirit of thy burning clime ; —
 Fettered by things that shudder at thy roar,
 Torn from thy pathless wilds to pace this narrow floor !

Thou wast the victor, and all nature shrunk
 Before the thunders of thine awful
 wrath ;

The steel-armed hunter viewed thee from afar,
 Fearless and trackless in thy lonely
 path !
 The famished tiger closed his flaming
 eye,
 And crouched and panted as thy step went by !

Thou art the vanquished, and insulting
 man
 Bars thy broad bosom as a sparrow's wing ;
 His nerveless arms thine iron sinews bind,
 And lead in chains the desert's fallen
 king ;
 Are these the beings that have dared to twine
 Their feeble threads around those limbs of thine ?

So must it be ; the weaker, wiser race,
 That wields the tempest and that rides
 the sea,
 Even in the stillness of thy solitude Must teach the lesson of its power to thee ;
 And thou, the terror of the trembling
 wild,
 Must bow thy savage strength, the mockery of a child !

THE STAR AND THE WATER-LILY.

THE sun stepped down from his golden
 throne,
 And lay in the silent sea,
 And the Lily had folded her satin leaves,
 For a sleepy thing was she ;
 What is the Lily dreaming of ?
 Why crisp the waters blue ?
 See, see, she is lifting her varnished lid !
 Her white leaves are glistening
 through !

The Rose is cooling his burning cheek
 In the lap of the breathless tide ; —
 The Lily hath sisters fresh and fair,
 That would lie by the Rose's side ;
 Hewould love her better than all the rest,
 And he would be fond and true ; —
 But the Lily unfolded her weary lids,
 And looked at the sky so blue.

Remember, remember, thou silly one,
 How fast will thy summer glide,
 And wilt thou wither a virgin pale,
 Or flourish a blooming bride ?
 "O the Rose is old, and thorny, and cold,
 And he lives on earth," said she ;
 "But the Star is fair and he lives in
 the air,
 And he shall my bridegroom be."

But what if the stormy cloud should come,
 And ruffle the silver sea ?
 Would he turn his eye from the distant
 sky,
 To smile on a thing like thee ?
 O no, fair Lily, he will not send One ray from his far-off throne ;
 The winds shall blow and the waves shall flow,
 And thou wilt be left alone.

There is not a leaf on the mountain-top
 Nor a drop of evening dew, Nor a golden sand on the sparkling
 shore,
 Nor a pearl in the waters blue,
 That he has not cheered with his fickle
 smile,
 And warmed with his faithless
 beam, —
 And will he be true to a pallid flower,
 That floats on the quiet stream ?

Alas for the Lily ! she would not heed,
 But turned to the skies afar,

And bared her breast to the trembling
ray
That shot from the rising star ;
The cloud came over the darkened sky,
And over the waters wide :
She looked in vain through the beating rain,
And sank in the stormy tide.

“A SPANISH GIRL IN REVERIE.”

SHE twirled the string of golden beads,
That round her neck was hung, —
My grandsire's gift ; the good old man Loved girls when he was young ;
And, bending lightly o'er the cord,
And turning half away,
With something like a youthful sigh,
Thus spoke the maiden gray : —

“ Well, one may trail her silken robe,
And bind her locks with pearls,
And one may wreath the woodland rose
Among her floating curls ;
And one may tread the dewy grass,
And one the marble floor,
Nor half-hid bosom heave the less,
Nor brodered corset more !

“ Some years ago, a dark-eyed girl
Was sitting in the shade, —
There's something brings her to my mind
In that young dreaming maid, —
And in her hand she held a flower,
A flower, whose speaking hue
Said, in the language of the heart,
' Believe the giver true.' ”

“ And, as she looked upon its leaves,
The maiden made a vow
To wear it when the bridal wreath
Was woven for her brow ;

She watched the flower, as, day by day,
The leaflets curled and died ;
But he who gave it never came
To claim her for his bride.

“ O many a summer's morning glow
Has lent the rose its ray,
And many a winter's drifting snow
Has swept its bloom away ;
But she has kept that faithless pledge
To this, her winter hour,
And keeps it still, herself alone,
And wasted like the flower.”

Her pale lip quivered, and the light
Gleamed in her moistening eyes ; —
I asked her how she liked the tints
In those Castilian skies ?
“ She thought them misty, — 't was perhaps Because she stood too near ” ;
She turned away, and as she turned
I saw her wipe a tear.

A ROMAN AQUEDUCT.

THE sun-browned girl, whose limbs re-cline
When noon her languid hand has laid Hot on the green flakes of the pine,
Beneath its narrow disk of shade ;

As, through the flickering noontide glare,
She gazes on the rainbow chain
Of arches, lifting once in air
The rivers of the Roman's plain ; —

Say, does her wandering eye recall
The mountain-current's icy wave, —
Or for the dead one tear let fall, Whose founts are broken by their grave ?

From stone to stone the ivy weaves
Her braided tracery's winding veil,

And lacing stalks and tangled leaves
Nod heavy in the drowsy gale.

And lightly floats the pendent vine,
That swings beneath her slender bow, Arch answering arch, — whose rounded
line
Seems mirrored in the wreath below.

How patient Nature smiles at Fame!
The weeds, that strewed the victor's
way,
Feed on his dust to shroud his name,
Green where his proudest towers decay.

See, through that channel, empty now,
The scanty rain its tribute pours, —
Which cooled the lip and laved the brow
Of conquerors from a hundred shores.

Thus bending o'er the nation's bier, Whose wants the captive earth supplied,
The dew of Memory's passing tear
Falls on the arches of her pride!

FROM A BACHELOR'S PRIVATE JOURNAL.

SWEET Mary, I have never breathed
The love it were in vain to name;
Though round my heart a serpent wreathed,
I smiled, or strove to smile, the same.

Once more the pulse of Nature glows
With faster throb and fresher fire,
While music round her pathway flows,
Like echoes from a hidden lyre.

And is there none with me to share
The glories of the earth and sky?
The eagle through the pathless air
Is followed by one burning eye.

Ah no! the cradled flowers may wake,
Again may flow the frozen sea,
From every cloud a star may break, —
There comes no second Spring to me.

Go, — ere the painted toys of youth
Are crushed beneath the tread of years;
Ere visions have been chilled to truth,
And hopes are washed away in tears.

Go, — for I will not bid thee weep, —
Too soon my sorrows will be thine,
And evening's troubled air shall sweep
The incense from the broken shrine.

If Heaven can hear the dying tone
Of chords that soon will cease to thrill,
The prayer that Heaven has heard alone May bless thee when those chords are still.

LA GRISETTE.

AH Clemence! when I saw thee last Trip down the Rue de Seine,
And turning, when thy form had past,
I said, "We meet again," —
I dreamed not in that idle glance
Thy latest image came,
And only left to memory's trance
A shadow and a name.

The few strange words my lips had taught
Thy timid voice to speak,
Their gentler signs, which often brought Fresh roses to thy cheek,
The trailing of thy long loose hair
Bent o'er my couch of pain,
All, all returned, more sweet, more fair;
O had we met again!

I walked where saint and virgin keep
The vigil lights of Heaven,
I knew that thou hadst woes to weep,
And sins to be forgiven;

“Ah Clemence! when I saw thee last.”

I watched where Genevieve was laid,
 I knelt by Mary's shrine,
 Beside me low, soft voices prayed;
 Alas! but where was thine?

And when the morning sun was bright,
 When wind and wave were calm,
 And flamed, in thousand-tinted light,
 The rose of Notre Dame,
 I wandered through the haunts of men,
 From Boulevard to Quai, Till, frowning o'er Saint Etienne,
 The Pantheon's shadow lay.

In vain, in vain; we meet no more,
 Nor dream what fates befall;
 And long upon the stranger's shore
 My voice on thee may call,
 When years have clothed the line in moss
 That tells thy name and days,
 And withered, on thy simple cross,
 The wreaths of Pere-la-Chaise!

OUR YANKEE GIRLS.

LET greener lands and bluer skies,
 If such the wide earth shows,
 With fairer cheeks and brighter eyes,
 Match us the star and rose;
 The winds that lift the Georgian's veil,
 Or wave Circassia's curls,
 Waft to their shores the sultan's sail,—
 Who buys our Yankee girls?

The gay grisette, whose fingers touch
 Love's thousand chords so well;
 The dark Italian, loving much,
 But more than one can tell;
 And England's fair-haired, blue-eyed dame,
 Who binds her brow with pearls;—
 Ye who have seen them, can they shame
 Our own sweet Yankee girls?

And what if court or castle vaunt
 Its children loftier born?—
 Who heeds the silken tassel's flaunt
 Beside the golden corn?
 They ask not for the dainty toil
 Of ribboned knights and earls,
 The daughters of the virgin soil,
 Our freeborn Yankee girls!

By every hill whose stately pines
 Wave their dark arms above
 The home where some fair being shines,
 To warm the wilds with love,
 From barest rock to bleakest shore
 Where farthest sail unfurls,
 That stars and stripes are streaming o'er,—
 God bless our Yankee girls!

L'INCONNUE.

Is thy name Mary, maiden fair?
 Such should, methinks, its music be;
 The sweetest name that mortals bear
 Were best befitting thee;
 And she to whom it once was given,
 Was half of earth and half of heaven.

I hear thy voice, I see thy smile,
 I look upon thy folded hair;
 Ah! while we dream not they beguile,
 Our hearts are in the snare;
 And she who chains a wild bird's wing
 Must start not if her captive sing.

So, lady, take the leaf that falls,
 To all but thee unseen, unknown;
 When evening shades thy silent walls,
 Then read it all alone;
 In stillness read, in darkness seal,
 Forget, despise, but not reveal!

STANZAS.

STRANGE ! that one lightly whispered
tone

Is far, far sweeter unto me,
Than all the sounds that kiss the earth,
Or breathe along the sea ;
But, lady, when thy voice I greet,
Not heavenly music seems so sweet.

I look upon the fair blue skies,
And naught but empty air I see ;
But when I turn me to thine eyes,
It seemeth unto me
Ten thousand angels spread their wings
Within those little azure rings.

The lily hath the softest leaf
That ever western breeze hath fanned,
But thou shalt have the tender flower,
So I may take thy hand ;
That little hand to me doth yield
More joy than all the broidered field.

O lady ! there be many things
That seem right fair, below, above ;
But sure not one among them all
Is half so sweet as love ;—
Let us not pay our vows alone,
But join two altars both in one.

LINES BY A CLERK.

OH ! I did love her dearly,
And gave her toys and rings,
And I thought she meant sincerely,
When she took my pretty things.
But her heart has grown as icy
As a fountain in the fall,
And her love, that was so spicy,
It did not last at all.

I gave her once a locket,
It was filled with my own hair,

And she put it in her pocket
With very special care.
But a jeweller has got it, —
He offered it to me,
And another that is not it Around her neck I see.

For my cooings and my billings
I do not now complain,
But my dollars and my shillings
Will never come again ;
They were earned with toil and sorrow,
But I never told her that,
And now I have to borrow,
And want another hat.

Think, think, thou cruel Emma,
When thou shalt hear my woe,
And know my sad dilemma,
That thou hast made it so.
See, see my beaver rusty,
Look, look upon this hole,
This coat is dim and dusty ;
O let it rend thy soul !

Before the gates of fashion
I daily bent my knee,
But I sought the shrine of passion,
And found my idol, — thee.
Though never love intenser
Had bowed a soul before it,
Thine eye was on the censor,
And not the hand that bore it.

THE PHILOSOPHER TO HIS LOVE.

DEAREST, a look is but a ray Reflected in a certain way ;
A word, whatever tone it wear,
Is but a trembling wave of air ;
A touch, obedience to a clause
In nature's pure material laws.

The very flowers that bend and meet,
In sweetening others, grow more sweet ;

The clouds by day, the stars by night,
Inweave their floating locks of light ;
The rainbow, Heaven's own forehead's
braid,
Is but the embrace of sun and shade.

How few that love us have we found !
How wide the world that girds them
round !

Like mountain streams we meet and part,
Each living in the other's heart,
Our course unknown, our hope to be Yet mingled in the distant sea.

But Ocean coils and heaves in vain,
Bound in the subtle moonbeam's chain ;
And love and hope do but obey
Some cold, capricious planet's ray,
Which lights and leads the tide it charms
To Death's dark caves and icy arms.

Alas ! one narrow line is drawn,
That links our sunset with our dawn ;
In mist and shade life's morning rose,
And clouds are round it at its close ;
But ah ! no twilight beam ascends
To whisper where that evening ends.

Oh ! in the hour when I shall feel Those shadows round my senses steal,
When gentle eyes are weeping o'er
The clay that feels their tears no more,
Then let thy spirit with me be,
Or some sweet angel, likest thee !

THE POET'S LOT.

WHAT is a poet's love ? —
To write a girl a sonnet,
To get a ring, or some such thing,
And fustianize upon it.

What is a poet's fame ? —
Sad hints about his reason,

And sadder praise from garreteers,
To be returned in season.

Where go the poet's lines ? —
Answer, ye evening tapers !
Ye auburn locks, ye golden curls,
Speak from your folded papers !

Child of the ploughshare, smile ;
Boy of the counter, grieve not,
Though muses round thy trundle-bed
Their brodered tissue weave not.

The poet's future holds
No civic wreath above him ;
Nor slated roof, nor varnished chaise,
Nor wife nor child to love him.

Maid of the village inn,
Who werkest woe on satin,
(The grass in black, the graves in green,
The epitaph in Latin,)

Trust not to them who say,
In stanzas, they adore thee ;
O rather sleep in churchyard clay,
With urn and cherub o'er thee !

TO A BLANK SHEET OF PAPER.

WAN-VISAGED thing ! thy virgin leaf
To me looks more than deadly pale, Unknowing what may stain thee yet, —
A poem or a tale.

Who can thy unborn meaning scan ?
Can Seer or Sibyl read thee now ?
No, — seek to trace the fate of man
Writ on his infant brow.

Love may light on thy snowy cheek,
And shake his Eden-breathing plumes ;
Then shalt thou tell how Lelia smiles,
Or Angelina blooms.

Satire may lift his bearded lance, Forestalling Time's slow-moving scythe,

And, scattered on thy little field,
 Disjointed bards may writhe.

Perchance a vision of the night,
 Some grizzled spectre, gaunt and thin,
 Or sheeted corpse, may stalk along,
 Or skeleton may grin !

If it should be in pensive hour
 Some sorrow-moving theme I try,
 Ah, maiden, how thy tears will fall,
 For all I doom to die !

But if in merry mood I touch Thy leaves, then shall the sight of
 thee
 Sow smiles as thick on rosy lips
 As ripples on the sea.

The Weekly press shall gladly stoop
 To bind thee up among its sheaves ;
 The Daily steal thy shining ore,
 To gild its leaden leaves.

Thou hast no tongue, yet thou canst speak,
 Till distant shores shall hear the
 sound ;
 Thou hast no life, yet thou canst breathe
 Fresh life on all around.

Thou art the arena of the wise,
 The noiseless battle-ground of fame ;
 The sky where halos may be wreathed
 Around the humblest name.

Take, then, this treasure to thy trust,
 To win some idle reader's smile,
 Then fade and moulder in the dust,
 Or swell some bonfire's pile.

TO THE PORTRAIT OF "A GENTLE- MAN."

IN THE ATHENÆUM GALLERY.

It may be so, — perhaps thou hast
 A warm and loving heart ;
 I will not blame thee for thy face,
 Poor devil as thou art.

That thing, thou fondly deem'st a nose, Unsightly though it be, —
 In spite of all the cold world's scorn,
 It may be much to thee.

Those eyes, — among thine elder friends
 Perhaps they pass for blue, —
 No matter, — if a man can see,
 What more have eyes to do ?

Thy mouth, — that fissure in thy face,
 By something like a chin, —
 May be a very useful place
 To put thy victual in.

I know thou hast a wife at home,
 I know thou hast a child,
 By that subdued, domestic smile
 Upon thy features mild.

That wife sits fearless by thy side,
 That cherub on thy knee ;
 They do not shudder at thy looks,
 They do not shrink from thee.

Above thy mantel is a hook, —
 A portrait once was there ;
 It was thine only ornament, —
 Alas ! that hook is bare.

She begged thee not to let it go,
 She begged thee all in vain ;
 She wept, — and breathed a trembling prayer
 To meet it safe again.

It was a bitter sight to see
That picture torn away ;
It was a solemn thought to think What all her friends would say !

And often in her calmer hours,
And in her happy dreams,
Upon its long-deserted hook
The absent portrait seems.

Thy wretched infant turns his head
In melancholy wise,
And looks to meet the placid stare
Of those unbending eyes.

I never saw thee, lovely one, — Perchance I never may ;
It is not often that we cross
Such people in our way ;

But if we meet in distant years,
Or on some foreign shore,
Sure I can take my Bible oath,
I've seen that face before.

THE BALLAD OF THE OYSTERMAN.

It was a tall young oysterman lived by the river-side,
His shop was just upon the bank, his boat was on the tide ;
The daughter of a fisherman, that was so straight and slim,
Lived over on the other bank, right opposite to him.

It was the pensive oysterman that saw a lovely maid,
Upon a moonlight evening, a sitting in the shade ;
He saw her wave her handkerchief, as much as if to say, “I'm wide awake, young oysterman, and all the folks away.”

Then up arose the oysterman, and to himself said he,
“I guess I'll leave the skiff at home, for fear that folks should see ;
I read it in the story-book, that, for to kiss his dear, Leander swam the Hellespont, — and I will swim this here.”

And he has leaped into the waves, and crossed the shining stream,
And he has clambered up the bank, all in the moonlight gleam ; O there were kisses sweet as dew, and words as soft as rain, —
But they have heard her father's step, and in he leaps again !

Out spoke the ancient fisherman, — “O what was that, my daughter ?” “'T was nothing but a pebble, sir, I threw into the water.”
“And what is that, pray tell me, love, that paddles off so fast ?” “It's nothing but a porpoise, sir, that's been a swimming past.”

Out spoke the ancient fisherman, —
“Now bring me my harpoon !
I'll get into my fishing-boat, and fix the fellow soon.”
Down fell that pretty innocent, as falls
a snow-white lamb,
Her hair drooped round her pallid cheeks, like seaweed on a clam.

Alas for those two loving ones ! she waked not from her swoond,
And he was taken with the cramp, and in the waves was drowned ;
But Fate has metamorphosed them, in pity of their woe,
And now they keep an oyster-shop for mermaids down below.

A NOONTIDE LYRIC.

THE dinner-bell, the dinner-bell
Is ringing loud and clear ;
Through hill and plain, through street and lane,

It echoes far and near ;
From curtained hall and whitewashed stall,

Wherever men can hide,
Like bursting waves from ocean caves,
They float upon the tide.

I smell the smell of roasted meat !
I hear the hissing fry !
The beggars know where they can go,
But where, O where shall I ?
At twelve o'clock men took my hand,
At two they only stare,
And eye me with a fearful look,
As if I were a bear !

The poet lays his laurels down,
And hastens to his greens ;
The happy tailor quits his goose,
To riot on his beans ;
The weary cobbler snaps his thread,
The printer leaves his pi ;
His very devil hath a home,
But what, O what have I ?

Methinks I hear an angel voice,
That softly seems to say :
"Pale stranger, all may yet be well,
Then wipe thy tears away ;
Erect thy head, and cock thy hat,
And follow me afar,
And thou shalt have a jolly meal,
And charge it at the bar."

I hear the voice ! I go ! I go !
Prepare your meat and wine !
They little heed their future need,
Who pay not when they dine.

Give me to-day the rosy bowl,
Give me one golden dream, —
To-morrow kick away the stool,
And dangle from the beam !

THE HOT SEASON.

THE folks, that on the first of May Wore winter coats and hose, Began to say, the first of June,
"Good Lord ! how hot it grows !"
At last two Fahrenheits blew up,
And killed two children small,
And one barometer shot dead
A tutor with its ball !

Now all day long the locusts sang
Among the leafless trees ;
Three new hotels warped inside out,
The pumps could only wheeze ;
And ripe old wine, that twenty years
Had cobwebbed o'er in vain,
Came spouting through the rotten corks,
Like Joly's best Champagne !

The Worcester locomotives did
Their trip in half an hour ;
The Lowell cars ran forty miles
Before they checked the power ;
Roll brimstone soon became a drug,
And loco-focos fell ;
All asked for ice, but everywhere
Saltpetre was to sell.

Plump men of mornings ordered tights,
But, ere the scorching noons,
Their candle-moulds had grown as loose
As Cossack pantaloons !
The dogs ran mad, — men could not try
If water they would choose ;
A horse fell dead, — he only left Four red-hot, rusty shoes !

But soon the people could not bear
The slightest hint of fire ;

“ And now they keep an oyster-shop for mermaids down below.”

Allusions to caloric drew
 A flood of savage ire ;
 The leaves on heat were all torn out
 From every book at school,
 And many blackguards kicked and caned,
 Because they said, "Keep cool !"

The gas-light companies were mobbed,
 The bakers all were shot,
 The penny press began to talk
 Of Lynching Doctor Nott ;
 And all about the warehouse steps
 Were angry men in droves, Crashing and splintering through the doors
 To smash the patent stoves !

The abolition men and maids
 Were tanned to such a hue, You scarce could tell them from their friends,
 Unless their eyes were blue ;
 And, when I left, society
 Had burst its ancient guards,
 And Brattle Street and Temple Place
 Were interchanging cards !

A PORTRAIT.

A STILL sweet, placid, moonlight face,
 And slightly nonchalant,
 Which seems to claim a middle place Between one's love and aunty,
 Where childhood's star has left a ray
 In woman's sunniest sky,
 As morning dew and blushing day
 On fruit and blossom lie.

And yet, — and yet I cannot love
 Those lovely lines on steel ;
 They beam too much of heaven above,
 Earth's darker shades to feel ;

Perchance some early weeds of care
 Around my heart have grown,
 And brows unfurrowed seem not fair,
 Because they mock my own.

Alas ! when Eden's gates were sealed,
 How oft some sheltered flower Breathed o'er the wanderers of the field,
 Like their own bridal bower ;
 Yet, saddened by its loveliness,
 And humbled by its pride, Earth's fairest child they could not bless, —
 It mocked them when they sighed.

AN EVENING THOUGHT.

WRITTEN AT SEA.

IF sometimes in the dark blue eye,
 Or in the deep red wine,
 Or soothed by gentlest melody,
 Still warms this heart of mine,
 Yet something colder in the blood,
 And calmer in the brain,
 Have whispered that my youth's bright flood Ebbs, not to flow again.

If by Helvetia's azure lake,
 Or Arno's yellow stream,
 Each star of memory could awake,
 As in my first young dream,
 I know that when mine eye shall greet
 The hillsides bleak and bare,
 That gird my home, it will not meet
 My childhood's sunsets there.

O when love's first, sweet, stolen kiss
 Burned on my boyish brow,
 Was that young forehead worn as
 this ?
 Was that flushed cheek as now ?

Were that wild pulse and throbbing
heart

Like these, which vainly strive,
In thankless strains of soulless art,
To dream themselves alive ?

Alas ! the morning dew is gone,
Gone ere the full of day ;
Life's iron fetter still is on,
Its wreaths all torn away ;
Happy if still some casual hour
Can warm the fading shrine,
Too soon to chill beyond the power
Of love, or song, or wine !

THE WASP AND THE HORNET.

THE two proud sisters of the sea,
In glory and in doom ! — Well may the eternal waters be Their broad, unsculptured tomb !
The wind that rings along the wave,
The clear, unshadowed sun,
Are torch and trumpet o'er the brave,
Whose last green wreath is won !

No stranger-hand their banners furled,
No victor's shout they heard ;
Unseen, above them ocean curled,
Save by his own pale bird ;
The gnashing billows heaved and fell ;
Wild shrieked the midnight gale ;
Far, far beneath the morning swell
Were pennon, spar, and sail.

The land of Freedom ! Sea and shore
Are guarded now, as when Her ebbing waves to victory bore
Fair barks and gallant men ;
O many a ship of prouder name
May wave her starry fold,
Nor trail, with deeper light of fame,
The paths they swept of old !

"QUI VIVE."

"Qui vive !" The sentry's musket
rings,

The channelled bayonet gleams ;
High o'er him, like a raven's wings
The broad tricolored banner flings
Its shadow, rustling as it swings
Pale in the moonlight beams ;
Pass on ! while steel-clad sentries keep Their vigil o'er the monarch's sleep,
Thy bare, unguarded breast
Asks not the unbroken, bristling zone
That girds yon sceptred trembler's
throne ; —
Pass on, and take thy rest !

"Qui vive !" How oft the midnight
air

That startling cry has borne !
How oft the evening breeze has fanned
The banner of this haughty land,
O'er mountain snow and desert sand,
Ere yet its folds were torn !
Through Jena's carnage flying red,
Or tossing o'er Marengo's dead,
Or curling on the towers
Where Austria's eagle quivers yet,
And suns the ruffled plumage, wet
With battle's crimson showers !

"Qui vive !" And is the sentry's
cry, —

The sleepless soldier's hand, —
Are these — the painted folds that fly
And lift their emblems, printed high
On morning mist and sunset sky —
The guardians of a land ?
No ! If the patriot's pulses sleep,
How vain the watch that hirelings keep, —
The idle flag that waves,
When Conquest, with his iron heel,
Treads down the standards and the steel
That belt the soil of slaves !

“ Helvetia’s azure lake.”

SONGS IN MANY KEYS.

SONGS IN MANY KEYS.

THE piping of our slender, peaceful reeds
Whispers uncared for while the trumpets bray;
Song is thin air; our hearts' exulting play
Beats time but to the tread of marching deeds, Following the mighty van that Freedom leads,
Her glorious standard flaming to the day!
The crimsoned pavement where a hero bleeds
Breathes nobler lessons than the poet's lay.
Strong arms, broad breasts, brave hearts, are better worth
Than strains that sing the ravished echoes dumb.
Hark! 't is the loud reverberating drum
Rolls o'er the prairied West, the rock-bound North:
The myriad-handed Future stretches forth
Its shadowy palms. Behold, we come, — we come!

Turn o'er these idle leaves. Such toys as these Were not unsought for, as, in languid dreams,
We lay beside our lotus-feeding streams,
And nursed our fancies in forgetful ease.
It matters little if they pall or please,
Dropping untimely, while the sudden gleams Glare from the mustering clouds whose blackness seems Too swollen to hold its lightning from the trees.
Yet, in some lull of passion, when at last
These calm revolving moons that come and go — Turning our months to years, they creep so slow —
Have brought us rest, the not unwelcome past
May flutter to thee through these leaflets, cast
On the wild winds that all around us blow.

AGNES.

PART FIRST.

THE KNIGHT.

THE tale I tell is gospel true,
As all the bookmen know,
And pilgrims who have strayed to view
The wrecks still left to show.

The old, old story, — fair, and young,
And fond, — and not too wise, —
That matrons tell, with sharpened
tongue,
To maids with downcast eyes.

Ah ! maidens err and matrons warn Beneath the coldest sky ;
Love lurks amid the tasselled corn
As in the bearded rye !

But who would dream our sober sires
Had learned the old world's ways,
And warmed their hearths with lawless fires
In Shirley's homespun days ?

'T is like some poet's pictured trance
His idle rhymes recite, —
This old New-England-born romance
Of Agnes and the Knight ;

Yet, known to all the country round,
Their home is standing still,
Between Wachuset's lonely mound
And Shawmut's threefold hill.

— One hour we rumble on the rail,
One half-hour guide the rein,
We reach at last, o'er hill and dale,
The village on the plain.

With blackening wall and mossy roof,
With stained and warping floor,
A stately mansion stands aloof
And bars its haughty door.

This lowlier portal may be tried,
That breaks the gable wall ;
And lo ! with arches opening wide,
Sir Harry Frankland's hall !

'T was in the second George's day
They sought the forest shade,
The knotted trunks they cleared away,
The massive beams they laid,

They piled the rock-hewn chimney tall,
They smoothed the terraced ground,
They reared the marble-pillared wall
That fenced the mansion round.

Far stretched beyond the village bound
The Master's broad domain ;

With page and valet, horse and hound,
He kept a goodly train.

And, all the midland county through,
The ploughman stopped to gaze
Whene'er his chariot swept in view
Behind the shining bays,

With mute obeisance, grave and slow,
Repaid by nod polite, —
For such the way with high and low Till after Concord fight.

Nor less to courtly circles known
That graced the three-hilled town
With far-off splendors of the Throne,
And glimmerings from the Crown ;

Wise Phipps, who held the seals of state
For Shirley over sea ;
Brave Knowles, whose press-gang moved of late
The King Street mob's decree ;

And judges grave, and colonels grand,
Fair dames and stately men,
The mighty people of the land,
The "World" of there and then.

'T was strange no Chloe's "beauteous Form,"
And "Eyes' celestial Blew,"
This Strephon of the West could warm,
No Nymph his Heart subdue !

Perchance he wooed as gallants use,
Whom fleeting loves enchain,
But still unfettered, free to choose,
Would brook no bridle-rein.

He saw the fairest of the fair,
But smiled alike on all ;
No band his roving foot might snare,
No ring his hand enthrall.

PART SECOND.

THE MAIDEN.

WHY seeks the knight that rocky cape
Beyond the Bay of Lynn ?
What chance his wayward course may shape
To reach its village inn ?

No story tells ; whate'er we guess,
The past lies deaf and still,
But Fate, who rules to blight or bless,
Can lead us where she will.

Make way ! Sir Harry's coach and four,
And liveried grooms that ride !
They cross the ferry, touch the shore
On Winnisimmet's side.

They hear the wash on Chelsea Beach, —
The level marsh they pass,
Where miles on miles the desert reach
Is rough with bitter grass.

The shining horses foam and pant,
And now the smells begin
Of fishy Swampscot, salt Nahant,
And leather-scented Lynn.

Next, on their left, the slender spires,
And glittering vanes, that crown,
The home of Salem's frugal sires,
The old, witch-haunted town.

So onward, o'er the rugged way
That runs through rocks and sand, Showered by the tempest-driven spray,
From bays on either hand,

That shut between their outstretched arms
The crews of Marblehead,
The lords of ocean's watery farms,
Who plough the waves for bread.

At last the ancient inn appears,
The spreading elm below,
Whose flapping sign these fifty years
Has seesawed to and fro.

How fair the azure fields in sight
Before the low-browed inn !
The tumbling billows fringe with light
The crescent shore of Lynn ;

Nahant thrusts outward through the waves
Her arm of yellow sand,
And breaks the roaring surge that braves
The gauntlet on her hand ;

With eddying whirl the waters lock Yon treeless mound forlorn,
The sharp-winged sea-fowl's breeding-
rock,
That fronts the Spouting Horn ;

Then free the white-sailed shallows glide,
And wide the ocean smiles,
Till, shoreward bent, his streams divide
The two bare Misery Isles.

The master's silent signal stays
The wearied cavalcade ;
The coachman reins his smoking bays
Beneath the elm-tree's shade.

A gathering on the village green !
The cocked-hats crowd to see,
On legs in ancient velveteen,
With buckles at the knee.

A clustering round the tavern-door
Of square-toed village boys,
Still wearing, as their grandsires wore,
The old-world corduroys !

A scampering at the "Fountain" inn, —
A rush of great and small, —
With hurrying servants' mingled din
And screaming matron's call !

Poor Agnes ! with her work half done
They caught her unaware ;
As, humbly, like a praying nun,
She knelt upon the stair ;

Bent o'er the steps, with lowliest mien
She knelt, but not to pray, —
Her little hands must keep them clean,
And wash their stains away.

A foot, an ankle, bare and white,
Her girlish shapes betrayed, — "Ha ! Nymphs and Graces !" spoke
the Knight ;
"Look up, my beauteous Maid !"

She turned, — a reddening rose in bud,
Its calyx half withdrawn, —
Her cheek on fire with damasked blood
Of girlhood's glowing dawn !

He searched her features through and
through,
As royal lovers look
On lowly maidens, when they woo
Without the ring and book.

"Come hither, Fair one ! Here, my Sweet !
Nay, prithee, look not down !
Take this to shoe those little feet," —
He tossed a silver crown.

A sudden paleness struck her brow, —
A swifter flush succeeds ;
It burns her cheek ; it kindles now
Beneath her golden beads.

She flitted, but the glittering eye
Still sought the lovely face.
Who was she ? What, and whence ? and why
Doomed to such menial place ?

A skipper's daughter, — so they said, —
Left orphan by the gale

That cost the fleet of Marblehead
And Gloucester thirty sail.

Ah! many a lonely home is found Along the Essex shore,
That cheered its goodman outward
bound,
And sees his face no more!

“Not so,” the matron whispered, — “sure

No orphan girl is she, —
The Surraige folk are deadly poor
Since Edward left the sea,

“And Mary, with her growing brood,
Has work enough to do
To find the children clothes and food
With Thomas, John, and Hugh.

“This girl of Mary’s, growing tall, —
(Just turned her sixteenth year,) —
To earn her bread and help them all,
Would work as housemaid here.”

So Agnes, with her golden beads,
And naught beside as dower,
Grew at the wayside with the weeds,
Herself a garden-flower.

’T was strange, ’t was sad, — so fresh, so
fair!

Thus Pity’s voice began.
Such grace! an angel’s shape and air!
The half-heard whisper ran.

For eyes could see in George’s time,
As now in later days,
And lips could shape, in prose and
rhyme,
The honeyed breath of praise.

No time to woo! The train must go Long ere the sun is down,
To reach, before the night-winds blow,
The many-steeped town.

’T is midnight, — street and square are still;

Dark roll the whispering waves
That lap the piers beneath the hill
Ridged thick with ancient graves.

Ah, gentle sleep! thy hand will smooth
The weary couch of pain,
When all thy poppies fail to soothe
The lover’s throbbing brain!

’T is morn, — the orange-mantled sun
Breaks through the fading gray,
And long and loud the Castle gun
Peals o’er the glistening bay.

“Thank God ’t is day!” With eager
eye

He hails the morning’s shine: —
“If art can win, or gold can buy,
The maiden shall be mine!”

PART THIRD.

THE CONQUEST.

“WHO saw this hussy when she came?
What is the wench, and who?”
They whisper. “Agnes, — is her name?
Pray what has she to do?”

The housemaids parley at the gate,
The scullions on the stair,
And in the footmen’s grave debate
The butler deigns to share.

Black Dinah, stolen when a child,
And sold on Boston pier,
Grown up in service, petted, spoiled,
Speaks in the coachman’s ear:

“What, all this household at his will?
And all are yet too few?
More servants, and more servants still, —
This prett young madam too!”

“She turned, — a reddening rose in bud.”

"Servant! fine servant!" laughed aloud
The man of coach and steeds ;
"She looks too fair, she steps too proud,
This girl with golden beads !

"I tell you, you may fret and frown,
And call her what you choose,
You'll find my Lady in her gown,
Your Mistress in her shoes!"

Ah, gentle maidens, free from blame,
God grant you never know
The little whisper, loud with shame,
That makes the world your foe !

Why tell the lordly flatterer's art,
That won the maiden's ear, —
The fluttering of the frightened heart,
The blush, the smile, the tear ?

Alas ! it were the saddening tale
That every language knows, —
The wooing wind, the yielding sail,
The sunbeam and the rose.

And now the gown of sober stuff
Has changed to fair brocade,
With brodered hem, and hanging cuff,
And flower of silken braid ;

And clasped around her blanching wrist
A jewelled bracelet shines,
Her flowing tresses' massive twist
A glittering net confines ;

And mingling with their truant wave
A fretted chain is hung ;
But ah ! the gift her mother gave, —
Its beads are all unstrung !

Her place is at the master's board,
Where none disputes her claim ;
She walks beside the mansion's lord,
His bride in all but name.

The busy tongues have ceased to talk,
Or speak in softened tone,
So gracious in her daily walk
The angel light has shown.

No want that kindness may relieve Assails her heart in vain,
The lifting of a ragged sleeve
Will check her palfrey's rein.

A thoughtful calm, a quiet grace
In every movement shown,
Reveal her moulded for the place
She may not call her own.

And, save that on her youthful brow
There broods a shadowy care,
No matron sealed with holy vow
In all the land so fair !

PART FOURTH.

THE RESCUE.

A SHIP comes foaming up the bay,
Along the pier she glides ;
Before her furrow melts away,
A courier mounts and rides.

"Haste, Haste, post Haste !" the letters bear ;

"Sir Harry Frankland, These."
Sad news to tell the loving pair !
The knight must cross the seas.

"Alas ! we part !" — the lips that spoke Lost all their rosy red,
As when a crystal cup is broke,
And all its wine is shed.

"Nay, droop not thus, — where'er," he cried,

"I go by land or sea,
My love, my life, my joy, my pride,
Thy place is still by me !"

Through town and city, far and wide,
 Their wandering feet have strayed,
 From Alpine lake to ocean tide,
 And cold Sierra's shade.

At length they see the waters gleam
 Amid the fragrant bowers
 Where Lisbon mirrors in the stream
 Her belt of ancient towers.

Red is the orange on its bough,
 To-morrow's sun shall fling
 O'er Cintra's hazel-shaded brow
 The flush of April's wing.

The streets are loud with noisy mirth,
 They dance on every green ;
 The morning's dial marks the birth
 Of proud Braganza's queen.

At eve beneath their pictured dome
 The gilded courtiers throng ;
 The broad moidores have cheated Rome
 Of all her lords of song.

Ah ! Lisbon dreams not of the day—
 Pleased with her painted scenes—
 When all her towers shall slide away
 As now these canvas screens !

The spring has passed, the summer fled,
 And yet they linger still,
 Though autumn's rustling leaves have spread
 The flank of Cintra's hill.

The town has learned their Saxon name,
 And touched their English gold,
 Nor tale of doubt nor hint of blame
 From over sea is told.

Three hours the first November dawn
 Has climbed with feeble ray
 Through mists like heavy curtains drawn
 Before the darkened day.

How still the muffled echoes sleep !
 Hark ! hark ! a hollow sound, —
 A noise like chariots rumbling deep Beneath the solid ground.

The channel lifts, the water slides
 And bares its bar of sand,
 Anon a mountain billow strides
 And crashes o'er the land.

The turrets lean, the steeples reel
 Like masts on ocean's swell,
 And clash a long discordant peal,
 The death-doomed city's knell.

The pavement bursts, the earth upheaves
 Beneath the staggering town !
 The turrets crack — the castle cleaves —
 The spires come rushing down.

Around, the lurid mountains glow
 With strange unearthly gleams ;
 While black abysses gape below,
 Then close in jagged seams.

The earth has folded like a wave,
 And thrice a thousand score, Clasped, shroudless, in their closing
 grave,
 The sun shall see no more !

And all is over. Street and square
 In ruined heaps are piled ;
 Ah ! where is she, so frail, so fair,
 Amid the tumult wild ?

Unscathed, she treads the wreck-piled street,
 Whose narrow gaps afford
 A pathway for her bleeding feet,
 To seek her absent lord.

A temple's broken walls arrest
 Her wild and wandering eyes ;
 Beneath its shattered portal pressed,
 Her lord unconscious lies.

The power that living hearts obey Shall lifeless blocks withstand ?
 Love led her footsteps where he lay, —
 Love nerves her woman's hand :

One cry, — the marble shaft she grasps, —
 Up heaves the ponderous stone : — He breathes, — her fainting form he clasps, —
 Her life has bought his own !

PART FIFTH.

THE REWARD.

How like the starless night of death
 Our being's brief eclipse,
 When faltering heart and failing breath
 Have bleached the fading lips !

She lives ! What guerdon shall repay
 His debt of ransomed life ?
 One word can charm all wrongs away, —
 The sacred name of WIFE !

The love that won her girlish charms
 Must shield her matron fame,
 And write beneath the Frankland arms
 The village beauty's name.

Go, call the priest ! no vain delay
 Shall dim the sacred ring !
 Who knows what change the passing day,
 The fleeting hour, may bring ?

Before the holy altar bent,
 There kneels a goodly pair ;
 A stately man, of high descent,
 A woman, passing fair.

No jewels lend the blinding sheen
 That meaner beauty needs,
 But on her bosom heaves unseen
 A string of golden beads.

The vow is spoke, — the prayer is said, —
 And with a gentle pride
 The Lady Agnes lifts her head,
 Sir Harry Frankland's bride.

No more her faithful heart shall bear
 Those griefs so meekly borne, —
 The passing sneer, the freezing stare,
 The icy look of scorn ;

No more the blue-eyed English dames
 Their haughty lips shall curl, Whene'er a hissing whisper names
 The poor New England girl.

But stay ! — his mother's haughty
 brow, —
 The pride of ancient race, —
 Will plighted faith, and holy vow,
 Win back her fond embrace ?

Too well she knew the saddening tale
 Of love no vow had blest,
 That turned his blushing honors pale
 And stained his knightly crest.

They seek his Northern home, — alas :
 He goes alone before ; —
 His own dear Agnes may not pass
 The proud, ancestral door.

He stood before the stately dame ;
 He spoke ; she calmly heard,
 But not to pity, nor to blame ;
 She breathed no single word.

He told his love, — her faith betrayed ;
 She heard with tearless eyes ;
 Could she forgive the erring maid ?
 She stared in cold surprise.

How fond her heart, he told, — how true ;
 The haughty eyelids fell ; —
 The kindly deeds she loved to do ;
 She murmured, " It is well."

But when he told that fearful day,
 And how her feet were led
 To where entombed in life he lay,
 The breathing with the dead,

And how she bruised her tender breasts
 Against the crushing stone,
 That still the strong-armed clown protests
 No man can lift alone, —

O then the frozen spring was broke ;
 By turns she wept and smiled ; —
 "Sweet Agnes !" so the mother spoke,
 "God bless my angel child !

"She saved thee from the jaws of death, —
 'T is thine to right her wrongs ;
 I tell thee, — I, who gave thee breath, —
 To her thy life belongs !"

Thus Agnes won her noble name,
 Her lawless lover's hand ;
 The lowly maiden so became A lady in the land !

PART SIXTH.

CONCLUSION.

THE tale is done ; it little needs
 To track their after ways,
 And string again the golden beads
 Of love's uncounted days.

They leave the fair ancestral isle
 For bleak New England's shore ;
 How gracious is the courtly smile
 Of all who frowned before !

Again through Lisbon's orange bowers
 They watch the river's gleam,
 And shudder as her shadowy towers
 Shake in the trembling stream.

Fate parts at length the fondest pair ;
 His cheek, alas ! grows pale ;
 The breast that trampling death could spare
 His noiseless shafts assail.

He longs to change the heaven of blue
 For England's clouded sky, —
 To breathe the air his boyhood knew ;
 He seeks them but to die.

— Hard by the terraced hillside town,
 Where healing streamlets run,
 Still sparkling with their old renown, —
 The "Waters of the Sun," —

The Lady Agnes raised the stone
 That marks his honored grave,
 And there Sir Harry sleeps alone
 By Wiltshire Avon's wave.

The home of early love was dear ;
 She sought its peaceful shade,
 And kept her state for many a year,
 With none to make afraid.

At last the evil days were come
 That saw the red cross fall ;
 She hears the rebels' rattling drum, —
 Farewell to Frankland Hall !

— I tell you, as my tale began,
 The Hall is standing still ;
 And you, kind listener, maid or man,
 May see it if you will.

The box is glistening huge and green,
 Like trees the lilacs grow,
 Three elms high-arching still are seen,
 And one lies stretched below.

The hangings, rough with velvet flowers,
 Flap on the latticed wall ;
 And o'er the mossy ridge-pole towers
 The rock-hewn chimney tall.

The doors on mighty hinges clash
 With massive bolt and bar,
 The heavy English-moulded sash
 Scarce can the night-winds jar.

Behold the chosen room he sought
 Alone, to fast and pray,
 Each year, as chill November brought
 The dismal earthquake day.

There hung the rapier blade he wore,
 Bent in its flattened sheath ;
 The coat the shrieking woman tore Caught in her clenching teeth ;—

The coat with tarnished silver lace
 She snapped at as she slid,
 And down upon her death-white face Crashed the huge coffin's lid.

A graded terrace yet remains ;
 If on its turf you stand
 And look along the wooded plains
 That stretch on either hand,

The broken forest walls define
 A dim, receding view,
 Where, on the far horizon's line,
 He cut his vista through.

If further story you shall crave,
 Or ask for living proof,
 Go see old Julia, born a slave Beneath Sir Harry's roof.

She told me half that I have told,
 And she remembers well
 The mansion as it looked of old
 Before its glories fell ;—

The box, when round the terraced square
 Its glossy wall was drawn ;
 The climbing vines, the snow-balls fair,
 The roses on the lawn.

And Julia says, with truthful look Stamped on her wrinkled face,
 That in her own black hands she took
 The coat with silver lace.

And you may hold the story light,
 Or, if you like, believe ;
 But there it was, the woman's bite, —
 A mouthful from the sleeve.

Now go your ways ;— I need not tell
 The moral of my rhyme ;
 But, youths and maidens, ponder well
 This tale of olden time !

THE PLOUGHMAN.

ANNIVERSARY OF THE BERKSHIRE AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY, OCT. 4, 1849.

CLEAR the brown path, to meet his coulter's gleam !
 Lo ! on he comes, behind his smoking team,
 With toil's bright dew-drops on his sunburnt brow,
 The lord of earth, the hero of the plough !

First in the field before the reddening sun,
 Last in the shadows when the day is done,
 Line after line, along the bursting sod,
 Marks the broad acres where his feet have trod ;
 Still, where he treads, the stubborn clods divide,
 The smooth, fresh furrow opens deep and wide ;
 Matted and dense the tangled turf upheaves,
 Mellow and dark the ridgy cornfield cleaves ;
 Up the steep hillside, where the laboring train

Slants the long track that scores the level plain ;
Through the moist valley, clogged with oozing clay,
The patient convoy breaks its destined
way ;
At every turn the loosening chains re-
sound,
The swinging ploughshare circles glistening round,
Till the wide field one billowy waste appears,
And wearied hands unbind the panting steers.

These are the hands whose sturdy labor brings
The peasant's food, the golden pomp of kings ;
This is the page, whose letters shall be seen
Changed by the sun to words of living
green ;
This is the scholar, whose immortal pen Spells the first lesson hunger taught to
men ;
These are the lines which heaven-commanded Toil Shows on his deed, — the charter of the soil !

O gracious Mother, whose benignant
breast
Wakes us to life, and lulls us all to rest, How thy sweet features, kind to every
clime,
Mock with their smile the wrinkled front
of time !
We stain thy flowers, — they blossom o'er the dead ;
We rend thy bosom, and it gives us bread ;
O'er the red field that trampling strife has torn,

Waves the green plumage of thy tasselled
corn ;
Our maddening conflicts scar thy fairest
plain,
Still thy soft answer is the growing grain.
Yet, O our Mother, while uncounted
charms
Steal round our hearts in thine embracing arms,
Let not our virtues in thy love decay,
And thy fond sweetness waste our strength away.

No ! by these hills, whose banners now displayed
In blazing cohorts Autumn has arrayed ;
By yon twin summits, on whose splintery crests
The tossing hemlocks hold the eagles'
nests ;
By these fair plains the mountain circle screens,
And feeds with streamlets from its dark ravines, —
True to their home, these faithful arms shall toil
To crown with peace their own untainted
soil ;
And, true to God, to freedom, to mankind,
If her chained bandogs Faction shall unbind,
These stately forms, that bending even now Bowed their strong manhood to the humble plough,
Shall rise erect, the guardians of the
land,
The same stern iron in the same right
hand,
Till o'er their hills the shouts of triumph
run,
The sword has rescued what the plough-share won !

“By these hills, whose banners now displayed
In blazing cohorts Autumn has arrayed.”

1850 - 56.

SPRING.

WINTER is past ; the heart of Nature warms
 Beneath the wrecks of unresisted storms ; Doubtful at first, suspected more than
 seen,
 The southern slopes are fringed with tender green ;
 On sheltered banks, beneath the dripping eaves,
 Spring's earliest nurslings spread their glowing leaves,
 Bright with the hues from wider pictures won,
 White, azure, golden, — drift, or sky,
 or sun, —
 The snowdrop, bearing on her patient
 breast
 The frozen trophy torn from Winter's crest ;
 The violet, gazing on the arch of blue
 Till her own iris wears its deepened hue ;
 The spendthrift crocus, bursting through the mould
 Naked and shivering with his cup of gold.
 Swelled with new life, the darkening elm on high Prints her thick buds against the spotted
 sky ;
 On all her boughs the stately chestnut cleaves
 The gummy shroud that wraps her embryo leaves ;
 The house-fly, stealing from his narrow
 grave,

Drugged with the opiate that November
 gave,
 Beats with faint wing against the sunny pane,
 Or crawls, tenacious, o'er its lucid plain ;
 From shaded chinks of lichen-crustad
 walls,
 In languid curves, the gliding serpent crawls ;
 The bog's green harper, thawing from his sleep,
 Twangs a hoarse note and tries a shortened leap ;
 On floating rails that face the softening noons
 The still shy turtles range their dark platoons,
 Or, toiling aimless o'er the mellowing fields,
 Trail through the grass their tessellated shields.

At last young April, ever frail and fair, Wooed by her playmate with the golden
 hair,
 Chased to the margin of receding floods O'er the soft meadows starred with opening buds,
 In tears and blushes sighs herself away,
 And hides her cheek beneath the flowers of May.

Then the proud tulip lights her beacon
 blaze,
 Her clustering curls the hyacinth displays ;

O'er her tall blades the crested fleur-de-lis,
 Like blue-eyed Pallas, towers erect and free ;
 With yellower flames the lengthened sunshine glows,
 And love lays bare the passion-breathing rose ;
 Queen of the lake, along its reedy verge
 The rival lily hastens to emerge,
 Her snowy shoulders glistening as she strips,
 Till morn is sultan of her parted lips.

Then bursts the song from every leafy glade,
 The yielding season's bridal serenade ;
 Then flash the wings returning Summer calls
 Through the deep arches of her forest halls, —
 The bluebird, breathing from his azure plumes
 The fragrance borrowed where the myrtle blooms ;
 The thrush, poor wanderer, dropping meekly down,
 Clad in his remnant of autumnal brown ;
 The oriole, drifting like a flake of fire
 Rent by a whirlwind from a blazing spire.
 The robin, jerking his spasmodic throat,
 Repeats, imperious, his staccato note ;
 The crack-brained bobolink courts his crazy mate,
 Poised on a bulrush tipsy with his weight ;
 Nay, in his cage the lone canary sings,
 Feels the soft air, and spreads his idle wings.

Why dream I here within these caging walls,
 Deaf to her voice, while blooming Nature calls ;

Peering and gazing with insatiate looks
 Through blinding lenses, or in wearying books ?
 Off, gloomy spectres of the shrivelled past !
 Fly with the leaves that fill the autumn blast !
 Yeimps of Science, whose relentless chains
 Lock the warm tides within these living veins,
 Close your dim cavern, while its captive strays
 Dazzled and giddy in the morning's blaze !

THE STUDY.

YET in the darksome crypt I left so late,
 Whose only altar is its rusted grate, — Sepulchral, rayless, joyless as it seems,
 Shamed by the glare of May's refulgent beams, —
 While the dim seasons dragged their shrouded train,
 Its paler splendors were not quite in vain.
 From these dull bars the cheerful fire-light's glow
 Streamed through the casement o'er the spectral snow ;
 Here, while the night-wind wreaked its frantic will
 On the loose ocean and the rock-bound hill,
 Rent the cracked topsail from its quivering yard,
 And rived the oak a thousand storms had scarred,
 Fenced by these walls the peaceful taper shone,
 Nor felt a breath to slant its trembling cone.

Not all unblest the mild interior scene
 When the red curtain spread its falling screen ;
 O'er some light task the lonely hours were past,
 And the long evening only flew too fast ;
 Or the wide chair its leathern arms would lend
 In genial welcome to some easy friend, Stretched on its bosom with relaxing nerves,
 Slow moulding, plastic, to its hollow curves ;
 Perchance indulging, if of generous creed,
 In brave Sir Walter's dream-compelling weed.
 Or, happier still, the evening hour would bring
 To the round table its expected ring,
 And while the punch-bowl's sounding depths were stirred, — Its silver cherubs smiling as they heard, —
 Our hearts would open, as at evening's
 hour
 The close-sealed primrose frees its hidden flower.

Such the warm life this dim retreat has known,
 Not quite deserted when its guests were flown ;
 Nay, filled with friends, an unobtrusive set,
 Guiltless of calls and cards and etiquette,
 Ready to answer, never known to ask, Claiming no service, prompt for every task.

On those dark shelves no housewife hand profanes,
 O'er his mute files the monarch folio reigns ;

A mingled race, the wreck of chance and time,
 That talk all tongues and breathe of every clime,
 Each knows his place, and each may claim his part
 In some quaint corner of his master's
 heart.
 This old Decretal, won from Kloss's hoards,
 Thick-leaved, brass-cornered, ribbed with oaken boards,
 Stands the gray patriarch of the graver
 rows,
 Its fourth ripe century narrowing to its close ;
 Not daily conned, but glorious still to view,
 With glistening letters wrought in red and blue.
 There towers Stagira's all-embracing sage,
 The Aldine anchor on his opening page ;
 There sleep the births of Plato's heavenly
 mind,
 In yon dark tomb by jealous clasps confined,
 "Olim e libris" (dare I call it mine ?) Of Yale's grave Head and Killingworth's
 divine !
 In those square sheets the songs of Maro
 fill
 The silvery types of smooth-leaved Baskerville ;
 High over all, in close, compact array,
 Their classic wealth the Elzevirs display.
 In lower regions of the sacred space Range the dense volumes of a humbler
 race ;
 There grim chirurgeons all their mysteries teach,
 In spectral pictures, or in crabbed
 speech ;
 Harvey and Haller, fresh from Nature's
 page,

Shoulder the dreamers of an earlier age,
Lully and Geber, and the learned crew
That loved to talk of all they could not do.

Why count the rest, — those names of later days

That many love, and all agree to praise, —

Or point the titles, where a glance may read

The dangerous lines of party or of creed?
Too well, perchance, the chosen list would show

What few may care and none can claim to know.

Each has his features, whose exterior seal
A brush may copy, or a sunbeam steal;
Go to his study, — on the nearest shelf
Stands the mosaic portrait of himself.

What though for months the tranquil dust descends, Whitening the heads of these mine ancient friends,
While the damp offspring of the modern press Flaunts on my table with its pictured dress;
Not less I love each dull familiar face, Nor less should miss it from the appointed place;
I snatch the book, along whose burning leaves
His scarlet web our wild romancer weaves,
Yet, while proud Hester's fiery pangs I
share,
My old MAGNALIA must be standing
there!

THE BELLS.

WHEN o'er the street the morning peal is flung
From yon tall belfry with the brazen
tongue,

Its wide vibrations, wafted by the gale,
To each far listener tell a different tale.

The sexton, stooping to the quivering
floor

Till the great caldron spills its brassy
roar,

Whirls the hot axle, counting, one by one,

Each dull concussion, till his task is done.

Toil's patient daughter, when the welcome note

Clangs through the silence from the steeple's throat,

Streams, a white unit, to the checkered street,

Demure, but guessing whom she soon shall meet;

The bell, responsive to her secret flame,
With every note repeats her lover's
name.

The lover, tenant of the neighboring lane,

Sighing, and fearing lest he sigh in vain,
Hears the stern accents, as they come and go,

Their only burden one despairing No!

Ocean's rough child, whom many a shore has known

Ere homeward breezes swept him to his
own,

Starts at the echo as it circles round,
A thousand memories kindling with the
sound;

The early favorite's unforgotten charms,
Whose blue initials stain his tawny
arms;

His first farewell, the flapping canvas
spread,

The seaward streamers crackling overhead,

His kind, pale mother, not ashamed to weep

Her first-born's bridal with the haggard deep,

While the brave father stood with tear-less eye,
Smiling and choking with his last good-
by.

T is but a wave, whose spreading circle beats,
With the same impulse, every nerve it meets,
Yet who shall count the varied shapes that ride
On the round surge of that aerial tide !

O child of earth ! If floating sounds like these Steal from thyself their power to wound or please,
If here or there thy changing will inclines,
As the bright zodiac shifts its rolling signs,
Look at thy heart, and when its depths are known
Then try thy brother's, judging by thine
own,
But keep thy wisdom to the narrower range,
While its own standards are the sport of
change,
Nor count us rebels when we disobey
The passing breath that holds thy pas-sion's sway.

NON-RESISTANCE.

PERHAPS too far in these considerate
days
Has patience carried her submissive
ways ;
Wisdom has taught us to be calm and meek,
To take one blow, and turn the other cheek ;
It is not written what a man shall do,
If the rude caitiff smite the other too !

Land of our fathers, in thine hour of need
God help thee, guarded by the passive creed !
As the lone pilgrim trusts to beads and cowl,
When through the forest rings the gray wolf's howl ;
As the deep galleon trusts her gilded prow
When the black corsair slants athwart her bow ;
As the poor pheasant, with his peaceful mien,
Trusts to his feathers, shining golden-
green,
When the dark plumage with the crimson beak
Has rustled shadowy from its splintered peak, —
So trust thy friends, whose babbling tongues would charm
The lifted sabre from thy foeman's arm,
Thy torches ready for the answering peal
From bellowing fort and thunderfreighted keel !

THE MORAL BULLY.

YON whey-faced brother, who delights to wear
A weedy flux of ill-conditioned hair, Seems of the sort that in a crowded
place
One elbows freely into smallest space ;
A timid creature, lax of knee and hip,
Whom small disturbance whitens round the lip ;
One of those harmless spectacled machines,
The Holy-Week of Protestants convenes ; Whom school-boys question if their walk transcends
The last advices of maternal friends ;

Whom John, obedient to his master's
 sign,
 Conducts, laborious, up to ninety-nine,
 While Peter, glistening with luxurious
 scorn,
 Husks his white ivories like an ear of corn ;
 Dark in the brow and bilious in the
 cheek,
 Whose yellowish linen flowers but once a week,
 Conspicuous, annual, in their threadbare
 suits,
 And the laced high-lows which they call their boots
 Well mayst thou shun that dingy front severe,
 But him, O stranger, him thou canst not fear !

Be slow to judge, and slower to despise,
 Man of broad shoulders and heroic size !
 The tiger, writhing from the boa's rings, Drops at the fountain where the cobra stings.
 In that lean phantom, whose extended glove
 Points to the text of universal love, Behold the master that can tame thee
 down
 To crouch, the vassal of his Sunday
 frown ;
 His velvet throat against thy corded wrist,
 His loosened tongue against thy doubled fist !

The MORAL BULLY, though he never swears,
 Nor kicks intruders down his entry
 stairs,
 Though meekness plants his backwardsloping hat,

And non-resistance ties his white cravat, Though his black broadcloth glories to be seen
 In the same plight with Shylock's gaberdine,
 Hugs the same passion to his narrow
 breast
 That heaves the cuirass on the trooper's chest,
 Hears the same hell-hounds yelling in his rear
 That chase from port the maddened buc-caneer,
 Feels the same comfort while his acrid
 words
 Turn the sweet milk of kindness into curds,
 Or with grim logic prove, beyond debate,
 That all we love is worthiest of our hate,
 As the scarred ruffian of the pirate's deck,
 When his long swivel rakes the staggering wreck !

Heaven keep us all ! Is every rascal clown
 Whose arm is stronger free to knock us
 down ?
 Has every scarecrow, whose cachectic
 soul
 Seems fresh from Bedlam, airing on parole,
 Who, though he carries but a doubtful trace
 Of angel visits on his hungry face, From lack of marrow or the coins to pay,
 Has dodged some vices in a shabby
 way,
 The right to stick us with his cutthroat terms,
 And bait his homilies with his brother worms ?

THE MIND'S DIET.

No life worth naming ever comes to good
 If always nourished on the selfsame
 food ;
 The creeping mite may live so if he please,
 And feed on Stilton till he turns to cheese,
 But cool Magendie proves beyond a
 doubt,
 If mammals try it, that their eyes drop
 out.

No reasoning natures find it safe to feed,
 For their sole diet, on a single creed ;
 It spoils their eyeballs while it spares their tongues,
 And starves the heart to feed the noisy lungs.

When the first larvæ on the elm are seen,
 The crawling wretches, like its leaves,
 are green ;
 Ere chill October shakes the latest down,
 They, like the foliage, change their tint to brown ;
 On the blue flower a bluer flower you spy,
 You stretch to pluck it — 't is a butterfly ;
 The flattened tree-toads so resemble bark,
 They 're hard to find as Ethiops in the dark ;
 The woodcock, stiffening to fictitious mud,
 Cheats the young sportsman thirsting for his blood ;
 So by long living on a single lie, Nay, on one truth, will creatures get its
 dye ;
 Red, yellow, green, they take their subject's hue. —
 Except when squabbling turns them black and blue !

OUR LIMITATIONS.

We trust and fear, we question and believe,
 From life's dark threads a trembling faith to weave,
 Frail as the web that misty night has spun,
 Whose dew-gemmed awnings glitter in
 the sun.
 While the calm centuries spell their lessons out,
 Each truth we conquer spreads the realm of doubt ;
 When Sinai's summit was Jehovah's
 throne,
 The chosen Prophet knew his voice
 alone ;
 When Pilate's hall that awful question
 heard,
 The Heavenly Captive answered not a
 word.

Eternal Truth ! beyond our hopes and fears Sweep the vast orbits of thy myriad spheres !
 From age to age, while History carves sublime
 On her waste rock the flaming curves of
 time,
 How the wild swayings of our planet
 show
 That worlds unseen surround the world we know.

THE OLD PLAYER.

THE curtain rose ; in thunders long and loud
 The galleries rung ; the veteran actor bowed.
 In flaming line the telltales of the stage Showed on his brow the autograph of age ;

Pale, hueless waves amid his clustered
hair,
And umbered shadows, prints of toil and care;
Round the wide circle glanced his vacant
eye, —
He strove to speak, — his voice was but a sigh.

Year after year had seen its short-lived race
Flit past the scenes and others take their
place;
Yet the old prompter watched his accents
still,
His name still flaunted on the evening's bill.
Heroes, the monarchs of the scenic floor,
Had died in earnest and were heard no
more;
Beauties, whose cheeks such roseate bloom o'erspread
They faced the footlights in unborrowed
red,
Had faded slowly through successive shades
To gray duennas, foils of younger maids; Sweet voices lost the melting tones that start
With Southern throbs the sturdy Saxon
heart,
While fresh sopranos shook the painted
sky
With their long, breathless, quivering locust-cry.
Yet there he stood, — the man of other
days,
In the clear present's full, unsparing
blaze,
As on the oak a faded leaf that clings While a new April spreads its burnished
wings.

How bright yon rows that soared in tiple tier,

Their central sun the flashing chandelier!
How dim the eye that sought with doubtful aim
Some friendly smile it still might dare to claim!
How fresh these hearts! his own how worn and cold!
Such the sad thoughts that long-drawn sigh had told.

No word yet faltered on his trembling
tongue;
Again, again, the crashing galleries rung.
As the old guardsman at the bugle's blast
Hears in its strain the echoes of the past;
So, as the plaudits rolled and thundered
round,
A life of memories startled at the sound.
He lived again, — the page of earliest
days, —
Days of small fee and parsimonious
praise;
Then 'lithe young Romeo — hark that silvered tone,
From those smooth lips — alas! they were his own.
Then the bronzed Moor, with all his love and woe,
Told his strange tale of midnight melting snow;
And dark-plumed Hamlet, with his cloak and blade,
Looked on the royal ghost, himself a shade.
All in one flash, his youthful memories came,
Traced in bright hues of evanescent
flame,
As the spent swimmer's in the lifelong
dream,
While the last bubble rises through the stream.

Call him not old, whose visionary
brain
Holds o'er the past its undivided reign.

For him in vain the envious seasons roll
Who bears eternal summer in his soul.

If yet the minstrel's song, the poet's lay, Spring with her birds, or children at their play,

Or maiden's smile, or heavenly dream of art,

Stir the few life-drops creeping round his heart,

Turn to the record where his years are told, —

Count his gray hairs, — they cannot make him old!

What magic power has changed the faded mime?

One breath of memory on the dust of
time.

As the last window in the buttressed wall
Of some gray minster tottering to its fall, Though to the passing crowd its hues are spread,

A dull mosaic, yellow, green, and red,
Viewed from within, a radiant glory shows

When through its pictured screen the sunlight flows,

And kneeling pilgrims on its storied pane
See angels glow in every shapeless stain;
So streamed the vision through his sunken eye,

Clad in the splendors of his morning sky.

All the wild hopes his eager boyhood
knew,

All the young fancies riper years proved
true,

The sweet, low-whispered words, the winning glance

From queens of song, from Houris of the dance,

Wealth's lavish gift, and Flattery's soothing phrase,

And Beauty's silence when her blush was praise,

And melting Pride, her lashes wet with
tears,

Triumphs and banquets, wreaths and crowns and cheers,

Pangs of wild joy that perish on the
tongue,

And all that poets dream, but leave unsung!

In every heart some viewless founts are fed

From far-off hillsides where the dews were shed;

On the worn features of the weariest face
Some youthful memory leaves its hidden trace,

As in old gardens left by exiled kings
The marble basins tell of hidden springs, But, gray with dust, and overgrown with weeds,

Their choking jets the passer little heed,
Till time's revenges break their seals
away,

And, clad in rainbow light, the waters
play.

Good night, fond dreamer! let the curtain fall:

The world's a stage, and we are players
all.

A strange rehearsal! Kings without their crowns,

And threadbare lords, and jewel-wearing clowns,

Speak the vain words that mock their throbbing hearts,

As Want, stern prompter! spells them out their parts.

The tinselled hero whom we praise and pay
Is twice an actor in a twofold play.

We smile at children when a painted screen

Seems to their simple eyes a real scene;
Ask the poor hireling, who has left his throne

To seek the cheerless home he calls his
own,

Which of his double lives most real
seems,
The world of solid fact or scenic dreams?
Canvas, or clouds, — the footlights, or the spheres, —
The play of two short hours, or seventy
years?
Dream on! Though Heaven may woo
our open eyes,
Through their closed lids we look on fairer skies;
Truth is for other worlds, and hope for this;
The cheating future lends the present's
bliss;
Life is a running shade, with fettered
hands,
That chases phantoms over shifting
sands;
Death a still spectre on a marble seat,
With ever clutching palms and shackled
feet;
The airy shapes that mock life's slender
chain,
The flying joys he strives to clasp in vain,
Death only grasps; to live is to pursue, — Dream on! there's nothing but illusion
true!

THE ISLAND RUIN.

YE that have faced the billows and the spray
Of good St. Botolph's island-studded
bay,
As from the gliding bark your eye has scanned
The beacons rocks, the wave-girt hills of sand,
Have ye not marked one elm-o'ershad-owed isle,
Round as the dimple chased in beauty's smile, —

A stain of verdure on an azure field,
Set like a jewel in a battered shield?
Fixed in the narrow gorge of Ocean's
path,
Peaceful it meets him in his hour of
wrath;
When the mailed Titan, scourged by hissing gales, Writhes in his glistening coat of clashing scales;
The storm-beat island spreads its tranquil green,
Calm as an emerald on an angry queen.
So fair when distant should be fairer near;
A boat shall waft us from the outstretched pier.
The breeze blows fresh; we reach the island's edge,
Our shallop rustling through the yielding sedge.
No welcome greets us on the desert
isle;
Those elms, far-shadowing, hide no stately pile:
Yet these green ridges mark an ancient road;
And lo! the traces of a fair abode;
The long gray line that marks a garden-
wall,
And heaps of fallen beams, — fire-branded all.

Who sees unmoved, a ruin at his feet,
The lowliest home where human hearts have beat?
Its hearthstone, shaded with the bistre stain
A century's showery torrents wash in
vain;
Its starving orchard, where the thistle blows
And mossy trunks still mark the broken
rows;
Its chimney-loving poplar, oftenest seen

Next an old roof, or where a roof has been ;
 Its knot-grass, plantain, — all the social weeds,
 Man's mute companions, following where he leads ;
 Its dwarfed, pale flowers, that show their straggling heads,
 Sown by the wind from grass-choked garden-beds ;
 Its woodbine, creeping where it used to climb ;
 Its roses, breathing of the olden time ;
 All the poor shows the curious idler sees,
 As life's thin shadows waste by slow
 degrees,
 Till naught remains, the saddening tale
 to tell,
 Save home's last wrecks, — the cellar and the well !

And whose the home that strews in black decay
 The one green-glowing island of the bay?
 Some dark-browed pirate's, jealous of the fate
 That seized the strangled wretch of "Nix's Mate" ?
 Some forger's, skulking in a borrowed
 name,
 Whom Tyburn's dangling halter yet may claim ?
 Some wan-eyed exile's, wealth and sorrow's heir,
 Who sought a lone retreat for tears and prayer ?
 Some brooding poet's, sure of deathless
 fame,
 Had not his epic perished in the flame ?
 Or some gray wooer's, whom a girlish
 frown
 Chased from his solid friends and sober
 town ?
 Or some plain tradesman's, fond of shade and ease,

Who sought them both beneath these quiet trees ?
 Why question mutes no question can unlock,
 Dumb as the legend on the Dighton rock ?
 One thing at least these ruined heaps declare, —
 They were a shelter once ; a man lived
 there.

But where the charred and crumbling records fail,
 Some breathing lips may piece the half-told tale ;
 No man may live with neighbors such as these,
 Though girt with walls of rock and angry
 seas,
 And shield his home, his children, or his wife,
 His ways, his means, his vote, his creed,
 his life,
 From the dread sovereignty of Ears and
 Eyes
 And the small member that beneath them lies.

They told strange things of that mysterious man ;
 Believe who will, deny them such as can ;
 Why should we fret if every passing sail
 Had its old seaman talking on the rail ?
 The deep-sunk schooner stuffed with Eastern lime,
 Slow wedging on, as if the waves were slime ;
 The knife-edged clipper with her ruffled spars,
 The pawing steamer with her mane of
 stars,
 The bull-browed galliot butting through the stream,
 The wide-sailed yacht that slipped along her beam,
 The deck-piled sloops, the pinched che-bacco-boats,

The frigate, black with thunder-freighted throats,

All had their talk about the lonely man ;
And thus, in varying phrase, the story ran.

His name had cost him little care to seek,

Plain, honest, brief, a decent name to speak,

Common, not vulgar, just the kind that slips

With least suggestion from a stranger's lips.

His birthplace England, as his speech might show,

Or his hale cheek, that wore the redstreak's glow ;

His mouth sharp-moulded ; in its mirth or scorn

There came a flash as from the milky corn,
When from the ear you rip the rustling sheath,

And the white ridges show their even teeth.

His stature moderate, but his strength confessed,-

In spite of broadcloth, by his ample
breast ;

Full-armed, thick-handed ; one that had been strong,

And might be dangerous still, if things went wrong.

He lived at ease beneath his elm-trees'
shade,

Did naught for gain, yet all his debts were paid ;

Rich, so 't was thought, but careful of his store ;

Had all he needed, claimed to have no
more.

But some that lingered round the isle
at night

Spoke of strange stealthy doings in their sight ;

Of creeping lonely visits that he made To nooks and corners, with a torch and spade.

Some said they saw the hollow of a cave ;
One, given to fables, swore it was a grave ;
Whereat some shuddered, others boldly
cried,

Those prowling boatmen lied, and knew they lied.

They said his house was framed with curious cares,

Lest some old friend might enter unawares ;

That on the platform at his chamber's door

Hinged a loose square that opened through the floor ;

Touch the black silken tassel next the bell,

Down, with a crash, the flapping trap-door fell ;

Three stories deep the falling wretch would strike,

To writhe at leisure on a boarder's pike.

By day armed always ; double-armed
at night,

His tools lay round him ; wake him such as might.

A carbine hung beside his India fan,
His hand could reach a Turkish ataghan ;

Pistols, with quaint-carved stocks and barrels gilt,

Crossed a long dagger with a jewelled hilt ;

A slashing cutlass stretched along the bed ; —

All this was what those lying boatmen said.

Then some were full of wondrous stories told

Of great oak chests and cupboards full of
gold ;

Of the wedged ingots and the silver bars

That cost old pirates ugly sabre-scars ;

“Home’s last wrecks, — the cellar and the well.”

How his laced wallet often would disgorge
The fresh-faced guinea of an English
George,
Or sweated ducat, palmed by Jews of yore,
Or double Joe, or Portuguese moidore,
And how his finger wore a rubied ring Fit for the white-necked play-girl of a king.
But these fine legends, told with staring
eyes,
Met with small credence from the old and wise.

Why tell each idle guess, each whisper
vain?
Enough: the scorched and cindered beams remain.
He came, a silent pilgrim to the West,
Some old-world mystery throbbing in his breast;
Close to the thronging mart he dwelt
alone;
He lived; he died. The rest is all unknown.

Stranger, whose eyes the shadowy isle survey,
As the black steamer dashes through the bay,
Why ask his buried secret to divine?
He was thy brother; speak, and tell us thine!

THE BANKER'S DINNER.

THE Banker's dinner is the stateliest
feast
The town has heard of for a year, at least;
The sparry lustres shed their broadest
blaze,
Damask and silver catch and spread the
rays;

The florist's triumphs crown the daintier spoil
Won from the sea, the forest, or the soil;
The steaming hot-house yields its largest pines,
The sunless vaults unearth their oldest wines;
With one admiring look the scene survey,
And turn a moment from the bright display.

Of all the joys of earthly pride or
power,
What gives most life, worth living, in
an hour?
When Victory settles on the doubtful fight
And the last foe man wheels in panting flight,
No thrill like this is felt beneath the
sun;
Life's sovereign moment is a battle won.
But say what next? To shape a Senate's choice,
By the strong magic of the master's voice;
To ride the stormy tempest of debate
That whirls the wavering fortunes of the state.
Third in the list, the happy lover's prize
Is won by honeyed words from women's
eyes.
If some would have it first instead of third,
So let it be, — I answer not a word.
The fourth, — sweet readers, let the thoughtless half Have its small shrug and inoffensive
laugh;
Let the grave quarter wear its virtuous
frown,
The stern half-quarter try to scowl us
down;

But the last eighth, the choice and sifted few,
Will hear my words, and, pleased, confess them true.

Among the great whom Heaven has made to shine,
How few have learned the art of arts, -- to dine!

Nature, indulgent to our daily need, Kind-hearted mother! taught us all to feed;

But the chief art, — how rarely Nature flings

This choicest gift among her social kings!

Say, man of truth, has life a brighter
hour

Than waits the chosen guest who knows his power?

He moves with ease, itself an angel charm, —

Lifts with light touch my lady's jewelled arm,

Slides to his seat, half leading and half led,

Smiling but quiet till the grace is said,
Then gently kindles, while by slow degrees

Creep softly out the little arts that please;

Bright looks, the cheerful language of the eye,

The neat, crisp question and the gay reply, —

Talk light and airy, such as well may pass

Between the rested fork and lifted glass; —

With play like this the earlier evening
flies,

Till rustling silks proclaim the ladies rise.

His hour has come, — he looks along the chairs,

As the Great Duke surveyed his iron squares.

— That's the young traveller, — is n't much to show, —

Fast on the road, but at the table slow.

— Next him, — you see the author in his look, —

His forehead lined with wrinkles like a book, —

Wrote the great history of the ancient Huns, —

Holds back to fire among the heavy guns.

— O, there's our poet seated at his side,
Beloved of ladies, soft, cerulean-eyed.

Poets are prosy in their common talk,
As the fast trotters, for the most part,

walk.

— And there's our well-dressed gentleman, who sits,

By right divine, no doubt, among the wits,

Who airs his tailor's patterns when he walks,

The man that often speaks, but never talks.

Why should he talk, whose presence lends a grace

To every table where he shows his face?
He knows the manual of the silver fork,

Can name his claret — if he sees the cork, —

Remark that "White-top" was considered fine,

But swear the "Juno" is the better
wine; —

Is not this talking? Ask Quintilian's rules;

If they say No, the town has many fools.
— Pause for a moment, — for our eyes

behold
The plain unseptred king, the man of
gold,

The thrice illustrious threefold million-
naire;

Mark his slow-creeping, dead, metallic
stare,

His eyes, dull glimmering, like the balance-pan

That weighs its guinea as he weighs his
man.

— Who's next? An artist, in a satin tie Whose ample folds defeat the curious
eye.

— And there's the cousin, — must be asked, you know, —

Looks like a spinster at a baby-show.

Hope he is cool, — they set him next the door, —

And likes his place, between the gap and bore.

— Next comes a Congress-man, distinguished guest!

We don't count him, — they asked him with the rest;

And then some white cravats, with well-shaped ties,

And heads above them which their owners prize.

Of all that cluster round the genial board,

Not one so radiant as the banquet's lord.
Some say they fancy, but they know not
why,

A shade of trouble brooding in his eye,

Nothing, perhaps, — the rooms are over-hot, —

Yet see his cheek, — the dull-red burning spot, —

Taste the brown sherry which he does not pass, —

Ha! That is brandy; see him fill his glass!

But not forgetful of his feasting
friends,

To each in turn some lively word he sends;

See how he throws his baited lines about,

And plays his men as anglers play their trout.

With the dry sticks all bonfires are begun;

Bring the first fagot, proser number one!
A question drops among the listening crew

And hits the traveller, pat on Timbuctoo.

We're on the Niger, somewhere near its source, —

Not the least hurry, take the river's course

Through Kissi, Foota, Kankan, Bamma-koo,

Bambarra, Sego, so to Timbuctoo,

Thence down to Youri; — stop him if we can,

We can't fare worse, — wake up the Congress-man!

The Congress-man, once on his talking legs,

Stirs up his knowledge to its thickest dregs;

Tremendous draught for dining men to quaff!

Nothing will choke him but a purpling
laugh.

A word, — a shout, — a mighty roar, —
't is done;

Extinguished; lassoed by a treacherous pun.

A laugh is priming to the loaded soul;

The scattering shots become a steady roll,

Broke by sharp cracks that run along the line,

The light artillery of the talker's wine.

The kindling goblets flame with golden dews,

The hoarded flasks their tawny fire dif-
fuse,

And the Rhine's breast-milk gushes cold and bright,

Pale as the moon and maddening as her
light ;
With crimson juice the thirsty southern
sky
Sucks from the hills where buried armies
lie,
So that the dreamy passion it imparts
Is drawn from heroes' bones and lovers' hearts.

But lulls will come ; the flashing soul transmits
Its gleams of light in alternating fits.
The shower of talk that rattled down amain
Ends in small patterings like an April's
rain ;
The voices halt ; the game is at a stand ;
Now for a solo from the master-hand !

'T is but a story, — quite a simple thing, —
An aria touched upon a single string,
But every accent comes with such a grace
The stupid servants listen in their place,
Each with his waiter in his lifted hands, Still as a well-bred pointer when he stands.

A query checks him : "Is he quite exact?" — (This from a grizzled, square-jawed man of fact.)

The sparkling story leaves him to his fate,
Crushed by a witness, smothered with a date,
As a swift river, sown with many a star,
Runs brighter, rippling on a shallow bar.

The smooth divine suggests a graver
doubt ;
A neat quotation bowls the parson out ;
Then, sliding gayly from his own display,
He laughs the learned dulness all away.

So, with the merry tale and jovial
song,
The jocund evening whirls itself along,
Till the last chorus shrieks its loud encore,
And the white neckcloths vanish through the door.

One savage word! — The menials know its tone,
And slink away ; the master stands
alone.

"Well played, by —"; breathe not what were best unheard ;

His goblet shivers while he speaks the word, —

"If wine tells truth, — and so have said the wise, —

It makes me laugh to think how brandy
lies !

Bankrupt to-morrow, — millionaire today, —

The farce is over, — now begins the
play !"

The spring he touches lets a panel
glide ;

An iron closet lurks beneath the slide, Bright with such treasures as a search might bring

From the deep pockets of a truant king.
Two diamonds, eyeballs of a God of bronze,

Bought from his faithful priest, a pious Bonze ;

A string of brilliants ; rubies, three or four ;

Bags of old coin and bars of virgin ore ;
A jewelled poniard and a Turkish knife,
Noiseless and useful if we come to strife.

Gone ! As a pirate flies before the wind,

And not one tear for all he leaves behind !

From all the love his better years have known

Fled like a felon, — ah ! but not alone !
 The chariot flashes through a lantern's glare, —
 O the wild eyes ! the storm of sable
 hair !
 Still to his side the broken heart will cling, —
 The bride of shame, the wife without the ring :
 Hark, the deep oath, — the wail of frenzied woe, —
 Lost ! lost to hope of Heaven and peace
 below !

He kept his secret ; but the seed of crime
 Bursts of itself in God's appointed time.
 The lives he wrecked were scattered far
 and wide ;
 One never blamed nor wept, — she only
 died.
 None knew his lot, though idle tongues would say
 He sought a lonely refuge far away,
 And there, with borrowed name and altered mien,
 He died unheeded, as he lived unseen.
 The moral market had the usual chills
 Of Virtue suffering from protested bills ;
 The White Cravats, to friendship's memory true,
 Sighed for the past, surveyed the future
 too ;
 Their sorrow breathed in one expressive
 line, —
 "Gave pleasant dinners ; who has got his wine ?"

THE MYSTERIOUS ILLNESS.

WHAT ailed young Lucius ? Art had vainly tried
 To guess his ill, and found herself defied.
 The Augur plied his legendary skill ;

Useless ; the fair young Roman languished still.
 His chariot took him every cloudless
 day
 Along the Pincian Hill or Appian Way ;
 They rubbed his wasted limbs with sulphurous oil, Oozed from the far-off Orient's heated
 soil ;
 They led him tottering down the steamy
 path
 Where bubbling fountains filled the thermal bath ;
 Borne in his litter to Egeria's cave,
 They washed him, shivering, in her icy
 wave.
 They sought all curious herbs and costly stones,
 They scraped the moss that grew on dead
 men's bones,
 They tried all cures the votive tablets
 taught,
 Scoured every place whence healing drugs were brought,
 O'er Thracian hills his breathless couriers
 ran,
 His slaves waylaid the Syrian caravan.
 At last a servant heard a stranger
 speak
 A new chirurgeon's name ; a clever
 Greek,
 Skilled in his art ; from Pergamus he came
 To Rome but lately ; GALEN was the
 name.
 The Greek was called : a man with piercing eyes,
 Who must be cunning, and who might be wise.
 He spoke but little, — if they pleased,
 he said,
 He 'd wait awhile beside the sufferer's
 bed.
 So by his side he sat, serene and calm,

His very accents soft as healing balm ;
Not curious seemed, but every movement spied,

His sharp eyes searching where they seemed to glide ;

Asked a few questions, — what he felt,
and where ?

“ A pain just here,” “ A constant beating there.”

Who ordered bathing for his aches and ails ?

“ Charmis, the water-doctor from Marseilles.”

What was the last prescription in his case ?

“ A draught of wine with powdered chrysoprase.”

Had he no secret grief he nursed alone ?

A pause ; a little tremor ; answer, — “ None.”

Thoughtful, a moment, sat the cunning leech,

And muttered “ Eros !” in his native
speech.

In the broad atrium various friends await

The last new utterance from the lips of fate ;

Men, matrons, maids, they talk the question o'er,

And, restless, pace the tessellated floor.

Not unobserved the youth so long had pined

By gentle-hearted dames and damsels
kind ;

One with the rest, a rich Patrician's
pride,

The lady Hermia, called “ the golden-eyed ” ;

The same the old Proconsul fain must woo,

Whom, one dark night, a masked sicarius slew ;

The same black Crassus over roughly pressed

To hear his suit, — the Tiber knows the rest.

(Crassus was missed next morning by his set ;

Next week the fishers found him in their net.)

She with the others paced the ample hall,

Fairest, alas ! and saddest of them all.

At length the Greek declared, with puzzled face,

Some strange enchantment mingled in the case,

And naught would serve to act as counter-charm

Save a warm bracelet from a maiden's arm.

Not every maiden's, — many might be tried ;

Which not in vain, experience must decide.

Were there no damsels willing to attend

And do such service for a suffering friend ?

The message passed among the waiting
crowd,

First in a whisper, then proclaimed aloud.

Some wore no jewels ; some were disin-clined,

For reasons better guessed at than defined ;

Though all were saints, — at least professed to be, —

The list all counted, there were named but three.

The leech, still seated by the patient's side,

Held his thin wrist, and watched him, eagle-eyed.

Aurelia first, a fair-haired Tuscan girl, Slipped off her golden asp, with eyes of pearl.

His solemn head the grave physician shook ;

The waxen features thanked her with a look.

Olympia next, a creature half divine, Sprung from the blood of old Evander's
line,

Held her white arm, that wore a twisted
chain

Clasped with an opal-sheeny cymophane.
In vain, O daughter! said the baffled Greek.

The patient sighed the thanks he could not speak.

Last, Hermia entered; look, that sudden start!

The pallium heaves above his leaping
heart;

The beating pulse, the cheek's rekindled
flame,

Those quivering lips, the secret all pro-
claim.

The deep disease long throbbing in the
breast,

The dread enchantment, all at once confessed!

The case was plain; the treatment was begun;

And Love soon cured the mischief he had done.

Young Love, too oft thy treacherous bandage slips

Down from the eyes it blinded to the lips!

Ask not the Gods, O youth, for clearer
sight,

But the bold heart to plead thy cause aright.

And thou, fair maiden, when thy lovers
sigh,

Suspect thy flattering ear, but trust thine eye;

And learn this secret from the tale of
old:

No love so true as love that dies untold.

A MOTHER'S SECRET.

How sweet the sacred legend — if unblamed

In my slight verse such holy things are named —

Of Mary's secret hours of hidden joy, Silent, but pondering on her wondrous boy!

Ave, Maria! Pardon, if I wrong Those heavenly words that shame my earthly song!

The choral host had closed the Angel's
strain

Sung to the listening watch on Bethlehem's plain,

And now the shepherds, hastening on their way,

Sought the still hamlet where the Infant lay.

They passed the fields that gleaning
Ruth toiled o'er, —

They saw afar the ruined threshing-
floor

Where Moab's daughter, homeless and forlorn,

Found Boaz slumbering by his heaps of corn;

And some remembered how the holy scribe,

Skilled in the lore of every jealous tribe, Traced the warm blood of Jesse's royal
son

To that fair alien, bravely wooed and won.

So fared they on to seek the promised
sign,

That marked the anointed heir of David's line.

At last, by forms of earthly semblance led,

They found the crowded inn, the oxen's
shed.

No pomp was there, no glory shone around

On the coarse straw that strewed the reeking ground ;

One dim retreat a flickering torch betrayed, —

In that poor cell the Lord of Life was laid !

The wondering shepherds told their breathless tale

Of the bright choir that woke the sleeping vale ;

Told how the skies with sudden glory flamed,

Told how the shining multitude proclaimed,

“Joy, joy to earth ! Behold the hallowed morn !

In David's city Christ the Lord is born !
‘Glory to God !’ let angels shout on high, ‘Good-will to men !’ the listening earth
reply !”

They spoke with hurried words and accents wild ;

Calm in his cradle slept the heavenly child.

No trembling word the mother's joy revealed, —

One sigh of rapture, and her lips were sealed ;

Unmoved she saw the rustic train depart,
But kept their words to ponder in her
heart.

Twelve years had passed ; the boy was fair and tall,

Growing in wisdom, finding grace with all.

The maids of Nazareth, as they trooped to fill

Their balanced urns beside the mountain rill,

The gathered matrons, as they sat and spun,

Spoke in soft words of Joseph's quiet
son.

No voice had reached the Galilean vale

Of star-led kings, or awe-struck shepherd's tale ;

In the meek, studious child they only saw
The future Rabbi, learned in Israel's law.

So grew the boy, and now the feast was near

When at the Holy Place the tribes appear.

Scarce had the home-bred child of Nazareth seen

Beyond the hills that girt the village
green ;

Save when at midnight, o'er the starlit
sands,

Snatched from the steel of Herod's murdering bands,

A babe, close folded to his mother's
breast,

Through Edom's wilds he sought the sheltering West.

Then Joseph spake : — “Thy boy hath largely grown ;

Weave him fine raiment, fitting to be shown ;

Fair robes beseem the pilgrim, as the priest :

Goes he not with us to the holy feast ?”

And Mary culled the flaxen fibres
white ;

Till eve she spun ; she spun till morning light.

The thread was twined ; its parting meshes through

From hand to hand her restless shuttle
flew,

Till the full web was wound upon the beam ;

Love's curious toil, — a vest without a seam !

They reach the Holy Place, fulfil the
days

To solemn feasting given, and grateful
praise.

At last they turn, and far Moriah's height

“The maids of Nazareth, as they trooped to fill

Melts in the southern sky and fades from sight.

All day the dusky caravan has flowed
In devious trails along the winding road ;
(For many a step their homeward path attends,

And all the sons of Abraham are as friends.)

Evening has come, — the hour of rest and joy, —

Hush ! Hush ! That whisper, — “Where is Mary’s boy ?”

O weary hour ! O aching days that passed

Filled with strange fears each wilder than the last, —

The soldier’s lance, the fierce centurion’s sword,

The crushing wheels that whirl some Roman lord,

The midnight crypt that sucks the cap-tive’s breath,

The blistering sun on Hinnom’s vale of death !

Thrice on his cheek had rained the morning light ;

Thrice on his lips the mildewed kiss of
night,

Crouched by a sheltering column’s shining plinth,

Or stretched beneath the odorous terebinth.

At last, in desperate mood, they sought once more

The Temple’s porches, searched in vain before ;

They found him seated with the ancient
men, —

The grim old rufflers of the tongue and pen, —

Their bald heads glistening as they clustered near,

Their gray beards slanting as they turned to hear,

Lost in half-evilicious wonder and surprise

That lips so fresh should utter words so wise.

And Mary said, — as one who, tried
too long,

Tells all her grief and half her sense of wrong, —

“ What is this thoughtless thing which thou hast done ?

Lo, we have sought thee sorrowing, O my son !”

Few words he spake, and scarce of filial tone,

Strange words, their sense a mystery
yet unknown ;

Then turned with them and left the holy hill,

To all their mild commands obedient
still.

The tale was told to Nazareth’s sober
men,

And Nazareth’s matrons told it oft
again ;

The maids retold it at the fountain’s
side,

The youthful shepherds doubted or denied ;

It passed around among the listening
friends,

With all that fancy adds and fiction lends,

Till newer marvels dimmed the young renown

Of Joseph’s son, who talked the Rabbis
down.

But Mary, faithful to its lightest word, Kept in her heart the sayings she had
heard,

Till the dread morning rent the Temple’s veil,

And shuddering earth confirmed the wondrous tale.

Youth fades ; love droops ; the leaves of friendship fall :

A mother’s secret hope outlives them all.

THE DISAPPOINTED STATESMAN.

WHO of all statesmen is his country's pride,
Her councils' prompter and her leaders'
guide ?

He speaks ; the nation holds its breath
to hear ;

He nods, and shakes the sunset hemisphere.

Born where the primal fount of Nature springs

By the rude cradles of her throneless
kings,

In his proud eye her royal signet flames,
By his own lips her Monarch she proclaims.

Why name his countless triumphs, whom to meet

Is to be famous, envied in defeat ?

The keen debaters, trained to brawls and strife,

Who fire one shot, and finish with the knife,

Tried him but once, and, covering in their shame,

Ground their hacked blades to strike at meaner game.

The lordly chief, his party's central stay, Whose lightest word a hundred votes obey,

Found a new listener seated at his side,
Looked in his eye, and felt himself defied, Flung his rash gauntlet on the startled
floor,

Met the all-conquering, fought — and ruled no more.

See where he moves, what eager crowds attend !

What shouts of thronging multitudes ascend !

If this is life, — to mark with every hour
The purple deepening in his robes of power,

To see the painted fruits of honor fall

Thick at his feet, and choose among them all,

To hear the sounds that shape his spreading name

Peal through the myriad organ-stops of
fame,

Stamp the lone isle that spots the sea-man's chart,

And crown the pillared glory of the mart,
To count as peers the few supremely wise

Who mark their planet in the angels'
eyes, —

If this is life —

What savage man is he

Who strides alone beside the sounding
sea ?

Alone he wanders by the murmuring
shore,

His thoughts as restless as the waves that roar ;

Looks on the sullen sky as stormy-browed

As on the waves yon tempest-brooding cloud,

Heaves from his aching breast a wailing sigh,

Sad as the gust that sweeps the clouded
sky.

Ask him his griefs ; what midnight demons plough

The lines of torture on his lofty brow ;
Unlock those marble lips, and bid them
speak

The mystery freezing in his bloodless
cheek.

His secret ? Hid beneath a flimsy
word ;

One foolish whisper that ambition heard ;
And thus it spake : " Behold yon gilded chair,

The world's one vacant throne, — thy place is there ! "

Ah, fatal dream ! What warning spectres meet

In ghastly circle round its shadowy seat !

Yet still the Tempter murmurs in his ear
The maddening taunt he cannot choose but hear:

“Meanest of slaves, by gods and men accurst,

He who is second when he might be first!
Climb with bold front the ladder’s topmost round,

Or chain thy creeping footsteps to the ground!”

Illustrious Dupe! Have those majestic eyes

Lost their proud fire for such a vulgar prize?

Art thou the last of all mankind to know
That party-fights are won by aiming low?

Thou, stamped by Nature with her royal
sign,

That party-hirelings hate a look like thine?

Shake from thy sense the wild delusive
dream!

Without the purple, art thou not supreme?

And soothed by love unbought, thy heart shall own

A nation’s homage nobler than its throne!

THE SECRET OF THE STARS.

Is man’s the only throbbing heart that hides

The silent spring that feeds its whispering tides?

Speak from thy caverns, mystery-breeding Earth,

Tell the half-hinted story of thy birth,
And calm the noisy champions who have thrown

The book of types against the book of stone!

Have ye not secrets, ye refulgent
spheres,

No sleepless listener of the starlight hears?

In vain the sweeping equatorial pries Through every world-sown corner of the skies,

To the far orb that so remotely strays
Our midnight darkness is its noonday
blaze;

In vain the climbing soul of creeping
man

Metes out the heavenly concave with a span,

Tracks into space the long-lost meteor’s
trail,

And weighs an unseen planet in the scale;

Still o’er their doubts the waneyed watchers sigh,

And Science lifts her still unanswered
cry:

“Are all these worlds, that speed their circling flight,

Dumb, vacant, soulless, — bawbles of the night?

Warmed with God’s smile and wafted
by his breath,

To weave in ceaseless round the dance of Death?

Or rolls a sphere in each expanding zone, Crowned with a life as varied as our
own?”

Maker of earth and stars! If thou hast taught

By what thy voice hath spoke, thy hand hath wrought,

By all that Science proves, or guesses
true,

More than thy Poet dreamed, thy prophet
knew, —

The heavens still bow in darkness at thy feet,

And shadows veil thy cloud-pavilioned seat!

Not for ourselves we ask thee to reveal

One awful word beneath the future's seal ; What thou shalt tell us, grant us strength to bear ; What thou withholdest is thy single care. Not for ourselves ; the present clings too fast, Moored to the mighty anchors of the past ; But when, with angry snap, some cable parts, The sound re-echoing in our startled hearts, — When, through the wall that clasps the harbor round, And shuts the raving ocean from its bound, Shattered and rent by sacrilegious hands, The first mad billow leaps upon the sands, — Then to the Future's awful page we turn, And what we question hardly dare to learn. Still let us hope ! for while we seem to tread The time-worn pathway of the nations dead, Though Sparta laughs at all our warlike deeds, And buried Athens claims our stolen creeds, Though Rome, a spectre on her broken throne, Beholds our eagle and recalls her own, Though England fling her pennons on the breeze And reign before us Mistress of the seas, — While calm-eyed History tracks us cir- cling round Fate's iron pillar where they all were bound, She sees new beacons crowned with brighter flame	Than the old watch-fires, like, but not the same ! Still in our path a larger curve she finds, The spiral widening as the chain un- winds ! No shameless haste shall spot with ban- dit-crime Our destined empire snatched before its time. Wait, — wait, undoubting, for the winds have caught From our bold speech the heritage of thought ; No marble form that sculptured truth can wear Vies with the image shaped in viewless air ; And thought unfettered grows through speech to deeds, As the broad forest marches in its seeds. What though we perish ere the day is won ? Enough to see its glorious work begun ! The thistle falls before a trampling clown, But who can chain the flying thistle- down ? Wait while the fiery seeds of freedom fly, The prairie blazes when the grass is dry ! What arms might ravish, leave to peaceful arts, Wisdom and love shall win the roughest hearts ; So shall the angel who has closed for man The blissful garden since his woes be- gan Swing wide the golden portals of the West, And Eden's secret stand at length con- fessed !

A POEM.

DEDICATION OF THE PITTSFIELD CEMETERY, SEPTEMBER 9, 1850.

ANGEL of Death! extend thy silent reign!
Stretch thy dark sceptre o'er this new domain!

No sable car along the winding road
Has borne to earth its unresisting load;
No sudden mound has risen yet to show
Where the pale slumberer folds his arms below;

No marble gleams to bid his memory live
In the brief lines that hurrying Time can give;

Yet, O Destroyer! from thy shrouded throne

Look on our gift; this realm is all thine own!

Fair is the scene; its sweetness oft beguiled

From their dim paths the children of the wild;

The dark-haired maiden loved its grassy dells,

The feathered warrior claimed its wooded swells,

Still on its slopes the ploughman's ridges show

The pointed flints that left his fatal bow, Chipped with rough art and slow barbarian toil, —

Last of his wrecks that strews the alien soil!

Here spread the fields that heaped their ripened store

Till the brown arms of Labor held no more;

The scythe's broad meadow with its dusky blush;

The sickle's harvest with its velvet flush;

The green-haired maize, her silken tresses laid,
In soft luxuriance, on her harsh brocade;

The gourd that swells beneath her tossing plume;

The coarser wheat that rolls in lakes of bloom, —

Its coral stems and milk-white flowers alive

With the wide murmurs of the scattered hive;

Here glowed the apple with the pencilled streak

Of morning painted on its southern cheek;

The pear's long necklace strung with golden drops,

Arched, like the banian, o'er its pillared props;

Here crept the growths that paid the laborer's care

With the cheap luxuries wealth consents to spare;

Here sprang the healing herbs which could not save

The hand that reared them from the neighboring grave.

Yet all its varied charms, forever free
From task and tribute, Labor yields to thee:

No more, when April sheds her fitful rain,

The sower's hand shall cast its flying grain;

No more, when Autumn strews the flaming leaves,

The reaper's band shall gird its yellow sheaves;

For thee alike the circling seasons flow
Till the first blossoms heave the latest snow.

In the stiff clod below the whirling drifts,

In the loose soil the springing herbage lifts,

In the hot dust beneath the parching weeds,

Life's withering flower shall drop its shriveled seeds ;
Its germ entranced in thy unbreathing sleep
Till what thou sowest mightier angels reap !

Spirit of Beauty ! let thy graces blend With loveliest Nature all that Art can lend.

Come from the bowers where Summer's life-blood flows
Through the red lips of June's half-open
rose,
Dressed in bright hues, the loving sun-shine's dower ;
For tranquil Nature owns no mourning
flower.

Come from the forest where the beech's screen

Bars the fierce noonbeam with its flakes of green ;

Stay the rude axe that bares the shadowy plains,

Stanch the deep wound that dries the maple's veins.

Come with the stream whose silverbraided rills

Fling their unclasping bracelets from the hills,

Till in one gleam, beneath the forest's
wings,

Melts the white glitter of a hundred springs.

Come from the steeps where look majestic forth

From their twin thrones the Giants of the North

On the huge shapes, that, crouching at their knees,

Stretch their broad shoulders, rough with shaggy trees.

Through the wide waste of ether, not in
vain,

Their softened gaze shall reach our distant plain ;

There, while the mourner turns his aching eyes

On the blue mounds that print the bluer
skies,

Nature shall whisper that the fading
view

Of mightiest grief may wear a heavenly hue.

Cherub of Wisdom ! let thy marble page
Leave its sad lesson, new to every age ; Teach us to live, not grudging every breath

To the chill winds that waft us on to death,

But ruling calmly every pulse it warms,
And tempering gently every word it forms.

Seraph of Love ! in heaven's adoring
zone,

Nearest of all around the central throne, While with soft hands the pillowed turf we spread

That soon shall hold us in its dreamless
bed,

With the low whisper, — Who shall first be laid

In the dark chamber's yet unbroken
shade ?—

Let thy sweet radiance shine rekindled
here,

And all we cherish grow more truly dear.
Here in the gates of Death's o'erhanging vault,

O, teach us kindness for our brother's fault ;

Lay all our wrongs beneath this peaceful sod,

And lead our hearts to Mercy and its God.

FATHER of all ! in Death's relentless
claim

We read thy mercy by its sterner name;
 In the bright flower that decks the sol-eum bier,
 We see thy glory in its narrowed sphere;
 In the deep lessons that affliction draws,
 We trace the curves of thy encircling
 laws ;
 In the long sigh that sets our spirits free,
 We own the love that calls us back to Thee !

Through the hushed street, along the silent plain,
 The spectral future leads its mourning
 train,
 Dark with the shadows of uncounted
 bands,
 Where man's white lips and woman's wringing hands
 Track the still burden, rolling slow before,
 That love and kindness can protect no
 more ;
 The smiling babe that, called to mortal
 strife,
 Shuts its meek eyes and drops its little life ;
 The drooping child who prays in vain to
 live,
 And pleads for help its parent cannot give ;
 The pride of beauty stricken in its flower ;
 The strength of manhood broken in an
 hour ;
 Age in its weakness, bowed by toil and
 care,
 Traced in sad lines beneath its silvered
 hair.

The sun shall set, and heaven's resplendent spheres Gild the smooth turf unhallowed yet by
 tears,
 But ah ! how soon the evening stars will shed

Their sleepless light around the slumbering dead !

Take them, O Father, in immortal trust !

Ashes to ashes, dust to kindred dust,
 Till the last angel rolls the stone away,
 And a new morning brings eternal day !

TO GOVERNOR SWAIN.

DEAR GOVERNOR, if my skiff might brave

The winds that lift the ocean wave,
 The mountain stream that loops and swerves

Through my broad meadow's channelled
 curves

Should waft me on from bound to bound
 To where the River weds the Sound,
 The Sound should give me to the Sea,
 That to the Bay, the Bay to Thee.

It may not be ; too long the track
 To follow down or struggle back.
 The sun has set on fair Naushon
 Long ere my western blaze is gone ;
 The ocean disk is rolling dark
 In shadows round your swinging bark,
 While yet the yellow sunset fills
 The stream that scarfs my spruce-clad
 hills ;

The day-star wakes your island deer
 Long ere my barnyard chauticleer ;
 Your mists are soaring in the blue
 While mine are sparks of glittering dew.

It may not be ; O would it might,
 Could I live o'er that glowing night !
 What golden hours would come to life,
 What goodly feats of peaceful strife, —
 Such jests, that, drained of every joke,
 The very bank of language broke, —
 Such deeds, that Laughter nearly died
 With stitches in his belted side ;

While Time, caught fast in pleasure's
chain,
His double goblet snapped in twain,
And stood with half in either hand, —
Both brimming full, — but not of sand !

It may not be ; I strive in vain
To break my slender household chain, —
Three pairs of little clasping hands,
One voice, that whispers, not commands.
Even while my spirit flies away,
My gentle jailers murmur nay ;
All shapes of elemental wrath
They raise along my threatened path ;
The storm grows black, the waters rise,
The mountains mingle with the skies,
The mad tornado scoops the ground,
The midnight robber prowls around, —
Thus, kissing every limb they tie,
They draw a knot and heave a sigh,
Till, fairly netted in the toil,
My feet are rooted to the soil.
Only the soaring wish is free ! —
And that, dear Governor, flies to thee !

PITTSFIELD, 1851.

TO AN ENGLISH FRIEND.

THE seed that wasteful autumn cast
To waver on its stormy blast,
Long o'er the wintry desert tost,

Its living germ has never lost.
Dropped by the weary tempest's wing,
It feels the kindling ray of spring,
And, starting from its dream of death,
Pours on the air its perfumed breath.

So, parted by the rolling flood,
The love that springs from common blood

Needs but a single sunlit hour
Of mingling smiles to bud and flower ;
Unharmed its slumbering life has flown,
From shore to shore, from zone to
zone,

Where summer's falling roses stain
The tepid waves of Pontchartrain,
Or where the lichen creeps below
Katahdin's wreaths of whirling snow.

Though fiery sun and stiffening cold
May change the fair ancestral mould,
No winter chills, no summer drains
The life-blood drawn from English veins,

Still bearing wheresoe'er it flows
The love that with its fountain rose, Unchanged by space, unwronged by
time,

From age to age, from clime to clime !

VIGNETTES.

1853.

AFTER A LECTURE ON WORDSWORTH.

COME, spread your wings, as I spread
mine,
And leave the crowded hall
For where the eyes of twilight shine
O'er evening's western wall.

These are the pleasant Berkshire hills,
Each with its leafy crown ;
Hark ! from their sides a thousand rills
Come singing sweetly down.

A thousand rills ; they leap and shine,
Strained through the shadowy nooks,
Till, clasped in many a gathering twine,
They swell a hundred brooks.

A hundred brooks, and still they run
With ripple, shade, and gleam,
Till, clustering all their braids in one,
They flow a single stream.

A bracelet spun from mountain mist,
A silvery sash unwound,
With ox-bow curve and sinuous twist
It writhes to reach the Sound.

This is my bark, — a pygmy's ship ;
Beneath a child it rolls ;
Fear not, — one body makes it dip,
But not a thousand souls.

Float we the grassy banks between ;
Without an oar we glide ;

The meadows, drest in living green,
Unroll on either side.

— Come, take the book we love so well,
And let us read and dream
We see what'er its pages tell,
And sail an English stream.

Up to the clouds the lark has sprung,
Still trilling as he flies ;
The linnet sings as there he sung ;
The unseen cuckoo cries,

And daisies strew the banks along,
And yellow kingcups shine,
With cowslips, and a primrose throng,
And humble celandine.

Ah foolish dream ! when Nature nursed
Her daughter in the West,
The fount was drained that opened first ;
She bared her other breast.

On the young planet's orient shore
Her morning hand she tried ;
Then turned the broad medallion o'er
And stamped the sunset side.

Take what she gives, her pine's tall stem,
Her elm with hanging spray ;
She wears her mountain diadem
Still in her own proud way.

Look on the forests' ancient kings,
The hemlock's towering pride :
Yon trunk had thrice a hundred rings,
And fell before it died.

Nor think that Nature saves her bloom
 And slights our grassy plain ;
 For us she wears her court costume, —
 Look on its brodered train ;

The lily with the sprinkled dots,
 Brands of the noontide beam ;
 The cardinal, and the blood-red spots,
 Its double in the stream,

As if some wounded eagle's breast,
 Slow throbbing o'er the plain,
 Had left its airy path impressed
 In drops of scarlet rain.

And hark ! and hark ! the woodland rings ;
 There thrilled the thrush's soul ;
 And look ! that flash of flamy wings, —
 The fire-plumed oriole !

Above, the hen-hawk swims and swoops,
 Flung from the bright, blue sky ;
 Below, the robin hops, and whoops
 His piercing, Indian cry.

Beauty runs virgin in the woods
 Robed in her rustie green,
 And oft a longing thought intrudes,
 As if we might have seen

Her every finger's every joint Ringed with some golden line,
 Poet whom Nature did anoint !
 Had our wild home been thine.

Yet think not so ; Old England's blood Runs warm in English veins ;
 But wafted o'er the icy flood
 Its better life remains :

Our children know each wildwood smell,
 The bayberry and the fern,
 The man who does not know them well
 Is all too old to learn.

Be patient ! On the breathing page Still pants our hurried past ;
 Pilgrim and soldier, saint and sage, —
 The poet comes the last !

Though still the lark-voiced matins ring
 The world has known so long ;
 The wood-thrush of the West shall sing
 Earth's last sweet even-song !

AFTER A LECTURE ON MOORE.

SHINE soft, ye trembling tears of light
 That strew the mourning skies ;
 Hushed in the silent dews of night
 The harp of Erin lies.

What though her thousand years have past
 Of poets, saints, and kings, —
 Her echoes only hear the last
 That swept those golden strings.

Fling o'er his mound, ye star-lit bowers,
 The balmiest wreaths ye wear, Whose breath has lent your earth-born
 flowers
 Heaven's own ambrosial air.

Breathe, bird of night, thy softest tone,
 By shadowy grove and rill ;
 Thy song will soothe us while we own
 That his was sweeter still.

Stay, pitying Time, thy foot for him
 Who gave thee swifter wings,
 Nor let thine envious shadow dim
 The light his glory flings.

If in his cheek unholy blood Burned for one youthful hour,
 'T was but the flushing of the bud
 That blooms a milk-white flower.

Take him, kind mother, to thy breast,
 Who loved thy smiles so well,
 And spread thy mantle o'er his rest
 Of rose and asphodel.

— The bark has sailed the midnight sea,
 The sea without a shore,
 That waved its parting sign to thee, —
 "A health to thee, Tom Moore !"

And thine, long lingering on the strand,
 Its bright-hued streamers furled,
 Was loosed by age, with trembling hand,
 To seek the silent world.

Not silent ! no, the radiant stars
 Still singing as they shine, Unheard through earth's imprisoning
 bars,
 Have voices sweet as thine.

Wake, then, in happier realms above,
 The songs of bygone years,
 Till angels learn those airs of love
 That ravished mortal ears !

AFTER A LECTURE ON KEATS.

"Purpureos spargam flores."

THE wreath that star-crowned Shelley gave
 Is lying on thy Roman grave,
 Yet on its turf young April sets
 Her store of slender violets ;
 Though all the Gods their garlands
 shower,

I too may bring one purple flower.
 — Alas ! what blossom shall I bring,
 That opens in my Northern spring ?
 The garden beds have all run wild,
 So trim when I was yet a child ;
 Flat plantains and unseemly stalks
 Have crept across the gravel walks ;
 The vines are dead, long, long ago,
 The almond buds no longer blow.

No more upon its mound I see
 The azure, plume-bound fleur-de-lis ;
 Where once the tulips used to show,
 In straggling tufts the pansies grow ;
 The grass has quenched my white-rayed gem,

The flowering "Star of Bethlehem," Though its long blade of glossy green
 And pallid stripe may still be seen.
 Nature, who treads her nobles down,
 And gives their birthright to the clown,
 Has sown her base-born weedy things
 Above the garden's queens and kings.

— Yet one sweet flower of ancient race
 Springs in the old familiar place.
 When snows were melting down the vale,

And Earth unlaced her icy mail,
 And March his stormy trumpet blew,
 And tender green came peeping through,
 I loved the earliest one to seek
 That broke the soil with emerald beak,
 And watch the trembling bells so blue
 Spread on the column as it grew.
 Meek child of earth ! thou wilt not shame
 The sweet, dead poet's holy name ;
 The God of music gave thee birth,
 Called from the crimson-spotted earth,
 Where, sobbing his young life away,
 His own fair Hyacinthus lay.

— The hyacinth my garden gave Shall lie upon that Roman grave !

AFTER A LECTURE ON SHELLEY.

ONE broad, white sail in Spezzia's treacherous bay ;
 On comes the blast ; too daring bark,
 beware !
 The cloud has clasped her ; lo ! it melts
 away ;
 The wide, waste waters, but no sail is
 there.

Morning : a woman looking on the sea ;
 Midnight : with lamps the long veranda burns ;
 Come, wandering sail, they watch, they burn for thee !
 Suns come and go, alas ! no bark returns.

And feet are thronging on the pebbly
 sands,
 And torches flaring in the weedy caves,
 Where'er the waters lay with icy hands
 The shapes uplifted from their coral graves.

Vainly they seek ; the idle quest is o'er ;
 The coarse, dark women, with their hanging locks,
 And lean, wild children gather from the shore
 To the black hovels bedded in the rocks.

But Love still prayed, with agonizing wail,
 "One, one last look, ye heaving waters, yield !"
 Till Ocean, clashing in his jointed mail, Raised the pale burden on his level shield.

Slow from the shore the sullen waves retire ;
 His form a nobler element shall
 claim ;
 Nature baptized him in ethereal fire,
 And Death shall crown him with a wreath of flame.

Fade, mortal semblance, never to return ;
 Swift is the change within thy crimson
 shroud ;
 Seal the white ashes in the peaceful urn ;
 All else has risen in yon silvery cloud.

Sleep where thy gentle Adonais lies, Whose open page lay on thy dying
 heart,
 Both in the smile of those blue-vaulted
 skies,
 Earth's fairest dome of all divinest
 art.

Breathe for his wandering soul one passing sigh,
 O happier Christian, while thine eye grows dim, —
 In all the mansions of the house on high, Say not that Mercy has not one for him !

AT THE CLOSE OF A COURSE OF LECTURES.

As the voice of the watch to the mariner's dream ;
 As the footstep of Spring on the icegirdled stream,
 There comes a soft footstep, a whisper, to me, —
 The vision is over, — the rivulet free !

We have trod from the threshold of turbulent March,
 Till the green scarf of April is hung on the larch,
 And down the bright hillside that welcomes the day,
 We hear the warm panting of beautiful
 May.

We will part before Summer has opened her wing,
 And the bosom of June swells the bodice
 of Spring,
 While the hope of the season lies fresh in the bud,
 And the young life of Nature runs warm in our blood.

It is but a word, and the chain is un-
bound,
The bracelet of steel drops unclasped to the ground ;
No hand shall replace it, — it rests where it fell, —
It is but one word that we all know too
well.

Yet the hawk with the wildness untamed in his eye,
If you free him, stares round ere he springs to the sky ;
The slave whom no longer his fetters restrain
Will turn for a moment and look at his chain.

Our parting is not as the friendship of
years,
That chokes with the blessing it speaks through its tears ;
We have walked in a garden, and, looking around,
Have plucked a few leaves from the myrtles we found.

But now at the gate of the garden we stand,
And the moment has come for unclasp-ing the hand ;
Will you drop it like lead, and in silence
retreat
Like the twenty crushed forms from an omnibus seat ?

Nay ! hold it one moment, — the last we may share, —
I stretch it in kindness, and not for my fare ;
You may pass through the doorway in rank or in file,
If your ticket from Nature is stamped with a smile.

For the sweetest of smiles is the smile as we part,
When the light round the lips is a ray from the heart ;
And lest a stray tear from its fountain might swell,
We will seal the bright spring with a quiet farewell.

THE HUDSON.

AFTER A LECTURE AT ALBANY.

"T WAS a vision of childhood that came with its dawn,
Ere the curtain that covered life's day-star was drawn ;
The nurse told the tale when the shadows grew long,
And the mother's soft lullaby breathed it in song.

"There flows a fair stream by the hills of the west," —
She sang to her boy as he lay on her
breast ;
"Along its smooth margin thy fathers have played ;
Beside its deep waters their ashes are laid."

I wandered afar from the land of my birth,
I saw the old rivers, renowned upon earth,
But fancy still painted that wide-flowing stream
With the many-hued pencil of infancy's
dream.

I saw the green banks of the castle-crowned Rhine,
Where the grapes drink the moonlight and change it to wine ;

I stood by the Avon, whose waves as they glide
Still whisper his glory who sleeps at their side.

But my heart would still yearn for the sound of the waves
That sing as they flow by my forefathers' graves ;
If manhood yet honors my cheek with a tear,

I care not who sees it, — no blush for it here !

Farewell to the deep-bosomed stream of the West !

I fling this loose blossom to float on its
breast ;

Nor let the dear love of its children grow cold,

Till the channel is dry where its waters have rolled !

December, 1854.

A POEM

FOR THE MEETING OF THE AMERICAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION AT NEW YORK,
MAY 5, 1853.

I HOLD a letter in my hand, —
A flattering letter — more 's the pity, —
By some contriving junto planned,
And signed per order of Committee ;
It touches every tenderest spot, —
My patriotic predilections,
My well-known — something — don't ask what,
My poor old songs, my kind affections.

They make a feast on Thursday next,
And hope to make the feasters merry ;
They own they 're something more perplexed

For poets than for port and sherry ; — They want the men of — (word torn
out) ;

Our friends will come with anxious faces
(To see our blankets off, no doubt,
And trot us out and show our paces).

They hint that papers by the score
Are rather musty kind of rations ;

They don't exactly mean a bore,
But only trying to the patience ;

That such as — you know who I mean — Distinguished for their — what d' ye call 'em —

Should bring the dews of Hippocrene
To sprinkle on the faces solemn.

— The same old story ; that 's the chaff
To catch the birds that sing the dit-
ties ;

Upon my soul, it makes me laugh
To read these letters from Committees !

They 're all so loving and so fair, —
All for your sake such kind compunc-tion, —

'T would save your carriage half its wear
To touch its wheels with such an unction !

Why, who am I, to lift me here
And beg such learned folk to listen, —
To ask a smile, or coax a tear
Beneath these stoic lids to glisten ?

THE HUDSON.

As well might some arterial thread
 Ask the whole frame to feel it gushing,
 While throbbing fierce from heel to head
 The vast aortic tide was rushing.

As well some hair-like nerve might strain
 To set its special streamlet going,
 While through the myriad-channelled
 brain
 The burning flood of thought was flowing ;
 Or trembling fibre strive to keep The springing haunches gathered shorter,
 While the scourged racer, leap on leap,
 Was stretching through the last hot quarter !

Ah me ! you take the bud that came Self-sown in your poor garden's borders,
 And hand it to the stately dame
 That florists breed for, all she orders ;
She thanks you — it was kindly meant — (A pale affair, not worth the keeping,) —
Good morning ; — and your bud is sent To join the tea-leaves used for sweeping.

Not always so, kind hearts and true, —
 For such I know are round me beat-
 ing ;
 Is not the bud I offer you, — Fresh gathered for the hour of meeting, —
 Pale though its outer leaves may be,
 Rose-red in all its inner petals,
 Where the warm life we cannot see —
 The life of love that gave it — settles.

We meet from regions far away,
 Like rills from distant mountains streaming ;

The sun is on Francisco's bay, O'er Chesapeake the lighthouse gleam-
 ing ;

While summer girls the still bayou
 In chains of bloom, her bridal token,
 Monadnock sees the sky grow blue,
 His crystal bracelet yet unbroken.

Yet Nature bears the selfsame heart
 Beneath her russet-mantled bosom,
 As where with burning lips apart
 She breathes, and white magnolias blossom ;
 The selfsame founts her chalice fill
 With showery sunlight running over,
 On fiery plain and frozen hill,
 On myrtle-beds and fields of clover.

I give you Home ! its crossing lines United in one golden suture,
 And showing every day that shines
 The present growing to the future, —
 A flag that bears a hundred stars
 In one bright ring, with love for centre,
 Fenced round with white and crimson
 bars,
 No prowling treason dares to enter !

O brothers, home may be a word
 To make affection's living treasure —
 The wave an angel might have stirred —
 A stagnant pool of selfish pleasure ;
 HOME ! It is where the day-star springs
 And where the evening sun reposes, Where'er the eagle spreads his wings,
 From northern pines to southern roses !

A SENTIMENT.

A TRIPLE health to Friendship, Science, Art,
 From heads and hands that own a common heart !

Each in its turn the others' willing slave, —
 Each in its season strong to heal and save.

Friendship's blind service, in the hour of need,
 Wipes the pale face — and lets the victim bleed.
 Science must stop to reason and explain;
 ART claps his finger on the streaming vein.

But Art's brief memory fails the hand at last;
 Then SCIENCE lifts the flambeau of the
 past.
 When both their equal impotence deplore, —
 When Learning sighs, and Skill can do no more, —
 The tear of FRIENDSHIP pours its heavenly balm,
 And soothes the pang no anodyne may calm!

THE NEW EDEN.

MEETING OF THE BERKSHIRE HORTI-CULTURAL SOCIETY, AT STOCKBRIDGE,
 SEPT. 13, 1854.

SCARCE could the parting ocean close, Seamed by the Mayflower's cleaving
 bow,
 When o'er the rugged desert rose
 The waves that tracked the Pilgrim's plough.

Then sprang from many a rock-strewn
 field
 The rippling grass, the nodding grain,
 Such growths as English meadows yield
 To scanty sun and frequent rain.

But when the fiery days were done,
 And Autumn brought his purple haze,
 Then, kindling in the slanted sun,
 The hillsides gleamed with golden maize.

The food was scant, the fruits were few:
 A red-streak glistening here and there;
 Perchance in statelier precincts grew
 Some stern old Puritanic pear.

Austere in taste, and tough at core,
 Its unrelenting bulk was shed,
 To ripen in the Pilgrim's store
 When all the summer sweets were fled.

Such was his lot, to front the storm
 With iron heart and marble brow,
 Nor ripen till his earthly form
 Was cast from life's autumnal bough.

— But ever on the bleakest rock
 We bid the brightest beacon glow,
 And still upon the thorniest stock
 The sweetest roses love to blow.

So on our rude and wintry soil
 We feed the kindling flame of art,
 And steal the tropic's blushing spoil
 To bloom on Nature's ice-clad heart.

See how the softening Mother's breast Warms to her children's patient wiles, —

Her lips by loving Labor pressed Break in a thousand dimpling smiles,

From when the flushing bud of June Dawns with its first auroral hue,
 Till shines the rounded harvest-moon,
 And velvet dahlias drink the dew.

Nor these the only gifts she brings;
 Look where the laboring orchard groans,
 And yields its beryl-threaded strings
 For chestnut burs and hemlock cones.

Dear though the shadowy maple be,
 And dearer still the whispering pine,
 Dearest yon russet-laden tree
 Browed by the heavy rubbing kine !

There childhood flung its rustling stone,
 There venturous boyhood learned to climb, —

How well the early graft was known
 Whose fruit was ripe ere harvest-time !

Nor be the Fleming's pride forgot,
 With swinging drops and drooping bells,

Freckled and splashed with streak and
 spot,
 On the warm-breasted, sloping swells ;

Nor Persia's painted garden-queen, —
 Frail Houri of the trellised wall, — Her deep-cleft bosom scarfed with
 green, —
 Fairest to see, and first to fall.

When man provoked his mortal doom,
 And Eden trembled as he fell,
 When blossoms sighed their last perfume,
 And branches waved their long fare-
 well,

One sneeker crept beneath the gate,
 One seed was wafted o'er the wall,
 One bough sustained his trembling weight ;
 These left the garden, — these were all.

And far o'er many a distant zone
 These wrecks of Eden still are flung :
 The fruits that Paradise hath known
 Are still in earthly gardens hung.

Yes, by our own unstoried stream
 The pink-white apple-blossoms burst

That saw the young Euphrates gleam, —
 That Gihon's circling waters nursed.

For us the ambrosial pear displays
 The wealth its arching branches hold,
 Bathed by a hundred summery days
 In floods of mingling fire and gold.

And here, where beauty's cheek of flame
 With morning's earliest beam is fed,
 The sunset-painted peach may claim
 To rival its celestial red.

— What though in some unmoistened
 vale
 The summer leaf grow brown and sere,
 Say, shall our star of promise fail
 That circles half the rolling sphere,

From beaches salt with bitter spray,
 O'er prairies green with softest rain,
 And ridges bright with evening's ray,
 To rocks that shade the stormless
 main ?

If by our slender-threaded streams
 The blade and leaf and blossom die,
 If, drained by noontide's parching
 beams,
 The milky veins of Nature dry,

See, with her swelling bosom bare,
 Yon wild-eyed Sister in the West, —
 The ring of Empire round her hair,
 The Indian's wampum on her breast !

We saw the August sun descend,
 Day after day, with blood-red stain,
 And the blue mountains dimly blend
 With smoke-wreaths from the burning
 plain ;

Beneath the hot Sirocco's wings
 We sat and told the withering hours,

Till Heaven unsealed its hoarded springs,
And bade them leap in flashing showers.

Yet in our Ishmael's thirst we knew
The mercy of the Sovereign hand Would pour the fountain's quickening dew
To feed some harvest of the land.

No flaming swords of wrath surround
Our second Garden of the Blest ;
It spreads beyond its rocky bound,
It climbs Nevada's glittering crest.

God keep the tempter from its gate !
God shield the children, lest they fall
From their stern fathers' free estate, —
Till Ocean is its only wall !

SEMICENTENNIAL CELEBRATION OF THE NEW ENGLAND SOCIETY,

NEW YORK, DEC. 22, 1855.

NEW ENGLAND, we love thee ; no time can erase
From the hearts of thy children the smile on thy face.
'T is the mother's fond look of affection and pride,
As she gives her fair son to the arms of his bride.

His bride may be fresher in beauty's young flower ;
She may blaze in the jewels she brings with her dower.
But passion must chill in Time's pitiless
blast ;
The one that first loved us will love to the last.

You have left the dear land of the lake and the hill,
But its winds and its waters will talk with you still.

"Forget not," they whisper, "your love is our debt,"
And echo breathes softly, "We never forget."

The banquet's gay splendors are gleaming around,
But your hearts have flown back o'er the waves of the Sound ;
They have found the brown home where their pulses were born ;
They are throbbing their way through the trees and the corn.

There are roofs you remember, — their glory is fled ;
There are mounds in the churchyard, — one sigh for the dead.
There are wrecks, there are ruins, all scattered around ;
But Earth has no spot like that corner of ground.

Come, let us be cheerful, — remember last night,
How they cheered us, and — never mind
— meant it all right ;
To-night, we harm nothing, — we love in the lump ;
Here's a bumper to Maine, in the juice of the pump !

Here's to all the good people, wherever they be,
Who have grown in the shade of the liberty-tree ;
We all love its leaves, and its blossoms and fruit,
But pray have a care of the fence round its root.

We should like to talk big ; it's a kind of a right,
When the tongue has got loose and the waistband grown tight ;

“It climbs Nevada's glittering crest.”

But, as pretty Miss Prudence remarked to her beau,
On its own heap of compost, no biddy should crow.

Enough! There are gentlemen waiting to talk,
Whose words are to mine as the flower to the stalk.
Stand by your old mother whatever be-
fall;
God bless all her children! Good night to you all!

FAREWELL.

TO J. R. LOWELL.

FAREWELL, for the bark has her breast to the tide,
And the rough arms of Ocean are stretched for his bride;
The winds from the mountain stream over the bay;
One clasp of the hand, then away and
away!

I see the tall mast as it rocks by the shore;
The sun is declining, I see it once more;
To-day like the blade in a thick-waving
field,
To-morrow the spike on a Highlander's
shield.

Alone, while the cloud pours its treacherous breath,
With the blue lips all round her whose kisses are death;
Ah, think not the breeze that is urging her sail
Has left her unaided to strive with the gale.

There are hopes that play round her,
like fires on the mast,

That will light the dark hour till its danger has past;
There are prayers that will plead with the storm when it raves,
And whisper "Be still!" to the turbulent waves.

Nay, think not that Friendship has called us in vain
To join the fair ring ere we break it
again;
There is strength in its circle, — you lose the bright star,
But its sisters still chain it, though shining afar.

I give you one health in the juice of the vine,
The blood of the vineyard shall mingle with mine;
Thus, thus let us drain the last dew-drops of gold,
As we empty our hearts of the blessings they hold.

April 29, 1855.

FOR THE MEETING OF THE BURNS CLUB.

1856.

THE mountains glitter in the snow
A thousand leagues asunder;
Yet here, amid the banquet's glow,
I hear their voice of thunder;
Each giant's ice-bound goblet clinks;
A flowing stream is summoned;
Wachusset to Ben Nevis drinks;
Monadnock to Ben Lomond!

Though years have clipped the eagle's plume
That crowned the chieftain's bonnet,
The sun still sees the heather bloom,
The silver mists lie on it;

With tartan kilt and philibeg,
 What stride was ever bolder
 Than his who showed the naked leg
 Beneath the plaided shoulder?

The echoes sleep on Cheviot's hills,
 That heard the bugles blowing
 When down their sides the crimson rills
 With mingled blood were flowing;
 The hunts where gallant hearts were game,
 The slashing on the border,
 The raid that swooped with sword and
 flame,
 Give place to "law and order."

Not while the rocking steeples reel
 With midnight tocsins ringing,
 Not while the crashing war-notes peal,
 God sets his poets singing;
 The bird is silent in the night,
 Or shrieks a cry of warning While fluttering round the beacon-
 light, —
 But hear him greet the morning!

The lark of Scotia's morning sky!
 Whose voice may sing his praises?
 With Heaven's own sunlight in his eye,
 He walked among the daisies,
 Till through the cloud of fortune's wrong
 He soared to fields of glory;
 But left his land her sweetest song
 And earth her saddest story.

'T is not the forts the builder piles
 That chain the earth together;
 The wedded crowns, the sister isles,
 Would laugh at such a tether;
 The kindling thought, the throbbing
 words,
 That set the pulses beating,
 Are stronger than the myriad swords
 Of mighty armies meeting.

Thus while within the banquet glows,
 Without, the wild winds whistle,
 We drink a triple health, — the Rose,
 The Shamrock, and the Thistle!
 Their blended hues shall never fade
 Till War has hushed his cannon, —
 Close-twined as ocean-currents braid
 The Thames, the Clyde, the Shannon!

ODE FOR WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY.

CELEBRATION OF THE MERCANTILE LI-BRARY ASSOCIATION, FEB. 22, 1856.

WELCOME to the day returning,
 Dearer still as ages flow,
 While the torch of Faith is burning,
 Long as Freedom's altars glow!
 See the hero whom it gave us
 Slumbering on a mother's breast;
 For the arm he stretched to save us,
 Be its morn forever blest!

Hear the tale of youthful glory,
 While of Britain's rescued band Friend and foe repeat the story,
 Spread his fame o'er sea and land,
 Where the red cross, proudly streaming,
 Flaps above the frigate's deck,
 Where the golden lilies, gleaming,
 Star the watch-towers of Quebec.

Look! The shadow on the dial Marks the hour of deadlier strife;
 Days of terror, years of trial,
 Scourge a nation into life.
 Lo, the youth, become her leader!
 All her baffled tyrants yield;
 Through his arm the Lord hath freed her;
 Crown him on the tented field!

Vain is Empire's mad temptation!
 Not for him an earthly crown!

He whose sword hath freed a nation !
 Strikes the offered sceptre down.
 See the throneless Conqueror seated,
 Ruler by a people's choice ;
 See the Patriot's task completed ;
 Hear the Father's dying voice !

“ By the name that you inherit,
 By the sufferings you recall,
 Cherish the fraternal spirit ;
 Love your country first of all !
 Listen not to idle questions
 If its bands may be untied ;
 Doubt the patriot whose suggestions
 Strive a nation to divide ! ”

Father ! We, whose ears have tingled
 With the discord-notes of shame, —
 We, whose sires their blood have mingled
 In the battle's thunder-flame, —
 Gathering, while this holy morning
 Lights the land from sea to sea,
 Hear thy counsel, heed thy warning ;
 Trust us, while we honor thee !

BIRTHDAY OF DANIEL WEBSTER.

JANUARY 18, 1856.

WHEN life hath run its largest round
 Of toil and triumph, joy and woe,
 How brief a storied page is found
 To compass all its outward show !

The world-tried sailor tires and droops ;
 His flag is rent, his keel forgot ;
 His farthest voyages seem but loops
 That float from life's entangled knot.

But when within the narrow space
 Some larger soul hath lived and wrought,
 Whose sight was open to embrace The boundless realms of deed and
 thought, —

When, stricken by the freezing blast,
 A nation's living pillars fall,
 How rich the storied page, how vast,
 A word, a whisper, can recall !

No medal lifts its fretted face,
 Nor speaking marble cheats your eye,
 Yet, while these pictured lines I trace,
 A living image passes by :

A roof beneath the mountain pines ;
 The cloisters of a hill-girt plain ;
 The front of life's embattled lines ;
 A mound beside the heaving main.

These are the scenes : a boy appears ;
 Set life's round dial in the sun,
 Count the swift arc of seventy years,
 His frame is dust ; his task is done.

Yet pause upon the noontide hour,
 Ere the declining sun has laid
 His bleaching rays on manhood's power,
 And look upon the mighty shade.

No gloom that stately shape can hide,
 No change uncrown its brow ; behold !
 Dark, calm, large-fronted, lightning-
 eyed,
 Earth has no double from its mould !

Ere from the fields by valor won
 The battle-smoke had rolled away,
 And bared the blood-red setting sun,
 His eyes were opened on the day.

His land was but a shelving strip
 Black with the strife that made it free ;
 He lived to see its banners dip
 Their fringes in the Western sea.

The boundless prairies learned his name,
 His words the mountain echoes knew,
 The Northern breezes swept his fame
 From icy lake to warm bayou.

In toil he lived ; in peace he died ;
When life's full cycle was complete,
Put off his robes of power and pride,
And laid them at his Master's feet.

His rest is by the storm-swept waves Whom life's wild tempests roughly tried,
Whose heart was like the streaming caves
Of ocean, throbbing at his side.

Death's cold white hand is like the snow
Laid softly on the furrowed hill,
It hides the broken seams below,
And leaves the summit brighter
still.

In vain the envious tongue upbraids ;
His name a nation's heart shall keep Till morning's latest sunlight fades
On the blue tablet of the deep !

II. — 1857 - 1861.

THE VOICELESS.

WE count the broken lyres that rest
Where the sweet wailing singers slumber,

But o'er their silent sister's breast
The wild-flowers who will stoop to number?

A few can touch the magic string,
And noisy Fame is proud to win them : —

Alas for those that never sing,
But die with all their music in them !

Nay, grieve not for the dead alone
Whose song has told their hearts' sad story, —

Weep for the voiceless, who have known
The cross without the crown of glory !
Not where Lencadian breezes sweep

O'er Sappho's memory-haunted billow, But where the glistening night-dews
weep

On nameless sorrow's churchyard pillow.

O hearts that break and give no sign
Save whitening lip and fading tresses,
Till Death pours out his cordial wine Slow-dropped from Misery's crushing presses, —

If singing breath or echoing chord
To every hidden pang were given,
What endless melodies were poured,
As sad as earth, as sweet as heaven !

THE TWO STREAMS.

BEHOLD the rocky wall
That down its sloping sides

Pours the swift rain-drops, blending, as they fall,
In rushing river-tides !

Yon stream, whose sources run
Turned by a pebble's edge,
Is Athabasca, rolling toward the sun
Through the cleft mountain-ledge.

The slender rill had strayed,
But for the slanting stone,
To evening's ocean, with the tangled braid
Of foam-flecked Oregon.

So from the heights of Will Life's parting stream descends,
And, as a moment turns its slender rill,
Each widening torrent bends, —

From the same cradle's side,
From the same mother's knee, —
One to long darkness and the frozen tide,
One to the Peaceful Sea !

THE PROMISE.

Nor charity we ask,
Nor yet thy gift refuse ;
Please thy light fancy with the easy task
Only to look and choose.

The little-headed toy
That wins thy treasured gold
May be the dearest memory, holiest joy,
Of coming years untold.

Heaven rains on every heart,
But there its showers divide,

The drops of mercy choosing as they part
The dark or glowing side.

One kindly deed may turn
The fountain of thy soul
To love's sweet day-star, that shall o'er thee burn
Long as its currents roll !

The pleasures thou hast planned, —
Where shall their memory be When the white angel with the freezing
hand
Shall sit and watch by thee ?

Living, thou dost not live,
If mercy's spring run dry ;
What Heaven has lent thee wilt thou freely give,
Dying, thou shalt not die !

HE promised even so !
To thee His lips repeat, — Behold, the tears that soothed thy sister's woe
Have washed thy Master's feet !

March 20, 1859.

AVIS.

I MAY not rightly call thy name, —
Alas ! thy forehead never knew
The kiss that happier children claim,
Nor glistened with baptismal dew.

Daughter of want and wrong and woe,
I saw thee with thy sister-band, Snatched from the whirlpool's narrowing flow
By Mercy's strong yet trembling hand.

— "Avis!" — With Saxon eye and cheek,
At once a woman and a child,
The saint uncrowned I came to seek Drew near to greet us, — spoke, and smiled.

God gave that sweet sad smile she wore
All wrong to shame, all souls to win, —
A heavenly sunbeam sent before Her footsteps through a world of sin.

— "And who is Avis?" — Hear the tale
The calm-voiced matrons gravely
tell, —

The story known through all the vale
Where Avis and her sisters dwell.

With the lost children running wild,
Strayed from the hand of human care,
They find one little refuse child Left helpless in its poisoned lair.

The primal mark is on her face, —
The chattel-stamp, — the pariah-stain
That follows still her hunted race, —
The curse without the crime of Cain.

How shall our smooth-turned phrase relate
The little suffering outcast's ail ?
Not Lazarus at the rich man's gate
So turned the rose-wreathed revellers pale.

Ah, veil the living death from sight
That wounds our beauty-loving eye !
The children turn in selfish fright,
The white-lipped nurses hurry by.

Take her, dread Angel ! Break in love
This bruised reed and make it thine ! —
No voice descended from above,
But Avis answered, "She is mine."

The task that dainty menials spurn
The fair young girl has made her own ;
Her heart shall teach, her hand shall learn
The toils, the duties yet unknown.

So Love and Death in lingering strife
Stand face to face from day to day,

Still battling for the spoil of Life
While the slow seasons creep away.

Love conquers Death ; the prize is won ;
See to her joyous bosom pressed
The dusky daughter of the sun, —
The bronze against the marble breast !

Her task is done ; no voice divine
Has crowned her deeds with saintly
fame.

No eye can see the aureole shine
That rings her brow with heavenly flame.

Yet what has holy page more sweet,
Or what had woman's love more fair,
When Mary clasped her Saviour's feet
With flowing eyes and streaming hair ?

Meek child of sorrow, walk unknown,
The Angel of that earthly throng,
And let thine image live alone
To hallow this unstudied song !

THE LIVING TEMPLE.

NOT in the world of light alone,
Where God has built his blazing throne
Nor yet alone in earth below,
With belted seas that come and go,
And endless isles of sunlit green,
Is all thy Maker's glory seen :
Look in upon thy wondrous frame, —
Eternal wisdom still the same !

The smooth, soft air with pulse-like waves
Flows murmuring through its hidden caves,
Whose streams of brightening purple rush,
Fired with a new and livelier blush,
While all their burden of decay
The ebbing current steals away,

And red with Nature's flame they start
From the warm fountains of the heart.

No rest that throbbing slave may ask,
Forever quivering o'er his task,
While far and wide a crimson jet Leaps forth to fill the woven net
Which in unnumbered crossing tides
The flood of burning life divides,
Then, kindling each decaying part,
Creeps back to find the throbbing heart.

But warmed with that unchanging flame
Behold the outward moving frame,
Its living marbles jointed strong
With glistening band and silvery thong,
And linked to reason's guiding reins
By myriad rings in trembling chains,
Each graven with the threaded zone
Which claims it as the master's own.

See how yon beam of seeming white
Is braided out of seven-hued light,
Yet in those lucid globes no ray
By any chance shall break astray.
Hark how the rolling surge of sound,
Arches and spirals circling round, Wakes the hushed spirit through thine
ear
With music it is heaven to hear.

Then mark the cloven sphere that holds
All thought in its mysterious folds.
That feels sensations faintest thrill,
And flashes forth the sovereign will ;
Think on the stormy world that dwells
Locked in its dim and clustering cells !
The lightning gleams of power it sheds
Along its hollow glassy threads !

O Father ! grant thy love divine
To make these mystic temples thine !
When wasting age and wearying strife
Have sapped the leaning walls of life,

When darkness gathers over all,
And the last tottering pillars fall,
Take the poor dust thy mercy warms,
And mould it into heavenly forms !

AT A BIRTHDAY FESTIVAL

TO J. R. LOWELL.

WE will not speak of years to-night, —
For what have years to bring
But larger floods of love and light,
And sweeter songs to sing ?

We will not drown in wordy praise
The kindly thoughts that rise ;
If Friendship own one tender phrase,
He reads it in our eyes.

We need not waste our school-boy art
To gild this notch of Time ; —
Forgive me if my wayward heart
Has throbb'd in artless rhyme.

Enough for him the silent grasp
That knits us hand in hand,
And he the bracelet's radiant clasp
That locks our circling band.

Strength to his hours of manly toil !
Peace to his starlit dreams !
Who loves alike the furrowed soil,
The music-haunted streams !

Sweet smiles to keep forever bright
The sunshine on his lips,
And faith that sees the ring of light
Round nature's last eclipse !

February 22, 1859.

A BIRTHDAY TRIBUTE.

TO J. F. CLARKE.

WHO is the shepherd sent to lead, Through pastures green, the Master's sheep ?

What guileless "Israelite indeed"
The folded flock may watch and keep ?

He who with manliest spirit joins
The heart of gentlest human mould,
With burning light and girded loins,
To guide the flock, or watch the fold ;

True to all Truth the world denies,
Not tongue-tied for its gilded sin ;
Not always right in all men's eyes,
But faithful to the light within ;

Who asks no meed of earthly fame,
Who knows no earthly master's call,
Who hopes for man, through guilt and
shame,
Still answering, "God is over all" ;

Who makes another's grief his own,
Whose smile lends joy a double cheer ;
Where lives the saint, if such be known? —
Speak softly, — such an one is here !

O faithful shepherd ! thou hast borne
The heat and burden of the day ;
Yet, o'er thee, bright with beams unshorn,
The sun still shows thine onward way.

To thee our fragrant love we bring,
In buds that April half displays,
Sweet first-born angels of the spring, Caught in their opening hymn of praise.

What though our faltering accents fail,
Our captives know their message well,
Our words unbreathed their lips exhale,
And sigh more love than ours can tell.

April 4, 1860.

THE GRAY CHIEF.

FOR THE MEETING OF THE MASSACHUSETTS MEDICAL SOCIETY, 1859.

'T is sweet to fight our battles o'er,
And crown with honest praise
The gray old chief, who strikes no
more
The blow of better days.

Before the true and trusted sage
With willing hearts we bend,
When years have touched with hallowing
age
Our Master, Guide, and Friend.

For all his manhood's labor past,
For love and faith long tried,
His age is honored to the last,
Though strength and will have died.

But when, untamed by toil and strife,
Full in our front he stands,
The torch of light, the shield of life,
Still lifted in his hands,

No temple, though its walls resound
With bursts of ringing cheers,
Can hold the honors that surround
His manhood's twice-told years !

THE LAST LOOK.

W. W. SWAIN.

BEHOLD — not him we knew !
This was the prison which his soul looked through,
Tender, and brave, and true.

His voice no more is heard ;
And his dead name — that dear familiar
word —
Lies on our lips unstirred.

He spake with poet's tongue ;
Living, for him the minstrel's lyre was strung :
He shall not die unsung !

Grief tried his love, and pain ;
And the long bondage of his martyr-
chain
Vexed his sweet soul, — in vain !

It felt life's surges break,
As, girt with stormy seas, his island lake,
Smiling while tempests wake.

How can we sorrow more ?
Grieve not for him whose heart had gone before
To that untrodden shore !

Lo, through its leafy screen,
A gleam of sunlight on a ring of green,
Untrodden, half unseen !

Here let his body rest,
Where the calm shadows that his soul loved best
May slide above his breast.

Smooth his uncurtained bed ;
And if some natural tears are softly shed,
It is not for the dead.

Fold the green turf aright
For the long hours before the morning's
light,
And say the last Good Night !

And plant a clear white stone Close by those mounds which hold his loved, his own, — Lonely, but not alone.

Here let him sleeping lie, Till Heaven's bright watchers slumber in the sky
And Death himself shall die !

NAUSHON, September 22, 1858.

IN MEMORY OF CHARLES WENT-WORTH UPHAM, JR.

HE was all sunshine ; in his face
The very soul of sweetness shone ;
Fairest and gentlest of his race ;
None like him we can call our own.

Something there was of one that died
In her fresh spring-time long ago,
Our first dear Mary, angel-eyed,
Whose smile it was a bliss to know.

Something of her whose love imparts
Such radiance to her day's decline,
We feel its twilight in our hearts
Bright as the earliest morning-shine.

Yet richer strains our eye could trace
That made our plainer mould more
fair,
That curved the lip with happier grace,
That waved the soft and silken hair.

Dust unto dust ! the lips are still
That only spoke to cheer and bless ;
The folded hands lie white and chill
Unclasped from sorrow's last caress.

Leave him in peace ; he will not heed
These idle tears we vainly pour,
Give back to earth the fading weed
Of mortal shape his spirit wore.

"Shall I not weep my heartstrings torn,
My flower of love that falls half blown,
My youth uncrowned, my life forlorn,
A thorny path to walk alone ?"

O Mary ! one who bore thy name,
Whose Friend and Master was divine,
Sat waiting silent till He came,
Bowed down in speechless grief like thine.

"Where have ye laid him ?" "Come,"
they say,

Pointing to where the loved one slept ;
Weeping, the sister led the way, —
And, seeing Mary, "Jesus wept."

He weeps with thee, with all that mourn,
And He shall wipe thy streaming eyes
Who knew all sorrows, woman-born, —
Trust in his word ; thy dead shall rise !

April 15, 1860.

MARTHA.

DIED JANUARY 7, 1861.

Sexton ! Martha's dead and gone ;
Toll the bell ! toll the bell !
Her weary hands their labor cease ;
Good night, poor Martha, — sleep in peace !
Toll the bell !

Sexton ! Martha's dead and gone ;
Toll the bell ! toll the bell !
For many a year has Martha said,
"I'm old and poor, — would I were dead !"
Toll the bell !

Sexton ! Martha's dead and gone ;
Toll the bell ! toll the bell !
She'll bring no more, by day or night,
Her basket full of linen white.
Toll the bell !

Sexton ! Martha's dead and gone ;
Toll the bell ! toll the bell !
'T is fitting she should lie below
A pure white sheet of drifted snow.
Toll the bell !

Sexton ! Martha's dead and gone ;
Toll the bell ! toll the bell !

Sleep, Martha, sleep, to wake in light,
Where all the robes are stainless white.
Toll the bell !

MEETING OF THE ALUMNI OF HARVARD COLLEGE.

1857.

I THANK you, MR. PRESIDENT, you 've kindly broke the ice ;
Virtue should always be the first, — I 'm only SECOND VICE — (A vice is something with a screw that 's made to hold its jaw Till some old file has played away upon an ancient saw).

Sweet brothers by the Mother's side,
the babes of days gone by,
All nurslings of her Juno breasts whose milk is never dry,
We come again, like half-grown boys,
and gather at her beck About her knees, and on her lap, and clinging round her neck.

We find her at her stately door, and in her ancient chair,
Dressed in the robes of red and green
she always loved to wear.
Her eye has all its radiant youth, her cheek its morning flame ;
We drop our roses as we go, hers flourish still the same.

We have been playing many an hour, and far away we 've strayed,
Some laughing in the cheerful sun, some lingering in the shade ;
And some have tired, and laid them down where darker shadows fall, — Dear as her loving voice may be, they cannot hear its call.

What miles we 've travelled since we shook the dew-drops from our shoes

We gathered on this classic green, so famed for heavy dues !
How many boys have joined the game,
how many slipped away,
Since we 've been running up and down,
and having out our play !

One boy at work with book and brief,
and one with gown and band,
One sailing vessels on the pool, one digging in the sand,
One flying paper kites on change, one planting little pills, —
The seeds of certain annual flowers well known as little bills.

What maidens met us on our way, and clasped us hand in hand !
What cherubs, — not the legless kind,
that fly, but never stand !
How many a youthful head we 've seen put on its silver crown !
What sudden changes back again to youth's empurpled brown !

But fairer sights have met our eyes, and broader lights have shone, Since others lit their midnight lamps where once we trimmed our own ;
A thousand trains that flap the sky with flags of rushing fire,
And, throbbing in the Thunderer's hand,
Thought's million-chorded lyre.

We 've seen the sparks of Empire fly beyond the mountain bars, Till, glittering o'er the Western wave, they joined the setting stars ;
And ocean trodden into paths that trampling giants ford,
To find the planet's vertebræ and sink its spinal cord.

We 've tried reform, — and chloroform,
— and both have turned our brain ;

When France called up the photograph,
we roused the foe to pain ;
Just so those earlier sages shared the chaplet of renown, —
Hers sent a bladder to the clouds, ours brought their lightning down.

We 've seen the little tricks of life, its varnish and veneer,
Its stucco-fronts of character flake off and disappear,
We 've learned that oft the brownest hands will heap the biggest pile,
And met with many a "perfect brick" beneath a rimless "tile."

What dreams we 've had of deathless name, as scholars, statesmen, bards, While Fame, the lady with the trump,
held up her picture cards !
Till, having nearly played our game, she gayly whispered, "Ah !
I said you should be something grand, — you 'll soon be grandpapa."

Well, well, the old have had their day, the young must take their turn ;
There 's something always to forget, and something still to learn ;
But how to tell what 's old or young,
the tap-root from the sprigs, Since Florida revealed her fount to Ponce de Leon Twigg's ?

The wisest was a Freshman once, just freed from bar and bolt,
As noisy as a kettle-drum, as leggy as a colt ;
Don't be too savage with the boys, —
the Primer does not say
The kitten ought to go to church because the cat doth prey.

The law of merit and of age is not the rule of three ;

Non constat that A. M. must prove as busy as A. B.

When Wise the father tracked the son, ballooning through the skies,
He taught a lesson to the old, — go thou and do like Wise !

Now then, old boys, and reverend youth,
of high of low degree, Remember how we only get one annual out of three,
And such as dare to simmer down three dinners into one Must cut their salads mighty short, and pepper well with fun.

I 've passed my zenith long ago, it 's time for me to set ;
A dozen planets wait to shine, and I am lingering yet,
As sometimes in the blaze of day a milk-and-watery moon
Stains with its dim and fading ray the lustrous blue of noon.

Farewell ! yet let one echo rise to shake our ancient hall ;
God save the Queen, — whose throne is here, — the Mother of us all !
Till dawns the great commencement-day on every shore and sea,
And "Expectantur" all mankind, to take their last Degree !

THE PARTING SONG.

FESTIVAL OF THE ALUMNI, 1857.

THE noon of summer sheds its ray
On Harvard's holy ground ;
The Matron calls, the sons obey,
And gather smiling round.

CHORUS.

Then old and young together stand,
The sunshine and the snow,

As heart to heart, and hand in hand,
We sing before we go !

Her hundred opening doors have swung ;
Through every storied hall
The pealing echoes loud have rung,
"Thrice welcome one and all !"
Then old and young, etc.

We floated through her peaceful bay,
To sail life's stormy seas ;
But left our anchor where it lay Beneath her green old trees.
Then old and young, etc.

As now we lift its lengthening chain,
That held us fast of old,
The rusted rings grow bright again, —
Their iron turns to gold.
Then old and young, etc.

Though scattered ere the setting sun,
As leaves when wild winds blow,
Our home is here, our hearts are one,
Till Charles forgets to flow.
Then old and young, etc.

FOR THE MEETING OF THE NATIONAL SANITARY ASSOCIATION.

1860.

WHAT makes the Healing Art divine ?
The bitter drug we buy and sell,
The brands that scorch, the blades that shine,
The sears we leave, the "cures" we
tell ?

Are these thy glories, holiest Art, —
The trophies that adorn thee best, —
Or but thy triumph's meanest part, — Where mortal weakness stands confessed ?

We take the arms that Heaven supplies
For Life's long battle with Disease,
Taught by our various need to prize
Our frailest weapons, even these.

But ah ! when Science drops her shield —
Its peaceful shelter proved in vain —
And bares her snow-white arm to wield
The sad, stern ministry of pain ;

When shuddering o'er the fount of life,
She folds her heaven-anointed wings,
To lift unmoved the glittering knife
That searches all its crimson springs ;

When, faithful to her ancient lore,
She thrusts aside her fragrant balm
For blistering juice, or cankering ore,
And tames them till they cure or
calm ;

When in her gracious hand are seen
The dregs and scum of earth and seas,
Her kindness counting all things clean
That lend the sighing sufferer ease ;

Though on the field that Death has won,
She save some stragglers in retreat ; —
These single acts of mercy done
Are but confessions of defeat.

What though our tempered poisons save Some wrecks of life from aches and
ails ;
Those grand specifics Nature gave Were never poised by weights or scales !

God lent his creatures light and air,
And waters open to the skies ;
Man locks him in a stifling lair,
And wonders why his brother dies !

In vain our pitying tears are shed,
In vain we rear the sheltering pile

Where Art weeds out from bed to bed
The plagues we planted by the mile !

Be that the glory of the past ;
With these our sacred toils begin :
So flies in tatters from its mast
The yellow flag of sloth and sin,

And lo ! the starry folds reveal
The blazoned truth we hold so dear :
To guard is better than to heal, —
The shield is nobler than the spear !

FOR THE BURNS CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION.

JANUARY 25, 1859.

His birthday. — Nay, we need not speak
The name each heart is beating, —
Each glistening eye and flushing cheek
In light and flame repeating !

We come in one tumultuous tide, —
One surge of wild emotion, —
As crowding through the Frith of Clyde Rolls in the Western Ocean ;

As when yon cloudless, quartered moon
Hangs o'er each storied river,
The swelling breasts of Ayr and Doon
With sea-green wavelets quiver.

The century shrivels like a scroll, —
The past becomes the present, —
And face to face, and soul to soul,
We greet the monarch-peasant.

While Shenstone strained in feeble flights
With Corydon and Phillis, — While Wolfe was climbing Abraham's heights
To snatch the Bourbon lilies, —

Who heard the wailing infant's cry,
The babe beneath the sheeling,

Whose song to-night in every sky
Will shake earth's starry ceiling, —

Whose passion-breathing voice ascends
And floats like incense o'er us,
Whose ringing lay of friendship blends
With labor's anvil chorus ?

We love him, not for sweetest song,
Though never tone so tender ;
We love him, even in his wrong, —
His wasteful self-surrender.

We praise him, not for gifts divine, —
His Muse was born of woman, —
His manhood breathes in every line, —
Was ever heart more human ?

We love him, praise him, just for this :
In every form and feature,
Through wealth and want, through woe and bliss,
He saw his fellow-creature !

No soul could sink beneath his love, —
Not even angel blasted ;
No mortal power could soar above
The pride that all outlasted !

Ay ! Heaven had set one living man
Beyond the pedant's tether, —
His virtues, frailties, HE may scan,
Who weighs them all together !

I fling my pebble on the cairn
Of him, though dead, undying ;
Sweet Nature's nursling, bonniest bairn Beneath her daisies lying.

The waning suns, the wasting globe,
Shall spare the minstrel's story, —
The centuries weave his purple robe,
The mountain-mist of glory !

BOSTON COMMON. — THREE PICTURES.

FOR THE FAIR IN AID OF THE FUND TO PROCURE BALL'S STATUE OF WASH-INGTON.

1630.

ALL overgrown with bush and fern,
And straggling clumps of tangled trees,
With trunks that lean and boughs that
turn,
Bent eastward by the mastering
breeze, —
With spongy bogs that drip and fill
A yellow pond with muddy rain,
Beneath the shaggy southern hill
Lies wet and low the Shawmut plain.
And hark ! the trodden branches crack ;
A crow flaps off with startled scream ;
A straying woodchuck canters back ;
A bittern rises from the stream ;
Leaps from his lair a frightened deer ;
An otter plunges in the pool ; —
Here comes old Shawmut's pioneer,
The parson on his brindled bull !

1774.

THE streets are thronged with trampling
feet,
The northern hill is ridged with graves,
But night and morn the drum is beat
To frighten down the "rebel knaves."
The stones of King Street still are red,
And yet the bloody red-coats come :
I hear their pacing sentry's tread,
The click of steel, the tap of drum,
And over all the open green,
Where grazed of late the harmless
kine,
The cannon's deepening ruts are seen,
The war-horse stamps, the bayonets
shine.
The clouds are dark with crimson rain
Above the murderous hirelings' den,

And soon their whistling showers shall stain
The pipe-clayed belts of Gage's men.

186 . . .

AROUND the green, in morning light,
The spired and palaced summits blaze,
And, sunlike, from her Beacon-height
The dome-crowned city spreads her
rays ;
They span the waves, they belt the plains,
They skirt the roads with bands of
white,
Till with a flash of gilded panes
You farthest hillside bounds the sight.
Peace, Freedom, Wealth ! no fairer view, Though with the wild-bird's restless
wings
We sailed beneath the noontide's blue Or chased the moonlight's endless rings !
Here, fitly raised by grateful hands
His holiest memory to recall,
The Hero's, Patriot's image stands ;
He led our sires who won them all !

THE OLD MAN OF THE SEA.

A NIGHTMARE DREAM BY DAYLIGHT.

Do you know the Old Man of the Sea, of the Sea ?
Have you met with that dreadful old
man ?
If you have n't been caught, you will be,
you will be ;
For catch you he must and he can.
He does n't hold on by your throat, by your throat,
As of old in the terrible tale ;
But he grapples you tight by the coat,
by the coat,
Till its buttons and button-holes fail.

There 's the charm of a snake in his eye,
in his eye,

And a polypus-grip in his hands ;
You cannot go back, nor get by, nor get
by,

If you look at the spot where he stands.

O, you're grabbed ! See his claw on your sleeve, on your sleeve !

It is Sinbad's Old Man of the Sea !
You're a Christian, no doubt you believe, you believe :

You're a martyr, whatever you be !

— Is the breakfast-hour past ? They must wait, they must wait,

While the coffee boils sullenly down, While the Johnny-cake burns on the grate, on the grate,

And the toast is done frightfully
brown.

— Yes, your dinner will keep ; let it cool, let it cool,

And Madam may worry and fret,
And children half-starved go to school,
go to school ;

He can't think of sparing you yet.

— Hark ! the bell for the train ! "Come along ! Come along !

For there isn't a second to lose."

"ALL ABOARD !" (He holds on.) "Fsht ! ding-dong ! Fsht ! ding-dong !" —

You can follow on foot, if you choose.

— There 's a maid with a cheek like a peach, like a peach,

That is waiting for you in the church ;—

But he clings to your side like a leech,
like a leech,

And you leave your lost bride in the lurch.

— There 's a babe in a fit, — hurry quick ! hurry quick !

To the doctor's as fast as you can !
The baby is off, while you stick, while you stick,

In the grip of the dreadful Old Man !

— I have looked on the face of the Bore, of the Bore ;

The voice of the Simple I know ;
I have welcomed the Flat at my door, at my door ;

I have sat by the side of the Slow ;

I have walked like a lamb by the friend,
by the friend,

That stuck to my skirts like a bur ;
I have borne the stale talk without end,
without end,

Of the sitter whom nothing could stir :

But my hamstrings grow loose, and I shake, and I shake,

At the sight of the dreadful Old Man ; Yea, I quiver and quake, and I take,
and I take,

To my legs with what vigor I can !

O the dreadful Old Man of the Sea, of the Sea !

He's come back like the Wandering Jew !

He has had his cold claw upon me, upon me, —

And be sure that he'll have it on you !

INTERNATIONAL ODE.

OUR FATHERS' LAND.¹

GOD bless our Fathers' Land !
Keep her in heart and hand
One with our own !

¹ Sung in unison by twelve hundred children of the public schools, at the visit of the Prince of Wales to Boston, October 18, 1860.
Air, "God save the Queen."

BALL'S STATUE OF WASHINGTON.

From all her foes defend,
Be her brave People's Friend,
On all her realms descend, Protect her Throne !

Father, with loving care
Guard Thou her kingdom's Heir, Guide all his ways :
Thine arm his shelter be,
From him by land and sea
Bid storm and danger flee, Prolong his days !

Lord, let War's tempest cease, Fold the whole Earth in peace
Under thy wings !
Make all Thy nations one,
All hearts beneath the sun,
Till Thou shalt reign alone,
Great King of kings !

VIVE LA FRANCE !

A SENTIMENT OFFERED AT THE DINNER
TO H. I. H. THE PRINCE NAPOLEON, AT
THE REVERE HOUSE, SEPT. 25, 1861.

THE land of sunshine and of song !
Her name your hearts divine ;
To her the banquet's vows belong Whose breasts have poured its
wine ;
Our trusty friend, our true ally
Through varied change and chance :
So, fill your flashing goblets high, —
I give you, VIVE LA FRANCE !

Above our hosts in triple folds
The selfsame colors spread,
Where Valor's faithful arm upholds
The blue, the white, the red ;
Alike each nation's glittering crest
Reflects the morning's glance, —
Twin eagles, soaring east and west :
Once more, then, VIVE LA FRANCE !

Sister in trial ! who shall count
Thy generous friendship's claim,
Whose blood ran mingling in the fount
That gave our land its name,
Till Yorktown saw in blended line
Our conquering arms advance,
And victory's double garlands twine
Our banners? VIVE LA FRANCE !

O land of heroes ! in our need
One gift from Heaven we crave
To stanch these wounds that vainly bleed, —
The wise to lead the brave !
Call back one Captain of thy past
From glory's marble trance,
Whose name shall be a bugle-blast
To rouse us ! VIVE LA FRANCE !

Pluck Condé's baton from the trench,
Wake up stout Charles Martel,
Or find some woman's hand to clench
The sword of La Pucelle !
Give us one hour of old Turenne, —
One lift of Bayard's lance, — Nay, call Marengo's Chief again
To lead us ! VIVE LA FRANCE !

Ah, hush ! our welcome Guest shall hear
But sounds of peace and joy ;
No angry echo vex thine ear,
Fair Daughter of Savoy !
Once more ! the land of arms and arts,
Of glory, grace, romance ;
Her love lies warm in all our hearts :
God bless her ! VIVE LA FRANCE !

BROTHER JONATHAN'S LAMENT FOR SISTER CAROLINE.

SHE has gone, — she has left us in passion and pride, —
Our stormy-browed sister, so long at our side !

She has torn her own star from our firmament's glow,
And turned on her brother the face of a foe !

O Caroline, Caroline, child of the sun,
We can never forget that our hearts have been one, —
Our foreheads both sprinkled in Liberty's name,
From the fountain of blood with the finger of flame !

You were always too ready to fire at a touch ;
But we said, " She is hasty, — she does not mean much."
We have scowled, when you uttered some turbulent threat ;
But Friendship still whispered, " Forgive and forget !"

Has our love all died out ? Have its altars grown cold ?
Has the curse come at last which the fathers foretold ?
Then Nature must teach us the strength of the chain
Of the petulant children would sever in vain.

They may fight till the buzzards are gorged with their spoil,
Till the harvest grows black as it rots in the soil,
Till the wolves and the catamounts troop from their caves,
And the shark tracks the pirate, the lord of the waves :

In vain is the strife ! When its fury is past,
Their fortunes must flow in one channel at last,

As the torrents that rush from the mountains of snow
Roll mingled in peace through the valleys below.

Our Union is river, lake, ocean, and sky :
Man breaks not the medal, when God cuts the die !
Though darkened with sulphur, though cloven with steel,
The blue arch will brighten, the waters will heal !

O Caroline, Caroline, child of the sun,
There are battles with Fate that can never be won !
The star-flowering banner must never be furled,
For its blossoms of light are the hope of the world !

Go, then, our rash sister ! afar and aloof,
Run wild in the sunshine away from our roof ;
But when your heart aches and your feet have grown sore,
Remember the pathway that leads to our door !

March 25, 1861.

UNDER THE WASHINGTON ELM, CAMBRIDGE.

April 27, 1861.

EIGHTY years have passed, and more,
Since under the brave old tree
Our fathers gathered in arms, and swore
They would follow the sign their banners bore,
And fight till the land was free.

Half of their work was done,
Half is left to do, —

THE WASHINGTON ELM, CAMBRIDGE.

Cambridge, and Concord, and Lexington !

When the battle is fought and won,
What shall be told of you ?

Hark !—'t is the south-wind moans,—
Who are the martyrs down ?
Ah, the marrow was true in your children's bones
That sprinkled with blood the cursed stones
Of the murder-haunted town !

What if the storm-clouds blow ?
What if the green leaves fall ?
Better the crashing tempest's throe
Than the army of worms that gnawed below ;
Trample them one and all !

Then, when the battle is won,
And the land from traitors free,
Our children shall tell of the strife begun
When Liberty's second April sun
Was bright on our brave old tree !

FREEDOM, OUR QUEEN.

LAND where the banners wave last in
the sun,
Blazoned with star-clusters, many in one, Floating o'er prairie and mountain and
sea ;
Hark ! 't is the voice of thy children to
thee !

Here at thine altar our vows we renew Still in thy cause to be loyal and
true, —
True to thy flag on the field and the
wave,
Living to honor it, dying to save !

Mother of heroes ! if perfidy's blight
Fall on a star in thy garland of light, Sound but one bugle-blast ! Lo ! at the sign
Armies all panoplied wheel into line !

Hope of the world ! thou hast broken its chains, — Wear thy bright arms while a tyrant remains,
Stand for the right till the nations shall
own Freedom their sovereign, with Law for her throne !

Freedom ! sweet Freedom ! our voices
resound,
Queen by God's blessing, unseptrid, uncrowned !
Freedom, sweet Freedom, our pulses
repeat,
Warm with her life-blood, as long as they beat !

Fold the broad banner-stripes over her
breast, —
Crown her with star-jewels Queen of the West !
Earth for her heritage, God for her friend,
She shall reign over us, world without end !

ARMY HYMN.

"Old Hundred."

O LORD of Hosts ! Almighty King !
Behold the sacrifice we bring !
To every arm Thy strength impart,
Thy spirit shed through every heart !
Wake in our breasts the living fires,
The holy faith that warmed our sires ;
Thy hand hath made our Nation free ;
To die for her is serving Thee.

Be Thou a pillared flame to show
The midnight snare, the silent foe ;
And when the battle thunders loud,
Still guide us in its moving cloud.

God of all Nations ! Sovereign Lord !
In Thy dread name we draw the sword,
We lift the starry flag on high
That fills with light our stormy sky.

From treason's rent, from murder's stain, Guard Thou its folds till Peace shall
reign, —
Till fort and field, till shore and sea,
Join our loud anthem, PRAISE TO THEE!

PARTING HYMN.

"Dundee."

FATHER of Mercies, Heavenly Friend,
We seek Thy gracious throne ;
To Thee our faltering prayers ascend,
Our fainting hearts are known !

From blasts that chill, from suns that smite,
From every plague that harms ;
In camp and march, in siege and fight,
Protect our men-at-arms !

Though from our darkened lives they take
What makes our life most dear,
We yield them for their country's sake
With no relenting tear.

Our blood their flowing veins will shed,
Their wounds our breasts will share ;
O, save us from the woes we dread,
Or grant us strength to bear !

Let each unhallowed cause that brings
The stern destroyer cease,
Thy flaming angel fold his wings,
And seraphs whisper Peace !

Thine are the sceptre and the sword,
Stretch forth Thy mighty hand, —
Reign Thou our kingless nation's Lord, Rule Thou our throneless land !

THE FLOWER OF LIBERTY.

WHAT flower is this that greets the morn,
Its hues from Heaven so freshly born ?
With burning star and flaming band
It kindles all the sunset land :
O tell us what its name may be, —
Is this the Flower of Liberty ?
It is the banner of the free,
The starry Flower of Liberty !

In savage Nature's far abode
Its tender seed our fathers sowed ;
The storm-winds rocked its swelling bud,
Its opening leaves were streaked with blood,
Till lo ! earth's tyrants shook to see
The full-blown Flower of Liberty !
Then hail the banner of the free,
The starry Flower of Liberty !

Behold its streaming rays unite,
One mingling flood of braided light, —
The red that fires the Southern rose,
With spotless white from Northern snows,
And, spangled o'er its azure, see
The sister Stars of Liberty !
Then hail the banner of the free,
The starry Flower of Liberty !

The blades of heroes fence it round,
Where'er it springs is holy ground ;
From tower and dome its glories spread ;
It waves where lonely sentries tread ;
It makes the land as ocean free,
And plants an empire on the sea !
Then hail the banner of the free,
The starry Flower of Liberty !

Thy sacred leaves, fair Freedom's flower,
Shall ever float on dome and tower,

To all their heavenly colors true,
 In blackening frost or crimson dew, —
 And God love us as we love thee, Thrice holy Flower of Liberty!
 Then hail the banner of the free,
 The starry FLOWER OF LIBERTY !

THE SWEET LITTLE MAN.

DEDICATED TO THE STAY-AT-HOME
 RANGERS.

Now, while our soldiers are fighting our battles,
 Each at his post to do all that he can,
 Down among rebels and contraband chattels,
 What are you doing, my sweet little
 man ?

All the brave boys under canvas are sleeping,
 All of them pressing to march with the van,
 Far from the home where their sweethearts are weeping ;
 What are you waiting for, sweet little
 man ?

You with the terrible warlike mustaches,
 Fit for a colonel or chief of a clan,
 You with the waist made for sword-belts and sashes,
 Where are your shoulder-straps, sweet little man ?

Bring him the buttonless garment of woman !
 Cover his face lest it freckle and tan ;
 Muster the Apron-string Guards on the Common,
 That is the corps for the sweet little
 man !

Give him for escort a file of young misses,
 Each of them armed with a deadly
 rattan ;
 They shall defend him from laughter and hisses,
 Aimed by low boys at the sweet little
 man.

All the fair maidens about him shall cluster,
 Pluck the white feathers from bonnet and fan,
 Make him a plume like a turkey-wing duster, —
 That is the crest for the sweet little
 man !

O, but the Apron-string Guards are the fellows !
 Drilling each day since our troubles began, —
 "Handle your walking - sticks !"
 "Shoulder umbrellas !"
 That is the style for the sweet little
 man.

Have we a nation to save ? In the first place
 Saving ourselves is the sensible plan, —
 Surely the spot where there 's shooting 's the worst place Where I can stand, says the sweet little
 man.

Catch me confiding my person with strangers !
 Think how the cowardly Bull-Runners ran !
 In the brigade of the Stay-at-home
 Rangers
 Marches my corps, says the sweet little man.

Such was the stuff of the Malakofftakers,

Such were the soldiers that scaled the Redan ;
Truculent housemaids and bloodthirsty
Quakers,
Brave not the wrath of the sweet little man !

Yield him the sidewalk, ye nursery maidens !

Sauve qui peut ! Bridget, and right about ! Ann ;—

Fierce as a shark in a school of menhadens,

See him advancing, the sweet little
man !

When the red flails of the battle-field's threshers

Beat out the continent's wheat from its bran,

While the wind scatters the chaffy
seceshers,

What will become of our sweet little
man ?

When the brown soldiers come back from the borders,

How will he look while his features they scan ?

How will he feel when he gets marching orders,

Signed by his lady love ? sweet little
man !

Fear not for him, though the rebels expect him, —

Life is too precious to shorten its span ; Woman her broomstick shall raise to protect him,

Will she not fight for the sweet little
man !

Now then, nine cheers for the Stay-at-home Ranger !

Blow the great fish-horn and beat the big pan !

First in the field that is farthest from danger,

Take your white-feather plume, sweet little man !

UNION AND LIBERTY.

FLAG of the heroes who left us their glory,

Borne through their battle-fields' thunder and flame,

Blazoned in song and illumined in story, Wave o'er us all who inherit their
fame !

Up with our banner bright,
Sprinkled with starry light,
Spread its fair emblems from mountain to shore,

While through the sounding sky
Loud rings the Nation's cry, —

UNION AND LIBERTY ! ONE EVER-
MORE !

Light of our firmament, guide of our Nation,

Pride of her children, and honored afar,

Let the wide beams of thy full constellation

Scatter each cloud that would darken a star !

Up with our banner bright, etc.

Empire unscathed ! what foe shall assail
thee,

Bearing the standard of Liberty's
van ?

Think not the God of thy fathers shall fail thee,

Striving with men for the birthright
of man !

Up with our banner bright, etc.

Yet if, by madness and treachery blighted,

“ All the fair maidens about him shall cluster.”

Dawns the dark hour when the sword thou must draw,
Then with the arms of thy millions united,
Smite the bold traitors to Freedom and Law!
Up with our banner bright, etc.

Lord of the Universe! shield us and guide us,
Trusting thee always, through shadow and sun!

Thou hast united us, who shall divide us?

Keep us, O keep us the MANY IN
ONE!

Up with our banner bright,
Sprinkled with starry light,
Spread its fair emblems from mountain to shore,

While through the sounding sky
Loud rings the Nation's cry, —
UNION AND LIBERTY! ONE EVER-MORE!

P O E M S

FROM THE

AUTOCRAT OF THE BREAKFAST TABLE.

P O E M S

FROM THE

AUTOCRAT OF THE BREAKFAST TABLE.

1857-1858.

THE CHAMBERED NAUTILUS.

THIS is the ship of pearl, which, poets feign,
Sails the unshadowed main, —
The venturous bark that flings
On the sweet summer wind its purpled
wings
In gulfs enchanted, where the Siren sings,
And coral reefs lie bare,
Where the cold sea-maids rise to sun their streaming hair.
Its webs of living gauze no more unfurl ;
Wrecked is the ship of pearl !
And every chambered cell, Where its dim dreaming life was wont to dwell,
As the frail tenant shaped his growing shell,
Before thee lies revealed, —
Its irised ceiling rent, its sunless crypt unsealed !
Year after year beheld the silent toil
That spread his lustrous coil ;
Still, as the spiral grew,
He left the past year's dwelling for the new,

Stole with soft step its shining archway
through,
Built up its idle door, Stretched in his last-found home, and knew the old no more.

Thanks for the heavenly message brought by thee,
Child of the wandering sea,
Cast from her lap, forlorn !
From thy dead lips a clearer note is born
Than ever Triton blew from wreathéd horn !
While on mine ear it rings,
Through the deep caves of thought I hear a voice that sings : —

Build thee more stately mansions, O my soul,
As the swift seasons roll !
Leave thy low-vaulted past !
Let each new temple, nobler than the last,
Shut thee from heaven with a dome more vast,
Till thou at length art free, Leaving thine outgrown shell by life's unresting sea !

SUN AND SHADOW.

As I look from the isle, o'er its billows
of green,

To the billows of foam-crested blue, Yon bark, that afar in the distance is seen,

Half dreaming, my eyes will pursue :
Now dark in the shadow, she scatters
the spray

As the chaff in the stroke of the flail ;
Now white as the sea-gull, she flies on her way,

The sun gleaming bright on her sail.

Yet her pilot is thinking of dangers to shun, —

Of breakers that whiten and roar ;
How little he cares, if in shadow or sun
They see him who gaze from the shore !
He looks to the beacon that looms from the reef,

To the rock that is under his lee,
As he drifts on the blast, like a wind-wifted leaf,

O'er the gulfs of the desolate sea.

Thus drifting afar to the dim-vaulted caves

Where life and its ventures are laid,
The dreamers who gaze while we battle
the waves

May see us in sunshine or shade ; Yet true to our course, though the shadows grow dark,

We'll trim our broad sail as before,
And stand by the rudder that governs
the bark,

Nor ask how we look from the shore !

THE TWO ARMIES.

As Life's unending column pours,
Two marshalled hosts are seen, —
Two armies on the trampled shores
That Death flows black between.

One marches to the drum-beat's roll,
The wide-mouthed clarion's bray,
And bears upon a crimson scroll,
“ Our glory is to slay.”

One moves in silence by the stream,
With sad, yet watchful eyes,
Calm as the patient planet's gleam
That walks the clouded skies.

Along its front no sabres shine,
No blood-red pennons wave ;
Its banner bears the single line,
“ Our duty is to save.”

For those no death-bed's lingering shade ;
At Honor's trumpet-call,
With knitted brow and lifted blade
In Glory's arms they fall.

For these no clashing falchions bright,
No stirring battle-cry ;
The bloodless stabber calls by night, —
Each answers, “ Here am I ! ”

For those the sculptor's laurelled bust,
The builder's marble piles,
The anthems pealing o'er their dust
Through long cathedral aisles.

For these the blossom-sprinkled turf
That floods the lonely graves
When Spring rolls in her sea-green surf
In flowery-foaming waves.

Two paths lead upward from below,
And angels wait above,
Who count each burving life-drop's flow,
Each falling tear of Love.

Though from the Hero's bleeding breast
Her pulses Freedom drew,
Though the white lilies in her crest
Sprang from that scarlet dew, —

While Valor's haughty champions wait Till all their scars are shown, Love walks unchallenged through the gate,
To sit beside the Throne !

MUSA.

O MY lost beauty !—hast thou folded quite

Thy wings of morning light
Beyond those iron gates Where Life crowds hurrying to the haggard Fates,
And Age upon his mound of ashes waits
To chill our fiery dreams, Hot from the heart of youth plunged in his icy streams?

Leave me not fading in these weeds of
care,

Whose flowers are silvered hair !
Have I not loved thee long, Though my young lips have often done thee wrong,
And vexed thy heaven-tuned ear with careless song?
Ah, wilt thou yet return,
Bearing thy rose-hued torch, and bid thine altar burn ?

Come to me !— I will flood thy silent shrine

With my soul's sacred wine,
And heap thy marble floors
As the wild spice-trees waste their fragrant stores,
In leafy islands walled with madrepores
And lapped in Orient seas,
When all their feathery palms toss, plume-like, in the breeze.

Come to me !— thou shalt feed on honeyed words,
Sweeter than song of birds ;—

No wailing bulbul's throat,
No melting dulcimer's melodious note
When o'er the midnight wave its murmurs float,
Thy ravished sense might soothe With flow so liquid-soft, with strain so velvet-smooth.

Thou shalt be decked with jewels, like a queen,
Sought in those bowers of green
Where loop the clustered vines
And the close-clinging dulcamara¹ twines, —
Pure pearls of Maydew where the moonlight shines,
And Summer's fruited gems,
And coral pendants shorn from Autumn's berried stems.

Sit by me drifting on the sleepy waves, —
Or stretched by grass-grown graves,
Whose gray, high-shouldered stones, Carved with old names Life's time-worn roll disowns,
Lean, lichen-spotted, o'er the crumbled bones
Still slumbering where they lay While the sad Pilgrim watched to scare the wolf away.

Spread o'er my couch thy visionary
wing!
Still let me dream and sing, —
Dream of that winding shore Where scarlet cardinals bloom — for me
no more, —
The stream with heaven beneath its liquid floor,
And clustering nennuphars Sprinkling its mirrored blue like golden-chaliced stars !

¹ The "bitter-sweet" of New England is the Celastrus scandens, — "Bourreau des arbres" of the Canadian French.

Come while their balms the linden-blossoms shed! —

Come while the rose is red, —
While blue-eyed Summer smiles
On the green ripples round yon sunken piles Washed by the moon-wave warm from Indian isles,
And on the sultry air
The chestnuts spread their palms like holy men in prayer!

O for thy burning lips to fire my brain
With thrills of wild, sweet pain! —
On life's autumnal blast,
Like shrivelled leaves, youth's passionflowers are cast, — Once loving thee, we love thee to the last! —
Behold thy new-decked shrine,
And hear once more the voice that breathed "Forever thine!"

A PARTING HEALTH.

TO J. L. MOTLEY.

YES, we knew we must lose him, — though friendship may claim
To blend her green leaves with the laurels of fame;
Though fondly, at parting, we call him
our own,
'T is the whisper of love when the bugle has blown.

As the rider that rests with the spur on his heel,
As the guardsman that sleeps in his corselet of steel,
As the archer that stands with his shaft on the string,
He stoops from his toil to the garland we bring.

What pictures yet slumber unborn in his loom, Till their warriors shall breathe and their beauties shall bloom, While the tapestry lengthens the life-glowing dyes
That caught from our sunsets the stain of their skies!

In the alcoves of death, in the charnels
of time,
Where flit the gaunt spectres of passion and crime,
There are triumphs untold, there are martyrs unsung,
There are heroes yet silent to speak with his tongue!

Let us hear the proud story which time has bequeathed!
From lips that are warm with the freedom they breathed!
Let him summon its tyrants, and tell us their doom,
Though he sweep the black past like Van Tromp with his broom!

* * *

The dream flashes by, for the west-winds awake
On pampas, on prairie, o'er mountain and lake,
To bathe the swift bark, like a seagirdled shrine,
With incense they stole from the rose and the pine.

So fill a bright cup with the sunlight that gushed
When the dead summer's jewels were trampled and crushed:
THE TRUE KNIGHT OF LEARNING, — the world holds him dear, — Love bless him, Joy crown him, God speed his career!

WHAT WE ALL THINK.

THAT age was older once than now,
 In spite of locks untimely shed,
 Or silvered on the youthful brow ;
 That babes make love and children wed.

That sunshine had a heavenly glow,
 Which faded with those "good old days"

When winters came with deeper snow,
 And autumns with a softer haze.

That — mother, sister, wife, or child —
 The "best of women" each has known.

Were school-boys ever half so wild ?
 How young the grandpapas have grown !

That but for this our souls were free,
 And but for that our lives were blest ;
 That in some season yet to be
 Our cares will leave us time to rest.

Whene'er we groan with ache or pain, —
 Some common ailment of the race, — Though doctors think the matter
 plain, —
 That ours is "a peculiar case."

That when like babes with fingers burned
 We count one bitter maxim more,
 Our lesson all the world has learned,
 And men are wiser than before.

That when we sob o'er fancied woes,
 The angels hovering overhead
 Count every pitying drop that flows,
 And love us for the tears we shed.

That when we stand with tearless eye
 And turn the beggar from our door,
 They still approve us when we sigh,
 "Ah, had I but one thousand more !"

Though temples crowd the crumbled brink

O'erhanging truth's eternal flow,
 Their tablets bold with what we think,
 Their echoes dumb to what we know ;

That one unquestioned text we read,
 All doubt beyond, all fear above,
 Nor crackling pile nor cursing creed
 Can burn or blot it : GOD IS LOVE !

SPRING HAS COME.

INTRA MUROS.

THE sunbeams, lost for half a year,
 Slant through my pane their morning
 rays ;
 For dry northwesterners cold and clear,
 The east blows in its thin blue haze.

And first the snowdrop's bells are seen,
 Then close against the sheltering wall
 The tulip's horn of dusky green,
 The peony's dark unfolding ball.

The golden-chaliced crocus burns ;
 The long narcissus-blades appear ;
 The cone-beaked hyacinth returns
 To light her blue-flamed chandelier.

The willow's whistling lashes, wrung
 By the wild winds of gusty March,
 With willow leaflets lightly strung,
 Are swaying by the tufted larch.

The elms have robbed their slender spray
 With full-blown flower and embryo leaf ;
 Wide o'er the clasping arch of day
 Soars like a cloud their hoary chief.

See the proud tulip's flaunting cup,
 That flames in glory for an hour, —
 Behold it withering, — then look up, —
 How meek the forest monarch's flower !

When wake the violets, Winter dies ;
When sprout the elm-buds, Spring is near ;

When lilacs blossom, Summer cries, “ Bud, little roses ! Spring is here ! ”

The windows blush with fresh bouquets,
Cut with the May-dew on their lips ;
The radish all its bloom displays,
Pink as Aurora's finger-tips.

Nor less the flood of light that showers
On beauty's changed corolla-shades, —
The walks are gay as bridal bowers
With rows of many-petalled maids.

The scarlet shell-fish click and clash
In the blue barrow where they slide ;
The horseman, proud of streak and splash,
Creeps homeward from his morning
ride.

Here comes the dealer's awkward string,
With neck in rope and tail in knot, —
Rough colts, with careless country-swing,
In lazy walk or slouching trot.

Wild filly from the mountain-side,
Doomed to the close and chafing thills,
Lend me thy long, untiring stride
To seek with thee thy western hills !

I hear the whispering voice of Spring,
The thrush's trill, the robin's cry,
Like some poor bird with prisoned wing
That sits and sings, but longs to fly.

O for one spot of living green, —
One little spot where leaves can grow, —
To love unblamed, to walk unseen,
To dream above, to sleep below !

PROLOGUE.

A PROLOGUE ? Well, of course the ladies
know ;—

I have my doubts. No matter, — here we go !

What is a Prologue ? Let our Tutor teach :

Pro means beforehand ; logos stands for
speech.

'T is like the harper's prelude on the strings,

The prima donna's courtesy ere she sings :—

Prologues in metre are to other pros
As worsted stockings are to engine-hose.

“The world's a stage,” — as Shakespeare said, one day ;

The stage a world — was what he meant to say.

The outside world's a blunder, that is clear ;

The real world that Nature meant is here.
Here every foundling finds its lost
mamma ;

Each rogue, repentant, melts his stern
papa ;

Misers relent, the spendthrift's debts are paid,

The cheats are taken in the traps they laid ;

One after one the troubles all are past Till the fifth act comes right side up at
last,

When the young couple, old folks,
rogues, and all,

Join hands, so happy at the curtain's fall.
Here suffering virtue ever finds relief,

And black-browed ruffians always come to grief.

When the lorn damsel, with a frantic screech,

And cheeks as hueless as a brandy-peach, Cries, “ Help, kyind Heaven ! ” and drops upon her knees

On the green — baize, — beneath the (canvas) trees, —

See to her side avenging Valor fly : — “Ha! Villain! Draw! Now, Terrai-torr, yield or die!”

When the poor hero flounders in despair,
Some dear lost uncle turns up million-
naire,

Clasps the young scrapegrace with paternal joy,

Sobs on his neck, “My boy! MY BOY!!
MY BOY!!!”

Ours, then, sweet friends, the real world to-night,

Of love that conquers in disaster's spite.
Ladies, attend! While woful cares and
doubt

Wrong the soft passion in the world without,

Though fortune scowl, though prudence interfere,

One thing is certain : Love will triumph
here!

Lords of creation, whom your ladies rule, —

The world's great masters, when you're out of school, —

Learn the brief moral of our evening's
play :

Man has his will, — but woman has her
way!

While man's dull spirit toils in smoke and fire,

Woman's swift instinct threads the electric wire, —

The magic bracelet stretched beneath the waves

Beats the black giant with his score of slaves.

All earthly powers confess your sovereign art

But that one rebel, — woman's wilful
heart.

All foes you master, but a woman's wit

Lets daylight through you ere you know you're hit.

So, just to picture what her art can do,
Hear an old story, made as good as new.

Rudolph, professor of the headsman's
trade,

Alike was famous for his arm and blade.
One day a prisoner Justice had to kill

Knelt at the block to test the artist's skill.

Bare-armed, swart-visaged, gaunt, and
• shaggy-browed,

Rudolph the headsman rose above the crowd.

His falchion lighted with a sudden gleam,

As the pike's armor flashes in the stream.

He sheathed his blade; he turned as if to go;

The victim knelt, still waiting for the blow.

“Why strikest not? Perform thy murderous act,”

The prisoner said. (His voice was slightly cracked.)

“Friend, I have struck,” the artist straight replied;

“Wait but one moment, and yourself decide.”

He held his snuff-box, — “Now then, if you please!”

The prisoner sniffed, and, with a crashing sneeze,

Off his head tumbled, — bowled along the floor, —

Bounced down the steps; — the prisoner said no more!

Woman! thy falchion is a glittering eye;
If death lurk in it, O how sweet to die!

Thou takest hearts as Rudolph took the head;

We die with love, and never dream
we're dead!

LATTER-DAY WARNINGS.

WHEN legislators keep the law,
When banks dispense with bolts and locks, —

When berries — whortle, rasp, and straw —
Grow bigger downwards through the box, —

When he that selleth house or land
Shows leak in roof or flaw in right, —
When haberdashers choose the stand Whose window hath the broadest
light, —

When preachers tell us all they think,
And party leaders all they mean, —
When what we pay for, that we drink,
From real grape and coffee-bean, —

When lawyers take what they would give,
And doctors give what they would take, —

When city fathers eat to live,
Save when they fast for conscience'
sake, —

When one that hath a horse on sale
Shall bring his merit to the proof,
Without a lie for every nail
That holds the iron on the hoof, —

When in the usual place for rips
Our gloves are stitched with special care,
And guarded well the whalebone tips
Where first umbrellas need repair, —

When Cuba's weeds have quite forgot
The power of suction to resist,
And claret-bottles harbor not Such dimples as would hold your fist, —

When publishers no longer steal,
And pay for what they stole before, —
When the first locomotive's wheel Rolls through the Hoosac tunnel's
bore ; —

Till then let Cumming blaze away,
And Miller's saints blow up the globe ;
But when you see that blessed day,
Then order your ascension robe !

ALBUM VERSES.

WHEN Eve had led her lord away,
And Cain had killed his brother,
The stars and flowers, the poets say,
Agreed with one another

To cheat the cunning tempter's art,
And teach the race its duty,
By keeping on its wicked heart
Their eyes of light and beauty.

A million sleepless lids, they say,
Will be at least a warning ;
And so the flowers would watch by day,
The stars from eve to morning.

On hill and prairie, field and lawn,
Their dewy eyes upturning,
The flowers still watch from reddening dawn
Till western skies are burning.

Alas ! each hour of daylight tells
A tale of shame so crushing,
That some turn white as sea-bleached shells,
And some are always blushing.

But when the patient stars look down
On all their light discovers,
The traitor's smile, the murderer's frown,
The lips of lying lovers,

They try to shut their saddening eyes,
 And in the vain endeavor
 We see them twinkling in the skies,
 And so they wink forever.

A GOOD TIME GOING!

BRAVE singer of the coming time,
 Sweet minstrel of the joyous present, Crowned with the noblest wreath of
 rhyme,

The holly-leaf of Ayrshire's peasant, Good by! Good by! — Our hearts and
 hands,

Our lips in honest Saxon phrases,
 Cry, God be with him, till he stands
 His feet among the English daisies!

'T is here we part; — for other eyes
 The busy deck, the fluttering streamer,
 The dripping arms that plunge and rise,
 The waves in foam, the ship in tremor,
 The kerchiefs waving from the pier,
 The cloudy pillar gliding o'er him,
 The deep blue desert, lone and drear,
 With heaven above and home before him!

His home! — the Western giant smiles,
 And twirls the spotty globe to find it; —

This little speck the British Isles?
 'T is but a freckle, — never mind it!
 He laughs, and all his prairies roll, Each gurgling cataract roars and chuckles,

And ridges stretched from pole to pole Heave till they crack their iron knuckles!

But Memory blushes at the sneer,
 And Honor turns with frown defiant,
 And Freedom, leaning on her spear, Laughs louder than the laughing giant:

“An islet is a world,” she said, “When glory with its dust has blended,
 And Britain keeps her noble dead Till earth and seas and skies are rended!”

Beneath each swinging forest-bough
 Some arm as stout in death reposes, —
 From wave-washed foot to heaven-kissed brow

Her valor's life-blood runs in roses;
 Nay, let our brothers of the West
 Write smiling in their florid pages,
 One half her soil has walked the rest
 In poets, heroes, martyrs, sages!

Hugged in the clinging billow's clasp,
 From sea-weed fringe to mountain heather,

The British oak with rooted grasp
 Her slender handful holds together; —
 With cliffs of white and bowers of green,
 And Ocean narrowing to caress her,
 And hills and threaded streams between, —

Our little mother isle, God bless her!

In earth's broad temple where we stand, Fanned by the eastern gales that brought us,

We hold the missal in our hand,
 Bright with the lines our Mother taught us.

Where'er its blazoned page betrays
 The glistening links of gilded fetters,
 Behold, the half-turned leaf displays
 Her rubric stained in crimson letters!

Enough! To speed a parting friend
 'T is vain alike to speak and listen; —
 Yet stay, — these feeble accents blend With rays of light from eyes that glisten.

Good by! once more, — and kindly tell

In words of peace the young world's story, —
 And say, besides, we love too well
 Our mothers' soil, our fathers' glory !

THE LAST BLOSSOM.

THOUGH young no more, we still would
 dream

Of beauty's dear deluding wiles ;
 The leagues of life to graybeards seem Shorter than boyhood's lingering miles.

Who knows a woman's wild caprice ?
 It played with Goethe's silvered hair,
 And many a Holy Father's "niece"
 Has softly smoothed the papal chair.

When sixty bids us sigh in vain
 To melt the heart of sweet sixteen,
 We think upon those ladies twain
 Who loved so well the tough old Dean.

We see the Patriarch's wintry face,
 The maid of Egypt's dusky glow,
 And dream that Youth and Age embrace,
 As April violets fill with snow.

Tranced in her lord's Olympian smile
 His lotus-loving Memphian lies, —
 The musky daughter of the Nile,
 With plaited hair and almond eyes.

Might we but share one wild caress
 Ere life's autumnal blossoms fall,
 And Earth's brown, clinging lips impress
 The long cold kiss that waits us all !

My bosom heaves, remembering yet
 The morning of that blissful day,
 When Rose, the flower of spring, I met,
 And gave my raptured soul away.

Flung from her eyes of purest blue,
 A lasso, with its leaping chain,

Light as a loop of larkspurs, flew
 O'er sense and spirit, heart and brain.

Thou com'st to cheer my waning age,
 Sweet vision, waited for so long !
 Dove that would seek the poet's cage
 Lured by the magic breath of song !

She blushes ! Ah, reluctant maid, Love's drapeau rouge the truth has told !

O'er girlhood's yielding barricade Floats the great Leveller's crimson fold !

Come to my arms ! — love heeds not
 years ;

No frost the bud of passion knows. —
 Ha ! what is this my frenzy hears ?
 A voice behind me uttered, — Rose !

Sweet was her smile, — but not for me ;
 Alas ! when woman looks too kind,
 Just turn your foolish head and see, —
 Some youth is walking close behind !

CONTENTMENT.

"Man wants but little here below."

LITTLE I ask ; my wants are few ;
 I only wish a hut of stone,
 (A very plain brown stone will do,) —
 That I may call my own ; —
 And close at hand is such a one,
 In yonder street that fronts the sun.

Plain food is quite enough for me ;
 Three courses are as good as ten ; —
 If Nature can subsist on three,
 Thank Heaven for three. Amen !
 I always thought cold victual nice ; —
 My choice would be vanilla-ice.

I care not much for gold or land ; —
 Give me a mortgage here and there, —

Some good bank-stock, some note of hand,

Or trifling railroad share, —
I only ask that Fortune send A little more than I shall spend.

Honors are silly toys, I know,
And titles are but empty names ;
I would, perhaps, be Plenipo, —
But only near St. James ;
I'm very sure I should not care
To fill our Gubernator's chair.

Jewels are bawbles ; 't is a sin
To care for such unfruitful things ;—
One good-sized diamond in a pin, —
Some, not so large, in rings, —
A ruby, and a pearl, or so,
Will do for me ;— I laugh at show.

My dame should dress in cheap attire ;
(Good, heavy silks are never dear ;)—
I own perhaps I might desire
Some shawls of true Cashmere, —
Some marrowy crapes of China silk,
Like wrinkled skins on scalded milk.

I would not have the horse I drive
So fast that folks must stop and stare ;
An easy gait — two, forty-five —
Suits me ; I do not care ; —
Perhaps, for just a single spurt,
Some seconds less would do no hurt.

Of pictures, I should like to own Titians and Raphaels three or four, —
I love so much their style and tone, —
One Turner, and no more,
(A landscape, — foreground golden dirt, —
The sunshine painted with a squirt.)

Of books but few, — some fifty score
For daily use, and bound for wear ;
The rest upon an upper floor ; —
Some little luxury there

Of red morocco's gilded gleam,
And vellum rich as country cream.

Busts, cameos, gems, — such things as
these,

Which others often show for pride,
I value for their power to please,
And selfish churls deride ; —
One Stradivarius, I confess,
Two Meerschaums, I would fain possess.

Wealth's wasteful tricks I will not learn Nor ape the glittering upstart fool ;—
Shall not carved tables serve my turn,
But all must be of buhl ?
Give grasping pomp its double share, —
I ask but one recumbent chair.

Thus humble let me live and die,
Nor long for Midas' golden touch ;
If Heaven more generous gifts deny,
I shall not miss them much, — Too grateful for the blessing lent
Of simple tastes and mind content !

ÆSTIVATION.

AN UNPUBLISHED POEM, BY MY LATE LATIN TUTOR.

IN candent ire the solar splendor flames ;
The foles, languescens, pend from arid rames ;
His humid front the cive, anhelung, wipes,
And dreams of erring on ventiferous ripes.

How dulce to vive occult to mortal eyes,
Dorm on the herb with none to supervise,
Carp the suave berries from the crescent
vine,
And bibe the flow from longicaudate
kine !

To me, alas ! no verdurous visions come,
Save yon exiguus pool's conferva-scum, —

No concave vast repeats the tender hue
That laves my milk-jug with celestial blue !

Me wretched ! Let me curr to quercine shades !

Effund your albid hausts, lactiferous maids !

O, might I vole to some umbrageous clump, —

Depart, — be off, — excede, — evade, — erump !

THE DEACON'S MASTERPIECE ;

OR, THE WONDERFUL "ONE-HOSS SHAY."

A LOGICAL STORY.

HAVE you heard of the wonderful onehoss shay,

That was built in such a logical way

It ran a hundred years to a day,

And then, of a sudden, it — ah, but stay,

I'll tell you what happened without delay,
Scaring the parson into fits,

Frightening people out of their wits, —
Have you ever heard of that, I say ?

Seventeen hundred and fifty-five.

Georgius Secundus was then alive, —

Snuffy old drone from the German hive.

That was the year when Lisbon-town

Saw the earth open and gulp her down,

And Braddock's army was done so brown,
Left without a scalp to its crown.

It was on the terrible Earthquake-day

That the Deacon finished the one-hoss shay.

Now in building of chaises, I tell you what,

There is always somewhere a weakest
spot, —

In hub, tire, felloe, in spring or thill,

In panel, or crossbar, or floor, or sill,
In screw, bolt, thoroughbrace, — lurking still,

Find it somewhere you must and will, —

Above or below, or within or without, —

And that 's the reason, beyond a doubt,

That a chaise breaks down, but does n't wear out.

But the Deacon swore, (as Deacons do,
With an "I dew vum," or an "I tell yeou,")

He would build one shay to beat the taown

'n' the keounty 'n' all the kentry raoun' ;

It should be so built that it couldn' break daown :

— "Fur," said the Deacon, "'t 's mighty
plain

Thut the weakes' place mus' stan' the strain ;

'n' the way t' fix it, uz I maintain,

Is only jest

T' make that place uz strong uz the rest."

So the Deacon inquired of the village folk

Where he could find the strongest oak,
That could n't be split nor bent nor broke, —

That was for spokes and floor and sills ;

He sent for lancewood to make the thills ;
The crossbars were ash, from the straight-est trees,

The panels of white-wood, that cuts like cheese,

But lasts like iron for things like these ;
The hubs of logs from the "Settler's ellum," —

Last of its timber, — they could n't sell
'em,

Never an axe had seen their chips,
And the wedges flew from between their
lips,

“There !” said the Deacon, “naow, she ‘ll dew !”

Their blunt ends frizzled like celery-tips ;

Step and prop-iron, bolt and screw,
Spring, tire, axle, and linehpin too,
Steel of the finest, bright and blue ;
Thoroughbrace bison-skin, thick and wide ;

Boot, top, dasher, from tough old hide
Found in the pit when the tanner died.
That was the way he "put her through." —

"There !" said the Deacon, "naow she 'll dew !"

Do ! I tell you, I rather guess
She was a wonder, and nothing less !
Colts grew horses, beards turned gray,
Deacon and deaconess dropped away,
Children and grandchildren — where were they ?

But there stood the stout old one-hoss shay
As fresh as on Lisbon-earthquake-day !

EIGHTEEN HUNDRED ;— it came and found

The Deacon's masterpiece strong and sound.

Eighteen hundred increased by ten ;—
"Hahnsum kerridge" they called it then.

Eighteen hundred and twenty came ;— Running as usual ; much the same.

Thirty and forty at last arrive,
And then come fifty, and FIFTY-FIVE.

Little of all we value here

Wakes on the morn of its hundredth year Without both feeling and looking queer.
In fact, there's nothing that keeps its youth,

So far as I know, but a tree and truth.
(This is a moral that runs at large ;
Take it. — You're welcome. — No extra charge.)

FIRST OF NOVEMBER,—the Earthquake-day —

There are traces of age in the one-hoss shay,

A general flavor of mild decay,
But nothing local, as one may say.

There could n't be, — for the Deacon's art

Had made it so like in every part
That there was n't a chance for one to start.

For the wheels were just as strong as the thills,

And the floor was just as strong as the sills,

And the panels just as strong as the floor,
And the whipple-tree neither less nor more,

And the back-crossbar as strong as the fore,

And spring and axle and hub encore.

And yet, as a whole, it is past a doubt
In another hour it will be worn out !

First of November, 'Fifty-five !

This morning the parson takes a drive.

Now, small boys, get out of the way !

Here comes the wonderful one-hoss shay,
Drawn by a rat-tailed, ewe-necked bay.

"Huddup !" said the parson. — Off went they.

The parson was working his Sunday's text, —

Had got to fifthly, and stopped perplexed

At what the — Moses — was coming next.

All at once the horse stood still,

Close by the meet'n'-house on the hill.

— First a shiver, and then a thrill,

Then something decidedly like a spill, —

And the parson was sitting upon a rock,

At half past nine by the meet'n'-house clock, —

Just the hour of the Earthquake shock !

— What do you think the parson found,
When he got up and stared around ?
The poor old chaise in a heap or mound,
As if it had been to the mill and ground !
You see, of course, if you 're not a dunce,
How it went to pieces all at once, —
All at once, and nothing first, —
Just as bubbles do when they burst.

End of the wonderful one-hoss shay.
Logic is logic. That 's all I say.

PARSON TURELL'S LEGACY.

OR, THE PRESIDENT'S OLD ARM-CHAIR.

A MATHEMATICAL STORY.

FACTS respecting an old arm-chair.
At Cambridge. Is kept in the College
there.

Seems but little the worse for wear.

That 's remarkable when I say

It was old in President Holyoke's day.

(One of his boys, perhaps you know, Died, at one hundred, years ago.)

He took lodgings for rain or shine
Under green bed-clothes in '69.

Know old Cambridge? Hope you do. — Born there? Don't say so! I was, too.
(Born in a house with a gambrel-roof, —
Standing still, if you must have proof. —
"Gambrel? — Gambrel?" — Let me beg You'll look at a horse's hinder leg, —
First great angle above the hoof, — That's the gambrel; hence gambrel-roof.)

— Nicest place that ever was seen, —
Colleges red and Common green, Sidewalks brownish with trees between.
Sweetest spot beneath the skies
When the canker-worms don't rise, —
When the dust, that sometimes flies
Into your mouth and ears and eyes,
In a quiet slumber lies,

Not in the shape of unbaked pies
Such as barefoot children prize.

A kind of harbor it seems to be,
Facing the flow of a boundless sea.
Rows of gray old Tutors stand Ranged like rocks above the sand;
Rolling beneath them, soft and green,
Breaks the tide of bright sixteen, —
One wave, two waves, three waves,
four, —

Sliding up the sparkling floor :
Then it ebbs to flow no more,
Wandering off from shore to shore
With its freight of golden ore !
— Pleasant place for boys to play ; —
Better keep your girls away ;
Hearts get rolled as pebbles do
Which countless fingering waves pursue,
And every classic beach is strown
With heart-shaped pebbles of blood-red stone.

But this is neither here nor there ; —
I'm talking about an old arm-chair.
You've heard, no doubt, of PARSON TURELL?

Over at Medford he used to dwell ;
Married one of the Mathers' folk ;
Got with his wife a chair of oak, —
Funny old chair with seat like wedge,
Sharp behind and broad front edge, —
One of the oddest of human things,
Turned all over with knobs and rings, — But heavy, and wide, and deep, and grand, —

Fit for the worthies of the land, —
Chief Justice Sewall a cause to try in,
Or Cotton Mather to sit — and lie — in.
— Parson Turell bequeathed the same
To a certain student, — SMITH by name ;
These were the terms, as we are told :
"Saide Smith saide Chaire to have and holde ;

When he doth graduate, then to passe

“ Born in a house with a gambrel-roof.”

To y^e oldest Youth in y^e Senior Classe.
On Payment of" — naming a certain sum) —

"By him to whom y^e Chaire shall come;
He to y^e oldest Senior next,
And soe forever," — (thus runs the text,) —

"But one Crown lesse then he gave to claime,
That being his Debte for use of same."

Smith transferred it to one of the BROWNS,
And took his money, — five silver crowns.

Brown delivered it up to MOORE,
Who paid, it is plain, not five, but four.

Moore made over the chair to LEE,
Who gave him crowns of silver three.

Lee conveyed it unto DREW,
And now the payment, of course, was two.

Drew gave up the chair to DUNN, —
All he got, as you see, was one.

Dunn released the chair to HALL,
And got by the bargain no crown at all.

— And now it passed to a second BROWN, Who took it and likewise claimed a crown.

When Brown conveyed it unto WARE,
Having had one crown, to make it fair,
He paid him two crowns to take the chair;

And Ware, being honest, (as all Wares be,)

He paid one POTTER, who took it, three.
Four got ROBINSON; five got DIX;

JOHNSON primus demanded six;
And so the sum kept gathering still

Till after the battle of Bunker's Hill.

— When paper money became so
cheap,

Folks would n't count it, but said "a heap,"

A certain RICHARDS, — the books declare, —

(A. M. in '90? I've looked with care Through the Triennial, — *name not
there,*) —

This person, Richards, was offered then Eightscore pounds, but would have ten;

Nine, I think, was the sum he took, —
Not quite certain, — but see the book.

— By and by the wars were still,
But nothing had altered the Parson's
will.

The old arm-chair was solid yet,
But saddled with such a monstrous debt!

Things grew quite too bad to bear, Paying such sums to get rid of the chair!

But dead men's fingers hold awful tight,
And there was the will in black and
white,

Plain enough for a child to spell.
What should be done no man could tell,

For the chair was a kind of nightmare curse,

And every season but made it worse.

As a last resort, to clear the doubt,
They got old GOVERNOR HANCOCK out.
The Governor came with his Light-horse Troop

And his mounted truckmen, all cock-a-hoop;

Halberds glittered and colors flew,
French horns whinnied and trumpets
blew,

The yellow fifes whistled between their teeth

And the bumble-bee bass-drums boomed beneath;

So he rode with all his band,
Till the President met him, cap in hand.

— The Governor "hefted" the crowns, and said, —

"A will is a will, and the Parson's
dead."

The Governor hefted the crowns. Said
 he, —
 “There is your p’int. And here’s my fee.
 These are the terms you must fulfil, —
 On such conditions I BREAK THE
 WILL !”
 The Governor mentioned what these should be.
 (Just wait a minute and then you’ll see.) The President prayed. Then all was still,
 And the Governor rose and BROKE THE
 WILL !
 — “About those conditions?” Well, now you go
 And do as I tell you, and then you’ll
 know.
 Once a year, on Commencement day,
 If you’ll only take the pains to stay,
 You’ll see the President in the CHAIR,
 Likewise the Governor sitting there.
 The President rises ; both old and young
 May hear his speech in a foreign tongue,
 The meaning whereof, as lawyers swear,

Is this : Can I keep this old arm-chair ?
 And then his Excellency bows,
 As much as to say that he allows.
 The Vice-Gub. next is called by name ;
 He bows like t’ other, which means the same.
 And all the officers round ’em bow,
 As much as to say that they allow.
 And a lot of parchments about the chair
 Are handed to witnesses then and there,
 And then the lawyers hold it clear
 That the chair is safe for another year.

God bless you, Gentlemen ! Learn to give
 Money to colleges while you live.
 Don’t be silly and think you’ll try
 To bother the colleges, when you die,
 With codicil this, and codicil that,
 That Knowledge may starve while Law grows fat ;
 For there never was pitcher that would n’t spill,
 And there’s always a flaw in a donkey’s
 will !

ODE FOR A SOCIAL MEETING.

WITH SLIGHT ALTERATIONS BY A TEETOTALER.

COME ! fill a fresh bumper, for why should we go ^{logwood}
 While the ~~nectar~~ still reddens our cups as they flow ?
^{decoction}
 Pour out the ~~rich juices~~ still bright with the sun, ^{dye stuff}
 Till o’er the brimmed crystal the ~~rubies~~ shall run.
^{half-ripened apples}
 The ~~purple globed clusters~~ their life-dews have bled ;
^{taste} ^{sugar of lead}
 How sweet is the ~~breath~~ of the ~~fragrance they shed !~~ ^{rank poisons} ^{wines !!!}
 For summer’s ~~last roses~~ lie hid in the ~~wines~~ ^{stable-boys smoking long-pipes}
 That were garnered by ~~maidens who laughed thro’~~ the vines.
^{scowl} ^{howl} ^{scoff} ^{sneer}
 Then a ~~smile~~, and a ~~glass~~, and a ~~toast~~, and a ~~cheer~~, ^{strychnine and whiskey, and ratsbane and beer}
 For ~~all the good wine, and we’ve some of it here !~~
 In cellar, in pantry, in attic, in hall, ^{Down, down with the tyrant that masters us all !} Long live the ~~gay servant that laughs for us all !~~

PROFESSOR AT THE BREAKFAST TABLE.

P O E M S

FROM THE

PROFESSOR AT THE BREAKFAST TABLE.

1858 - 1859.

UNDER THE VIOLETS.

HER hands are cold ; her face is white ;
No more her pulses come and go ;
Her eyes are shut to life and light ; —
Fold the white vesture, snow on snow,
And lay her where the violets blow.

But not beneath a graven stone,
To plead for tears with alien eyes ;
A slender cross of wood alone
Shall say, that here a maiden lies
In peace beneath the peaceful skies.

And gray old trees of hugest limb Shall wheel their circling shadows
round
To make the scorching sunlight dim That drinks the greenness from the ground,
And drop their dead leaves on her mound.

When o'er their boughs the squirrels
run,
And through their leaves the robins
call,
And, ripening in the autumn sun,
The acorns and the chestnuts fall,
Doubt not that she will heed them all.

For her the morning choir shall sing
Its matins from the branches high,
And every minstrel-voice of Spring,
That trills beneath the April sky,
Shall greet her with its earliest cry.

When, turning round their dial-track, Eastward the lengthening shadows
pass,
Her little mourners, clad in black,
The crickets, sliding through the grass,
Shall pipe for her an evening mass.

At last the rootlets of the trees
Shall find the prison where she lies,
And bear the buried dust they seize
In leaves and blossoms to the skies.
So may the soul that warmed it rise !

If any, born of kindlier blood,
Should ask, What maiden lies below ?
Say only this: A tender bud,
That tried to blossom in the snow,
Lies withered where the violets blow.

HYMN OF TRUST.

O LOVE Divine, that stooped to share
Our sharpest pang, our bitterest tear,

On Thee we cast each earth-born care,
We smile at pain while Thou art near!

Though long the weary way we tread,
And sorrow crown each lingering year,
No path we shun, no darkness dread,
Our hearts still whispering, Thou art
near!

When drooping pleasure turns to grief,
And trembling faith is changed to fear,
The murmuring wind, the quivering leaf,
Shall softly tell us, Thou art near!

On Thee we fling our burdening woe,
O Love Divine, forever dear,
Content to suffer while we know,
Living and dying, Thou art near!

A SUN-DAY HYMN.

LORD of all being! throned afar,
Thy glory flames from sun and star;
Centre and soul of every sphere,
Yet to each loving heart how near!

Sun of our life, thy quickening ray Sheds on our path the glow of day;
Star of our hope, thy softened light
Cheers the long watches of the night.

Our midnight is thy smile withdrawn;
Our noontide is thy gracious dawn;
Our rainbow arch thy mercy's sign;
All, save the clouds of sin, are thine!

Lord of all life, below, above, Whose light is truth, whose warmth is
love,
Before thy ever-blazing throne
We ask no lustre of our own.

Grant us thy truth to make us free,
And kindling hearts that burn for thee,
Till all thy living altars claim
One holy light, one heavenly flame!

THE CROOKED FOOTPATH.

AH, here it is! the sliding rail
That marks the old remembered spot, —
The gap that struck our school-boy
trail, —
The crooked path across the lot.

It left the road by school and church,
A pencilled shadow, nothing more,
That parted from the silver-birch
And ended at the farm-house door.

No line or compass traced its plan;
With frequent bends to left or right,
In aimless, wayward curves it ran,
But always kept the door in sight.

The gabled porch, with woodbine
green, —
The broken millstone at the sill, — Though many a rood might stretch between,
The truant child could see them still.

No rocks across the pathway lie, —
No fallen trunk is o'er it thrown, —
And yet it winds, we know not why,
And turns as if for tree or stone.

Perhaps some lover trod the way
With shaking knees and leaping
heart, —
And so it often runs astray
With sinuous sweep or sudden start.

Or one, perchance, with clouded brain
From some unholy banquet reeled, —
And since, our devious steps maintain
His track across the trodden field.

Nay, deem not thus, — no earthborn will Could ever trace a faultless line;
Our truest steps are human still, —
To walk unswerving were divine!

Truants from love, we dream of wrath ;—
 O, rather let us trust the more !
 Through all the wanderings of the path,
 We still can see our Father's door !

IRIS, HER BOOK.

I PRAY thee by the soul of her that bore
 thee,
 By thine own sister's spirit I implore
 thee,
 Deal gently with the leaves that lie before thee !

For Iris had no mother to infold her,
 Nor ever leaned upon a sister's shoulder, Telling the twilight thoughts that Nature told her.

She had not learned the mystery of awaking
 Those chorded keys that soothe a sorrow's aching,
 Giving the dumb heart voice, that else were breaking.

Yet lived, wrought, suffered. Lo, the pictured token !

Why should her fleeting day-dreams fade unspeaken,
 Like daffodils that die with sheaths unbroken ?

She knew not love, yet lived in maiden fancies, —
 Walked simply clad, a queen of high romances,
 And talked strange tongues with angels in her trances.

Twin-souled she seemed, a twofold nature wearing, — Sometimes a flashing falcon in her daring,
 Then a poor mateless dove that droops despairing.

Questioning all things : Why her Lord had sent her ?
 What were these torturing gifts, and wherefore lent her ?
 Scornful as spirit fallen, its own tor-mentor.

And then all tears and anguish : Queen of Heaven,
 Sweet Saints, and Thou by mortal sorrows riven,
 Save me ! O, save me ! Shall I die forgiven ?

And then — Ah, God ! But nay, it little matters :
 Look at the wasted seeds that autumn scatters,
 The myriad germs that Nature shapes and shatters !

If she had — Well ! She longed, and knew not wherefore.
 Had the world nothing she might live to care for ?
 No second self to say her evening prayer for ?

She knew the marble shapes that set men dreaming,
 Yet with her shoulders bare and tresses streaming Showed not unlovely to her simple seeming.

Vain ? Let it be so ! Nature was her teacher.
 What if a lonely and unsistered creature Loved her own harmless gift of pleasing feature,

Saying, unsaddened, — This shall soon be faded,
 And double-hued the shining tresses braided,

And all the sunlight of the morning shaded?

— This her poor book is full of saddest follies,
Of tearful smiles and laughing melancholies,
With summer roses twined and wintry hollies.

In the strange crossing of uncertain chances,
Somewhere, beneath some maiden's teardimmed glances May fall her little book of dreams and fancies.

Sweet sister! Iris, who shall never name thee,
Trembling for fear her open heart may shame thee,
Speaks from this vision-haunted page to claim thee.

Spare her, I pray thee! If the maid is sleeping,
Peace with her! she has had her hour of weeping.
No more! She leaves her memory in thy keeping.

ROBINSON OF LEYDEN.

HE sleeps not here; in hope and prayer
His wandering flock had gone before,
But he, the shepherd, might not share
Their sorrows on the wintry shore.

Before the Speedwell's anchor swung, Ere yet the Mayflower's sail was spread,

While round his feet the Pilgrims clung,
The pastor spake, and thus he said:—

“Men, brethren, sisters, children dear!
God calls you hence from over sea;

Ye may not build by Haerlem Meer,
Nor yet along the Zuyder-Zee.

“Ye go to bear the saving word
To tribes unnamed and shores untrod:
Heed well the lessons ye have heard
From those old teachers taught of God.

“Yet think not unto them was lent
All light for all the coming days,
And Heaven's eternal wisdom spent
In making straight the ancient ways:

“The living fountain overflows
For every flock, for every lamb,
Nor heeds, though angry creeds oppose
With Luther's dike or Calvin's dam.”

He spake: with lingering, long embrace,
With tears of love and partings fond,
They floated down the creeping Maas,
Along the isle of Ysselmond.

They passed the frowning towers of Briel,
The “Hook of Holland's” shelf of sand,
And grated soon with lifting keel
The sullen shores of Fatherland.

No home for these!— too well they knew
The mitred king behind the throne;—
The sails were set, the pennons flew,
And westward ho! for worlds unknown.

— And these were they who gave us
birth,
The Pilgrims of the sunset wave,
Who won for us this virgin earth,
And freedom with the soil they gave.

The pastor slumbers by the Rhine, —
In alien earth the exiles lie, —
Their nameless graves our holiest shrine,
His words our noblest battle-cry!

Still cry them, and the world shall hear,
 Ye dwellers by the storm-swept sea!
 Ye have not built by Haerlem Meer,
 Nor on the land-locked Zuyder-Zee!

ST. ANTHONY THE REFORMER.

HIS TEMPTATION.

No fear lest praise should make us proud!
 We know how cheaply that is won;
 The idle homage of the crowd
 Is proof of tasks as idly done.

A surface-smile may pay the toil
 That follows still the conquering
 Right,
 With soft, white hands to dress the spoil
 That sun-browned valor clutched in fight.

Sing the sweet song of other days,
 Serenely placid, safely true,
 And o'er the present's parching ways
 The verse distils like evening dew.

But speak in words of living power, —
 They fall like drops of scalding rain
 That plashed before the burning shower
 Swept o'er the cities of the plain!

Then scowling Hate turns deadly pale, — Then Passion's half-coiled adders
 spring,
 And, smitten through their leprous mail,
 Strike right and left in hope to sting.

If thou, unmoved by poisoning wrath,
 Thy feet on earth, thy heart above,
 Canst walk in peace thy kingly path, Unchanged in trust, unchilled in
 love, —

Too kind for bitter words to grieve,
 Too firm for clamor to dismay,
 When Faith forbids thee to believe,
 And Meekness calls to disobey, —

Ah, then beware of mortal pride!
 The smiling pride that calmly scorns
 Those foolish fingers, crimson dyed
 In laboring on thy crown of thorns!

THE OPENING OF THE PIANO.

IN the little southern parlor of the house you may have seen
 With the gambrel-roof, and the gable looking westward to the green,
 At the side toward the sunset, with the window on its right, Stood the London-made piano I am dreaming of to-night!

Ah me! how I remember the evening when it came!
 What a cry of eager voices, what a group of cheeks in flame,
 When the wondrous box was opened that had come from over seas, With its smell of mastic-varnish and its flash of ivory keys!

Then the children all grew fretful in the restlessness of joy;
 For the boy would push his sister, and the sister crowd the boy, Till the father asked for quiet in his grave paternal way, But the mother hushed the tumult with the words, "Now, Mary, play."

For the dear soul knew that music was a very sovereign balm;
 She had sprinkled it over Sorrow and seen its brow grow calm,
 In the days of slender harpsichords with tapping tinkling quills,
 Or carolling to her spinet with its thin metallic thrills.

So Mary, the household minstrel, who always loved to please,

Sat down to the new "Clementi," and struck the glittering keys.
Hushed were the children's voices, and every eye grew dim,
As, floating from lip and finger, arose
the "Vesper Hymn."

— Catharine, child of a neighbor, curly and rosy-red, (Wedded since, and a widow, — something like ten years dead,) Hearing a gush of music such as none
before,
Steals from her mother's chamber and peeps at the open door.

Just as the "Jubilate" in threaded whisper dies,
"Open it! open it, lady!" the little maiden cries,
(For she thought 't was a singing creature caged in a box she heard,)
"Open it! open it, lady! and let me see the bird!"

MIDSUMMER.

HERE! sweep these foolish leaves away,
I will not crush my brains to-day!
Look! are the southern curtains drawn?
Fetch me a fan, and so begone!

Not that, — the palm-tree's rustling leaf
Brought from a parching coral-reef!
Its breath is heated; — I would swing
The broad gray plumes, — the eagle's wing.

I hate these roses' feverish blood! —
Pluck me a half-blown lily-bud,
A long-stemmed lily from the lake,
Cold as a coiling water-snake.

Rain me sweet odors on the air,
And wheel me up my Indian chair,

And spread some book not otherwise
Flat out before my sleepy eyes.

— Who knows it not, — this dead recoil
Of weary fibres stretched with toil, —
The pulse that flutters faint and low
When Summer's seething breezes blow!

O Nature! bare thy loving breast,
And give thy child one hour of rest, —
One little hour to lie unseen
Beneath thy scarf of leafy green!

So, curtained by a singing pine,
Its murmuring voice shall blend with
mine,
Till, lost in dreams, my faltering lay
In sweeter music dies away.

DE SAUTY.

AN ELECTRO-CHEMICAL ECLOGUE.

Professor. Blue-Nose.

PROFESSOR.

TELL me, O Provincial! speak, Ceruleo-Nasal!
Lives there one De Sauty extant now among you,
Whispering Boanerges, son of silent thunder,
Holding talk with nations?

Is there a De Sauty ambulant on Tellus, Bifid-cleft like mortals, dormant in nightcap,
Having sight, smell, hearing, food-receiving feature
Three times daily patent?

Breathes there such a being, O Ceruleo-Nasal?
Or is he a mythus, — ancient word for "humbug," —

“Is there a De Sauty.”

Such as Livy told about the wolf that wet-nursed Romulus and Remus ?

Was he born of woman, this alleged De Sauty ?

Or a living product of galvanic action,
Like the acarus bred in Crosse's flint-solution ?

Speak, thou Cyano-Rhinal !

BLUE-NOSE.

Many things thou askest, jackknifebearing stranger,

Much-conjecturing mortal, pork-andtreacle-waster !

Pretermitt thy whittling, wheel thine ear-flap toward me,

Thou shalt hear them answered.

When the charge galvanic tingled through the cable,

At the polar focus of the wire electric Suddenly appeared a white-faced man among us :

Called himself "DE SAUTY."

As the small opossum held in pouch maternal

Grasps the nutrient organ whence the term mammalia,

So the unknown stranger held the wire electric,

Sucking in the current.

When the current strengthened, bloomed the pale-faced stranger, —

Took no drink nor victual, yet grew fat and rosy, —

And from time to time, in sharp articulation,
Said, "All right! DE SAUTY."

From the lonely station passed the utterance, spreading

Through the pines and hemlocks to the groves of steeples,

Till the land was filled with loud reverberations

Of "All right! DE SAUTY."

When the current slackened, drooped the mystic stranger, —

Faded, faded, faded, as the stream grew weaker, —

Wasted to a shadow, with a hartshorn odor

Of disintegration.

Drops of deliquescence glistened on his forehead,

Whitened round his feet the dust of efflorescence,

Till one Monday morning, when the flow suspended,

There was no De Sauty.

Nothing but a cloud of elements organic,
C. O. H. N. Ferrum, Chlor. Flu. Sil.
Potassa,

Calc. Sod. Phosph. Mag. Sulphur,
Mang. (?) Alumin. (?) Cuprum, (?)

Such as man is made of.

Born of stream galvanic, with it he had perished !

There is no De Sauty now there is no current !

Give us a new cable, then again we 'll hear him

Cry, "All right! DE SAUTY."

1871-1872.

HOMESICK IN HEAVEN.

THE DIVINE VOICE.

Go seek thine earth-born sisters, — thus the Voice

That all obey, — the sad and silent three ;

These only, while the hosts of Heaven rejoice,

Smile never : ask them what their sorrows be :

And when the secret of their griefs they
tell,

Look on them with thy mild, half-human eyes ;

Say what thou wast on earth ; thou knowest well ;

So shall they cease from unavailing sighs.

THE ANGEL.

— Why thus, apart, — the swift-winged herald spake, —

Sit ye with silent lips and unstrung
lyres

While the trisagion's blending chords awake

In shouts of joy from all the heavenly choirs ?

THE FIRST SPIRIT.

— Chide not thy sisters, — thus the answer came ; —

Children of earth, our half-weaned nature clings

To earth's fond memories, and her whispered name

Untunes our quivering lips, our saddened strings ;

For there we loved, and where we love is home,

Home that our feet may leave, but not our hearts,

Though o'er us shine the jasper-lighted dome : —

The chain may lengthen, but it never parts !

Sometimes a sunlit sphere comes rolling
by,

And then we softly whisper, — *can it
be ?*

And leaning toward the silvery orb, we try

To hear the music of its murmuring
sea ;

To catch, perchance, some flashing glimpse of green,

Or breathe some wild-wood fragrance, wafted through

The opening gates of pearl, that fold between

The blindingsplendors and the changeless blue.

THE ANGEL.

— Nay, sister, nay! a single healing leaf Plucked from the bough of yon twelvefruited tree,
 Would soothe such anguish, — deeper stabbing grief
 Has pierced thy throbbing heart —

THE FIRST SPIRIT.

— Ah, woe is me!

I from my clinging babe was rudely torn;
 His tender lips a loveless bosom
 pressed;
 Can I forget him in my life new born?
 O that my darling lay upon my breast!

THE ANGEL.

— And thou? —

THE SECOND SPIRIT.

I was a fair and youthful bride,
 The kiss of love still burns upon my
 cheek,
 He whom I worshipped, ever at my side, —
 Him through the spirit realm in vain
 I seek.

Sweet faces turn their beaming eyes on
 mine;
 Ah! not in these the wished-for look
 I read;
 Still for that one dear human smile I
 pine;
Thou and none other! — is the lover's creed.

THE ANGEL.

— And whence thy sadness in a world of bliss
 Where never parting comes, nor mourner's tear?
 Art thou, too, dreaming of a mortal's kiss Amid the seraphs of the heavenly sphere?

THE THIRD SPIRIT.

— Nay, tax not me with passion's wasting fire;
 When the swift message set my spirit
 free,
 Blind, helpless, lone, I left my gray-haired sire;
 My friends were many, he had none save me.

I left him, orphaned, in the starless
 night;
 Alas, for him no cheerful morning's dawn!
 I wear the ransomed spirit's robe of
 white,
 Yet still I hear him moaning, She is gone!

THE ANGEL.

— Ye know me not, sweet sisters? — All in vain
 Ye seek your lost ones in the shapes they wore;
 The flower once opened may not bud
 again,
 The fruit once fallen finds the stem
 no more.

Child, lover, sire, — yea, all things loved below, —
 Fair pictures damasked on a vapor's
 fold, —
 Fade like the roseate flush, the golden glow,
 When the bright curtain of the day is rolled.

I was the babe that slumbered on thy
 breast.
 — And, sister, mine the lips that called thee bride.
 — Mine were the silvered locks thy hand caressed,
 That faithful hand, my faltering footstep's guide!

Each changing form, frail vesture of decay,

The soul unclad forgets it once hath worn,

Stained with the travel of the weary day,
And shamed with rents from every wayside thorn.

To lie, an infant, in thy fond embrace, — To come with love's warm kisses back to thee, —

To show thine eyes thy gray-haired father's face,

Not Heaven itself could grant ; this may not be !

Then spread your folded wings, and leave to earth

The dust once breathing ye have mourned so long,

Till Love, new risen, owns his heavenly
birth,

And sorrow's discords sweeten into
song !

FANTASIA.

THE YOUNG GIRL'S POEM.

Kiss mine eyelids, beauteous Morn,
Blushing into life new-born !

Lend me violets for my hair,
And thy russet robe to wear,
And thy ring of rosiest hue
Set in drops of diamond dew !

Kiss my cheek, thou noontide ray,
From my Love so far away !
Let thy splendor streaming down
Turn its pallid lilies brown,
Till its darkening shades reveal
Where his passion pressed its seal !

Kiss my lips, thou Lord of light,
Kiss my lips a soft good-night !

Westward sinks thy golden car ;
Leave me but the evening star,
And my solace that shall be,
Borrowing all its light from thee !

AUNT TABITHA.

THE YOUNG GIRL'S POEM.

WHATEVER I do, and whatever I say, Aunt Tabitha tells me that is n't the
way ;

When she was a girl (forty summers ago)
Aunt Tabitha tells me they never did so.

Dear aunt ! If I only would take her advice !

But I like my own way, and I find it so nice !

And besides, I forget half the things I am told ;

But they all will come back to me — when I am old.

If a youth passes by, it may happen, no
doubt,

He may chance to look in as I chance to look out ;

She would never endure an impertinent
stare, —

It is horrid, she says, and I must n't sit
there.

A walk in the moonlight has pleasures,
I own,

But it is n't quite safe to be walking
alone ;

So I take a lad's arm, — just for safety,
you know, —

But Aunt Tabitha tells me they did n't do so.

How wicked we are, and how good they were then !

They kept at arm's length those detestable men ;

What an era of virtue she lived in!—
But stay—

Were the men all such rogues in Aunt Tabitha's day?

If the men were so wicked, I'll ask my papa

How he dared to propose to my darling
mamma;

Was he like the rest of them? Goodness! Who knows?

And what shall I say, if a wretch should propose?

I am thinking if Aunt knew so little of sin,

What a wonder Aunt Tabitha's aunt must have been!

And her grand-aunt— it scares me—how shockingly sad

That we girls of to-day are so frightfully bad!

A martyr will save us, and nothing else can;

Let me perish—to rescue some wretched young man!

Though when to the altar a victim I go,
Aunt Tabitha'll tell me she never did so!

WIND-CLOUDS AND STAR-DRIFTS.

FROM THE YOUNG ASTRONOMER'S POEM.

I.

AMBITION.

ANOTHER clouded night; the stars are hid,

The orb that waits my search is hid with them.

Patience! Why grudge an hour, a month, a year,

To plant my ladder and to gain the
round

That leads my footsteps to the heaven
of fame,

Where waits the wreath my sleepless-midnights won?

Not the stained laurel such as heroes wear

That withers when some stronger con-queror's heel

Treads down their shrivelling trophies in the dust;

But the fair garland whose undying
green

Not time can change, nor wrath of gods or men!

With quickened heart-beats I shall hear the tongues

That speak my praise; but better far the sense

That in the unshaped ages, buried deep In the dark mines of unaccomplished
time

Yet to be stamped with morning's royal die

And coined in golden days,— in those dim years

I shall be reckoned with the undying
dead,

My name emblazoned on the fiery arch, Unfading till the stars themselves shall fade.

Then, as they call the roll of shining worlds,

Sages of race unborn in accents new Shall count me with the Olympian ones
of old,

Whose glories kindle through the midnight sky:

Here glows the God of Battles; this recalls

The Lord of Ocean, and yon far-off sphere
The Sire of Him who gave his ancient
name

To the dim planet with the wondrous rings;

Here flames the Queen of Beauty's silver lamp,
 And there the moon-girt orb of mighty Jove ;
 But this, unseen through all earth's æons
 past,
 A youth who watched beneath the western star Sought in the darkness, found, and shewed to men ;
 Linked with his name thenceforth and evermore !
 So shall that name be syllabled anew
 In all the tongues of all the tribes of
 men :
 I that have been through immemorial
 years
 Dust in the dust of my forgotten time Shall live in accents shaped of blood-warm breath,
 Yea, rise in mortal semblance, newly
 born
 In shining stone, in undecaying bronze,
 And stand on high, and look serenely
 down
 On the new race that calls the earth its own.

Is this a cloud, that, blown athwart
 my soul,
 Wears a false seeming of the pearly stain Where worlds beyond the world their mingling rays
 Blend in soft white, — a cloud that, born of earth,
 Would cheat the soul that looks for light
 from heaven ?
 Must every coral-insect leave his sign On each poor grain he lent to build the reef,
 As Babel's builders stamped their sunburnt clay,
 Or deem his patient service all in vain ?
 What if another sit beneath the shade
 Of the broad elm I planted by the way, —

What if another heed the beacon light
 I set upon the rock that wrecked my keel, —
 Have I not done my task and served my
 kind ?
 Nay, rather act thy part, unnamed, unknown,
 And let Fame blow her trumpet through the world
 With noisy wind to swell a fool's renown,
 Joined with some truth he stumbled blindly o'er,
 Or coupled with some single shining deed
 That in the great account of all his days
 Will stand alone upon the bankrupt sheet
 His pitying angel shows the clerk of Heaven.
 The noblest service comes from nameless
 hands,
 And the best servant does his work unseen.
 Who found the seeds of fire and made them shoot,
 Fed by his breath, in buds and flowers of flame ?
 Who forged in roaring flames the ponderous stone,
 And shaped the moulded metal to his need ?
 Who gave the dragging car its rolling
 wheel,
 And tamed the steed that whirls its circling round ?
 All these have left their work and not their names, —
 Why should I murmur at a fate like theirs ?
 This is the heavenly light ; the pearly stain
 Was but a wind-cloud drifting o'er the stars !

II.

REGRETS.

BRIEF glimpses of the bright celestial spheres,
 False lights, false shadows, vague, uncertain gleams,
 Pale vaporous mists, wan streaks of lurid flame,
 The climbing of the upward-sailing cloud,
 The sinking of the downward-falling star, —
 All these are pictures of the changing moods Borne through the midnight stillness of my soul.

Here am I, bound upon this pillared rock,
 Prey to the vulture of a vast desire
 That feeds upon my life. I burst my bands
 And steal a moment's freedom from the beak,
 The clinging talons and the shadowing plumes ;
 Then comes the false enchantress, with her song ;
 "Thou wouldst not lay thy forehead in the dust
 Like the base herd that feeds and breeds and dies !
 Lo, the fair garlands that I weave for thee,
 Unchanging as the belt Orion wears,
 Bright as the jewels of the seven-starred Crown,
 The spangled stream of Berenice's hair !"
 And so she twines the fetters with the flowers
 Around my yielding limbs, and the fierce bird
 Stoops to his quarry, — then to feed his rage

Of ravening hunger I must drain my blood
 And let the dew-drenched, poison-breeding night
 Steal all the freshness from my fading cheek,
 And leave its shadows round my cavered eyes.
 All for a line in some unheeded scroll ;
 All for a stone that tells to gaping clowns,
 "Here lies a restless wretch beneath a clod Where squats the jealous nightmare men call Fame !"

I marvel not at him who scorns his kind
 And thinks not sadly of the time foretold
 When the old hulk we tread shall be a wreck,
 A slag, a cinder drifting through the sky
 Without its crew of fools ! We live too long
 And even so are not content to die,
 But load the mould that covers up our bones
 With stones that stand like beggars by the road
 And show death's grievous wound and ask for tears ;
 Write our great books to teach men who we are,
 Sing our fine songs that tell in artful phrase
 The secrets of our lives, and plead and pray
 For alms of memory with the after time,
 Those few swift seasons while the earth shall wear
 Its leafy summers, ere its core grows cold
 And the moist life of all that breathes shall die ;

Or as the new-born seer, perchance more
wise,
Would have us deem, before its growing mass,
Pelted with star-dust, stoned with meteor-balls,
Heats like a hammered anvil, till at last Man and his works and all that stirred itself
Of its own motion, in the fiery glow
Turns to a flaming vapor, and our orb Shines a new sun for earths that shall be born.

I am as old as Egypt to myself, Brother to them that squared the pyramids
By the same stars I watch. I read the page
Where every letter is a glittering world,
With them who looked from Shinar's clay-built towers,
Ere yet the wanderer of the Midland
sea
Had missed the fallen sister of the seven.
I dwell in spaces vague, remote, unknown,
Save to the silent few, who, leaving
earth,
Quit all communion with their living
time.
I lose myself in that ethereal void, Till I have tired my wings and long to fill
My breast with denser air, to stand, to walk
With eyes not raised above my fellow-
men.
Sick of my unvalled, solitary realm,
I ask to change the myriad lifeless
worlds
I visit as mine own for one poor patch
Of this dull spheroid and a little breath
To shape in word or deed to serve my kind.

Was ever giant's dungeon dug so deep,
Was ever tyrant's fetter forged so strong,
Was e'er such deadly poison in the draught
The false wife mingles for the trusting fool,
As he whose willing victim is himself,
Digs, forges, mingles, for his captive soul?

III.

SYMPATHIES.

THE snows that glittered on the disk of Mars
Have melted, and the planet's fiery orb
Rolls in the crimson summer of its year ;
But what to me the summer or the snow
Of worlds that throb with life in forms unknown,
If life indeed be theirs ; I heed not
these.
My heart is simply human ; all my care
For them whose dust is fashioned like mine own ;
These ache with cold and hunger, live in pain,
And shake with fear of worlds more full of woe ;
There may be others worthier of my love,
But such I know not save through these
I know.
There are two veils of language, hid beneath
Whose sheltering folds, we dare to be ourselves ;
And not that other self which nods and smiles
And babbles in our name ; the one is Prayer,
Lending its licenséd freedom to the
tongue

That tells our sorrows and our sins to Heaven ;

The other, Verse, that throws its spangled web

Around our naked speech and makes it bold.

I, whose best prayer is silence ; sitting dumb

In the great temple where I nightly serve

Him who is throned in light, have dared
to claim

The poet's franchise, though I may not hope

To wear his garland ; hear me while I tell

My story in such form as poets use, But breathed in fitful whispers, as the wind

Sighs and then slumbers, wakes and sighs again.

Thou Vision, floating in the breathless
air

Between me and the fairest of the stars,
I tell my lonely thoughts as unto thee.

Look not for marvels of the scholar's pen
In my rude measure ; I can only show

A slender-margined, unillumined page,
And trust its meaning to the flattering

eye
That reads it in the gracious light of love.

Ah, wouldst thou clothe thyself in breathing shape

And nestle at my side, my voice should lend

Whate'er my verse may lack of tender rhythm

To make thee listen.

I have stood entranced
When, with her fingers wandering o'er the keys,

The white echantress with the golden
hair

Breathed all her soul through some unvalued rhyme ;

Some flower of song that long had lost its bloom ;

Lo ! its dead summer kindled as she sang !

The sweet contralto, like the ringdove's coo,

Thrilled it with brooding, fond, caress-ing tones,

And the pale minstrel's passion lived
again,

Tearful and trembling as a dewy rose
The wind has shaken till it fills the air

With light and fragrance. Such the wondrous charm

A song can borrow when the bosom throbs

That lends it breath.
So from the poet's lips

His verse sounds doubly sweet, for none like him

Feels every cadence of its wave-like
flow ;

He lives the passion over, while he reads,
That shook him as he sang his lofty

strain,
And pours his life through each resounding line,

As ocean, when the stormy winds are hushed,

Still rolls and thunders through his billowy caves.

IV.

MASTER AND SCHOLAR.

LET me retrace the record of the years That made me what I am. A man most wise,

But overworn with toil and bent with
age,

Sought me to be his scholar, — me, run
wild

From books and teachers, — kindled in my soul
 The love of knowledge ; led me to his tower,
 Showed me the wonders of the midnight realm
 His hollow sceptre ruled, or seemed to rule,
 Taught me the mighty secrets of the spheres,
 Trained me to find the glimmering specks of light
 Beyond the unaided sense, and on my chart
 To string them one by one, in order due,
 As on a rosary a saint his beads.
 I was his only scholar ; I became The echo to his thought ; whate'er he knew
 Was mine for asking ; so from year to year
 We wrought together, till there came a
 time
 When I, the learner, was the master
 half
 Of the twinned being in the dome-crowned tower.

Minds roll in paths like planets ; they revolve
 This in a larger, that a narrower ring,
 But round they come at last to that same phase,
 That selfsame light and shade they showed before.
 I learned his annual and his monthly tale,
 His weekly axiom and his daily phrase,
 I felt them coming in the laden air,
 And watched them laboring up to vocal
 breath,
 Even as the first-born at his father's board
 Knows ere he speaks the too familiar jest

Is on its way, by some mysterious
 sign Forewarned, the click before the striking bell.

He shrivelled as I spread my growing leaves,
 Till trust and reverence changed to pitying care ;
 He lived for me in what he once had been,
 But I for him, a shadow, a defence,
 The guardian of his fame, his guide, his staff,
 Leaned on so long he fell if left alone.
 I was his eye, his ear, his cunning
 hand,
 Love was my spur and longing after
 fame,
 But his the goading thorn of sleepless
 age
 That sees its shortening span, its lengthening shades,
 That clutches what it may with eager grasp,
 And drops at last with empty, outstretched hands.
 All this he dreamed not. He would sit him down Thinking to work his problems as of
 old,
 And find the star he thought so plain a blur,
 The columned figures labyrinthine wilds Without my comment, blind and senseless scrawls
 That vexed him with their riddles ; he would strive
 And struggle for a while, and then his eye
 Would lose its light, and over all his mind
 The cold gray mist would settle ; and erelong
 The darkness fell, and I was left alone.

V.

ALONE.

ALONE ! no climber of an Alpine cliff,
No Arctic venturer on the waveless sea,
Feels the dread stillness round him as it chills

The heart of him who leaves the slumbering earth

To watch the silent worlds that crowd
the sky.

Alone ! And as the shepherd leaves his flock

To feed upon the hillside, he meanwhile Finds converse in the warblings of the pipe

Himself has fashioned for his vacant
hour,

So have I grown companion to myself,
And to the wandering spirits of the air
That smile and whisper round us in our dreams.

Thus have I learned to search if I may
know

The whence and why of all beneath the stars

And all beyond them, and to weigh my life

As in a balance, — poisoning good and ill Against each other, — asking of the Power

That flung me forth among the whirling
worlds,

If I am heir to any inborn right,

Or only as an atom of the dust

That every wind may blow where'er it will.

VI.

QUESTIONING.

I AM not humble ; I was shown my
place,

Clad in such robes as Nature had at
hand ;

Took what she gave, not chose ; I know
no shame,

No fear for being simply what I am.

I am not proud, I hold my every breath
At Nature's mercy. I am as a babe Borne in a giant's arms, he knows not where ;

Each several heart-beat, counted like the coin

A miser reckons, is a special gift
As from an unseen hand ; if that withhold

Its bounty for a moment, I am left
A clod upon the earth to which I fall.

Something I find in me that well might
claim

The love of beings in a sphere above
This doubtful twilight world of right and wrong ;

Something that shows me of the self-same clay

That creeps or swims or flies in humblest form.

Had I been asked, before I left my bed Of shapeless dust, what clothing I would wear,

I would have said, More angel and less worm ;

But for their sake who are even such as I,
Of the same mingled blood, I would not choose

To hate that meaner portion of myself Which makes me brother to the least of
men.

I dare not be a coward with my lips
Who dare to question all things in my
soul ;

Some men may find their wisdom on their knees,

Some prone and grovelling in the dust like slaves ;

Let the meek glowworm glisten in the dew ;

I ask to lift my taper to the sky
 As they who hold their lamps above their heads,
 Trusting the larger currents up aloft, Rather than crossing eddies round their
 breast,
 Threatening with every puff the flickering blaze.

My life shall be a challenge, not a truce !
 This is my homage to the mightier powers,
 To ask my boldest question, undismayed
 By muttered threats that some hysteric sense
 Of wrong or insult will convulse the
 throne
 Where wisdom reigns supreme ; and if I err,
 They all must err who have to feel their
 way
 As bats that fly at noon ; for what are we But creatures of the night, dragged forth by day,
 Who needs must stumble, and with stammering steps
 Spell out their paths in syllables of pain ?
 Thou wilt not hold in scorn the child who dares Look up to Thee, the Father, — dares to ask
 More than Thy wisdom answers. From Thy hand
 The worlds were cast ; yet every leaflet claims
 From that same hand its little shining sphere
 Of star-lit dew ; thine image, the great
 sun,
 Girt with his mantle of tempestuous
 flame,
 Glares in mid-heaven ; but to his noon-tide blaze
 The slender violet lifts its lidless eye,

And from his splendor steals its fairest
 hue,
 Its sweetest perfume from his scorching fire.

VII.

WORSHIP.

FROM my lone turret as I look around O'er the green meadows to the ring of blue,
 From slope, from summit, and from half-hid vale
 The sky is stabbed with dagger-pointed spires,
 Their gilded symbols whirling in the wind,
 Their brazen tongues proclaiming to
 the world,
 " Here truth is sold, the only genuine ware ;
 See that it has our trade-mark ! You will buy
 Poison instead of food across the way,
 The lies of — " this or that, each several name
 The standard's blazon and the battle-ery
 Of some true-gospel faction, and again
 The token of the Beast to all beside.
 And grouped round each I see a huddling crowd
 Alike in all things save the words they use ;
 In love, in longing, hate and fear the same.

Whom do we trust and serve ? We speak of one And bow to many ; Athens still would find
 The shrines of all she worshipped safe within
 Our tall barbarian temples, and the thrones

That crowned Olympus mighty as of old.
The god of music rules the Sabbath choir ;

The lyric muse must leave the sacred nine

To help us please the dilettante's ear ; Plutus limps homeward with us, as we leave

The portals of the temple where we knelt
And listened while the god of eloquence (Herues of ancient days, but now disguised

In sable vestments) with that other god
Somnus, the son of Erebus and Nox, Fights in unequal contest for our souls ;
The dreadful sovereign of the under world

Still shakes his sceptre at us, and we hear
The baying of the triple-throated hound ;
Eros is young as ever, and as fair
The lovely Goddess born of ocean's foam.

These be thy gods, O Israel ! Who is he,

The one ye name and tell us that ye
serve,

Whom ye would call me from my lonely
tower

To worship with the many-headed throng ?

Is it the God that walked in Eden's grove
In the cool hour to seek our guilty sire ?

The God who dealt with Abraham as the sons

Of that old patriarch deal with other
men ?

The jealous God of Moses, one who feels
An image as an insult, and is wroth
With him who made it and his child unborn ?

The God who plagued his people for the sin

Of their adulterous king, beloved of him, —

The same who offers to a chosen few

The right to praise him in eternal song While a vast shrieking world of endless woe

Blends its dread chorus with their rapturous hymn ?

Is this the God ye mean, or is it he Who heeds the sparrow's fall, whose loving heart

Is as the pitying father's to his child, Whose lesson to his children is "Forgive,"

Whose plea for all, "They know not what they do" ?

VIII.

MANHOOD.

I CLAIM the right of knowing whom
I serve,

Else is my service idle ; He that asks
My homage asks it from a reasoning soul.
To crawl is not to worship ; we have learned

A drill of eyelids, bended neck and knee, Hanging our prayers on hinges, till we ape

The flexures of the many-jointed worm.
Asia has taught her Allahs and salaams To the world's children, — we have grown to men !

We who have rolled the sphere beneath
our feet

To find a virgin forest, as we lay
The beams of our rude temple, first of all Must frame its doorway high enough for man

To pass unstooping ; knowing as we do
That He who shaped us last of living
forms

Has long enough been served by creeping things,

Reptiles that left their footprints in the sand

Of old sea-margins that have turned to
stone,

And men who learned their ritual ; we demand
To know him first, then trust him and then love
When we have found him worthy of our
love,
Tried by our own poor hearts and not before ;
He must be truer than the truest friend,
He must be tenderer than a woman's
love,
A father better than the best of sires ;
Kinder than she who bore us, though we sin
Oftener than did the brother we are told,
We — poor ill-tempered mortals — must forgive,
Though seven times sinning threescore times and ten.

This is the new world's gospel : Be ye men !
Try well the legends of the children's
time ;
Ye are the chosen people, God has led
Your steps across the desert of the deep
As now across the desert of the shore ; Mountains are cleft before you as the sea
Before the wandering tribe of Israel's sons ;
Still onward rolls the thunderous caravan,
Its coming printed on the western sky,
A cloud by day, by night a pillared
flame ;
Your prophets are a hundred unto one Of them of old who cried, " Thus saith the Lord " ;
They told of cities that should fall in heaps,
But yours of mightier cities that shall rise
Where yet the lonely fishers spread their nets,

Where hides the fox and hoots the midnight owl ;
The tree of knowledge in your garden grows
Not single, but at every humble door ;
Its branches lend you their immortal
food,
That fills you with the sense of what ye are,
No servants of an altar hewed and carved From senseless stone by craft of human
hands,
Rabbi, or dervish, brahmin, bishop,
bonze,
But masters of the charm with which they work
To keep your hands from that forbidden tree !
Ye that have tasted that divinest fruit,
Look on this world of yours with opened
eyes !
Ye are as gods ! Nay, makers of your gods, —
Each day ye break an image in your shrine
And plant a fairer image where it stood :
Where is the Moloch of your fathers'
creed,
Whose fires of torment burned for span-long babes ?
Fit object for a tender mother's love !
Why not ? It was a bargain duly made For these same infants through the surety's act
Intrusted with their all for earth and
heaven,
By Him who chose their guardian, knowing well
His fitness for the task, — this, even
this,
Was the true doctrine only yesterday
As thoughts are reckoned, — and to-day you hear
In words that sound as if from human tongues

Those monstrous, uncouth horrors of the past
That blot the blue of heaven and shame
the earth
As would the saurians of the age of slime,
Awaking from their stony sepulchres
And wallowing hateful in the eye of day!

IX.

RIGHTS.

WHAT am I but the creature Thou hast
made?
What have I save the blessings Thou hast lent?
What hope I but Thy mercy and Thy
love?
Who but myself shall cloud my soul with fear?
Whose hand protect me from myself but Thine?
I claim the rights of weakness, I, the babe,
Call on my sire to shield me from the ills
That still beset my path, not trying me With snares beyond my wisdom or my strength,
He knowing I shall use them to my harm,
And find a tenfold misery in the sense
That in my childlike folly I have sprung
The trap upon myself as vermin use Drawn by the cunning bait to certain doom.
Who wrought the wondrous charm that leads us on
To sweet perdition, but the selfsame
power
That set the fearful engine to destroy His wretched offspring (as the Rabbis
tell),

And hid its yawning jaws and treacherous springs
In such a show of innocent sweet flowers
It lured the sinless angels and they fell?
Ah! He who prayed the prayer of all mankind
Summed in those few brief words the mightiest plea
For erring souls before the courts of heaven, —
Save us from being tempted, — lest we fall!

If we are only as the potter's clay
Made to be fashioned as the artist wills,
And broken into shards if we offend
The eye of Him who made us, it is well;
Such love as the insensate lump of clay
That spins upon the swift-revolving wheel
Bears to the hand that shapes its growing form, —
Such love, no more, will be our hearts' return
To the great Master-workman for his care, —
Or would be, save that this, our breathing clay,
Is intertwined with fine innumerable threads
That make it conscious in its framer's
hand;
And this He must remember who has filled
These vessels with the deadly draught
of life, —
Life, that means death to all it claims.
Our love
Must kindle in the ray that streams
from heaven,
A faint reflection of the light divine;
The sun must warm the earth before the rose
Can show her inmost heart-leaves to the sun.

He yields some fraction of the Maker's right
 Who gives the quivering nerve its sense of pain ;
 Is there not something in the pleading
 eye
 Of the poor brute that suffers, which ar-raigns
 The law that bids it suffer ? Has it not A claim for some remembrance in the book
 That fills its pages with the idle words Spoken of men ? Or is it only clay, Bleeding and aching in the potter's hand, Yet all his own to treat it as he will
 And when he will to cast it at his feet,
 Shattered, dishonored, lost forevermore ?
 My dog loves me, but could he look beyond
 His earthly master, would his love extend
 To Him who — Hush ! I will not doubt that He Is better than our fears, and will not wrong
 The least, the meanest of created things !
 He would not trust me with the smallest orb
 That circles through the sky ; he would not give
 A meteor to my guidance ; would not leave
 The coloring of a cloudlet to my hand ;
 He locks my beating heart beneath its bars
 And keeps the key himself ; he measures out
 The draughts of vital breath that warm my blood,
 Winds up the springs of instinct which uncoil,
 Each in its season ; ties me to my home,
 My race, my time, my nation, and my creed

So closely that if I but slip my wrist
 Out of the band that cuts it to the bone,
 Men say, " He hath a devil " ; he has lent
 All that I hold in trust, as unto one
 By reason of his weakness and his years
 Not fit to hold the smallest shred in fee
 Of those most common things he calls his own —
 And yet — my Rabbi tells me — he has left
 The care of that to which a million
 worlds
 Filled with unconscious life were less than naught,
 Has left that mighty universe, the Soul,
 To the weak guidance of our baby hands, Let the foul fiends have access at their
 will,
 Taking the shape of angels, to our hearts, —
 Our hearts already poisoned through and through
 With the fierce virus of ancestral sin ;
 Turned us adrift with our immortal
 charge,
 To wreck ourselves in gulfs of endless woe.
 If what my Rabbi tells me is the truth
 Why did the choir of angels sing for joy ?
 Heaven must be compassed in a narrow space,
 And offer more than room enough for all That pass its portals ; but the underworld,
 The godless realm, the place where demons forge
 Their fiery darts and adamant chains, Must swarm with ghosts that for a little while
 Had worn the garb of flesh, and being heirs
 Of all the dulness of their stolid sires,
 And all the erring instincts of their tribe,
 Nature's own teaching, rudiments of
 " sin,"

Fell headlong in the snare that could not fail

To trap the wretched creatures shaped of clay

And cursed with sense enough to lose their souls !

Brother, thy heart is troubled at my
word ;

Sister, I see the cloud is on thy brow.

He will not blame me, He who sends not
peace,

But sends a sword, and bids us strike
again

At Error's gilded crest, where in the van Of earth's great army, mingling with the best

And bravest of its leaders, shouting loud
The battle-cries that yesterday have led

The host of Truth to victory, but to-day Are watchwords of the laggard and the slave,

He leads his dazzled cohorts. God has made

This world a strife of atoms and of spheres ;

With every breath I sigh myself away
And take my tribute from the wandering wind

To fan the flame of life's consuming fire ;
So, while my thought has life, it needs must burn,

And burning, set the stubble-fields ablaze,

Where all the harvest long ago was reaped

And safely garnered in the ancient barns, But still the gleaners, groping for their food,

Go blindly feeling through the closeshorn straw,

While the young reapers flash their glittering steel

Where later suns have ripened nobler grain !

X.

TRUTHS.

THE time is racked with birth-pangs ;
every hour

Brings forth some gasping truth, and truth new-born

Looks a misshapen and untimely growth,

The terror of the household and its
shame,

A monster coiling in its nurse's lap That some would strangle, some would only starve ;

But still it breathes, and passed from hand to hand,

And suckled at a hundred half-clad breasts,

Comes slowly to its stature and its form, Calms the rough ridges of its dragon-
scales,

Changes to shining locks its snaky
hair,

And moves transfigured into angel guise, Welcomed by all that cursed its hour of
birth,

And folded in the same encircling arms
That cast it like a serpent from their hold !

If thou wouldst live in honor, die in peace,

Have the fine words the marble-workers
learn

To carve so well, upon thy funeral-stone,
And earn a fair obituary, dressed

In all the many-colored robes of praise,
Be deafer than the adder to the cry
Of that same foundling truth, until it grows

To seemly favor, and at length has won The smiles of hard-mouthed men and light-lipped dames ;

Then snatch it from its meagre nurse's
breast,

Fold it in silk and give it food from
gold ;
So shalt thou share its glory when at
last
It drops its mortal vesture, and revealed
In all the splendor of its heavenly form, Spreads on the startled air its mighty
wings !

Alas ! how much that seemed immortal truth
That heroes fought for, martyrs died to save,
Reveals its earth-born lineage, growing
old
And limping in its march, its wings unplumed,
Its heavenly semblance faded like a
dream !

Here in this painted casket, just un-
sealed,
Lies what was once a breathing shape like thine,
Once loved as thou art loved ; there beamed the eyes
That looked on Memphis in its hour of pride,
That saw the walls of hundred-gated Thebes,
And all the mirrored glories of the Nile.
See how they toiled that all-consuming
time Might leave the frame immortal in its tomb ;
Filled it with fragrant balms and odor-ous gums
That still diffuse their sweetness through
the air,
And wound and wound with patient fold on fold
The flaxen bands thy hand has rudely
torn !
Perchance thou yet canst see the faded stain
Of the sad mourner's tear.

XI.

IDOLS.

BUT what is this ?

The sacred beetle, bound upon the breast
Of the blind heathen ! Snatch the curious prize,
Give it a place among thy treasured spoils
Fossil and relic, — corals, encrinites,
The fly in amber and the fish in stone,
The twisted circlet of Etruscan gold,
Medal, intaglio, poniard, poison-ring, — Place for the Memphian beetle with thine hoard !

Ah ! longer than thy creed has blest
the world

This toy, thus ravished from thy brother's breast,
Was to the heart of Mizraim as divine,
As holy, as the symbol that we lay
On the still bosom of our white-robed
dead,
And raise above their dust that all may
know
Here sleeps an heir of glory. Loving friends,
With tears of trembling faith and choking sobs,
And prayers to those who judge of mortal deeds,
Wrapped this poor image in the cerement's fold
That Isis and Osiris, friends of man, Might know their own and claim the ransomed soul.

An idol ? Man was born to worship such !

An idol is an image of his thought ;
Sometimes he carves it out of gleaming
stone,
And sometimes moulds it out of glittering gold,

Or rounds it in a mighty frescoed dome,
Or lifts it heavenward in a lofty spire,
Or shapes it in a cunning frame of words,
Or pays his priest to make it day by day;
For sense must have its god as well as
soul;

A new-born Dian calls for silver shrines,
And Egypt's holiest symbol is our own,
The sign we worship as did they of old
When Isis and Osiris ruled the world.

Let us be true to our most subtle selves,

We long to have our idols like the rest.
Think! when the men of Israel had their God

Encamped among them, talking with their chief,

Leading them in the pillar of the cloud
And watching o'er them in the shaft of
fire,

They still must have an image; still they longed

For somewhat of substantial, solid form Whereon to hang their garlands, and to fix

Their wandering thoughts and gain a stronger hold

For their uncertain faith, not yet assured If those same meteors of the day and night

Were not mere exhalations of the soil.

Are we less earthly than the chosen race?

Are we more neighbors of the living God Than they who gathered manna every morn,

Reaping where none had sown, and heard the voice

Of him who met the Highest in the mount,

And brought them tables, graven with His hand?

Yet these must have their idol, brought their gold,

That star-browed Apis might be god
again;

Yea, from their ears the women brake the rings

That lent such splendors to the gypsy
brown

Of sunburnt cheeks, — what more could woman do

To show her pious zeal? They went astray,

But nature led them as it leads us all.

We too, who mock at Israel's golden calf

And scoff at Egypt's sacred scarabee, Would have our amulets to clasp and kiss,

And flood with rapturous tears, and bear with us

To be our dear companions in the dust;
Such magic works an image in our souls!

Man is an embryo; see at twenty years His bones, the columns that uphold his frame

Not yet cemented, shaft and capital, Mere fragments of the temple incomplete.

At twoscore, threescore, is he then full grown?

Nay, still a child, and as the little maids Dress and undress their puppets, so he tries

To dress a lifeless creed, as if it lived,
And change its raiment when the world cries shame!

We smile to see our little ones at play
So grave, so thoughtful, with maternal care

Nursing the wisps of rags they call their babes; —

Does He not smile who sees us with the toys

We call by sacred names, and idly feign
To be what we have called them? He is still

The Father of this helpless nursery-
brood,
Whose second childhood joins so close its first,
That in the crowding, hurrying years between
We scarce have trained our senses to their task
Before the gathering mist has dimmed our eyes,
And with our hollowed palm we help our ear,
And trace with trembling hand our wrinkled names,
And then begin to tell our stories o'er,
And see — not hear — the whispering lips that say,
“You know — ? Your father knew him. — This is he,
Tottering and leaning on the hireling's
arm,” —
And so, at length, disrobed of all that clad
The simple life we share with weed and worm,
Go to our cradles, naked as we came.

XII.

LOVE.

WHAT if a soul redeemed, a spirit that loved While yet on earth and was beloved in turn,
And still remembered every look and
tone
Of that dear earthly sister who was left
Among the unwise virgins at the gate, — Itself admitted with the bridegroom's train, —
What if this spirit redeemed, amid the host
Of chanting angels, in some transient hull

Of the eternal anthem, heard the cry
Of its lost darling, whom in evil hour
Some wilder pulse of nature led astray
And left an outcast in a world of fire, Condemned to be the sport of cruel fiends,
Sleepless, un pitying, masters of the skill
To wring the maddest ecstasies of pain From worn-out souls that only ask to die, —
Would it not long to leave the bliss of Heaven, —
Bearing a little water in its hand To moisten those poor lips that plead in vain
With Him we call our Father? Or is all
So changed in such as taste celestial joy They hear unmoved the endless wail of
woe;
The daughter in the same dear tones that hushed
Her cradled slumbers; she who once had held
A babe upon her bosom from its voice Hoarse with its cry of anguish, yet the same?

No! not in ages when the Dreadful Bird
Stamped his huge footprints, and the Fearful Beast
Strode with the flesh about those fossil bones
We build to mimic life with pygmy
hands, —
Not in those earliest days when men ran wild
And gashed each other with their knives of stone,
When their low foreheads bulged in ridgy brows
And their flat hands were callous in the palm
With walking in the fashion of their sires,

Grope as they might to find a cruel god
To work their will on such as human
wrath

Had wrought its worst to torture, and had left

With rage unsated, white and stark and cold,

Could hate have shaped a demon more malign

Than him the dead men mummied in their creed

And taught their trembling children to adore!

Made in his image! Sweet and gracious souls

Dear to my heart by nature's fondest names,

Is not your memory still the precious mould

That lends its form to Him who hears my prayer?

Thus only I behold him, like to them, Long-suffering, gentle, ever slow to
wrath,

If wrath it be that only wounds to heal,
Ready to meet the wanderer ere he reach
The door he seeks, forgetful of his sin,
Longing to clasp him in a father's arms,
And seal his pardon with a pitying tear!

Four gospels tell their story to mankind,

And none so full of soft, caressing words That bring the Maid of Bethlehem and her Babe

Before our tear-dimmed eyes, as his who learned

In the meek service of his gracious art
The tones which like the medicinal balms
That calm the sufferer's anguish, soothe our souls.

— O that the loving woman, she who sat
So long a listener at her Master's feet,
Had left us Mary's Gospel, — all she heard

Too sweet, too subtle for the ear of man!
Mark how the tender-hearted mothers
read

The messages of love between the lines
Of the same page that loads the bitter
tongue

Of him who deals in terror as his trade With threatening words of wrath that scorch like flame!

They tell of angels whispering round the bed

Of the sweet infant smiling in its dream,
Of lambs enfolded in the Shepherd's arms,

Of Him who blessed the children; of the land

Where crystal rivers feed unfading
flowers,

Of cities golden-paved with streets of pearl,

Of the white robes the winged creatures
wear,

The crowns and harps from whose melodious strings

One long, sweet anthem flows forever-
more!

— We too had human mothers, even as Thou,

Whom we have learned to worship as remote

From mortal kindred, wast a cradled babe.

The milk of woman filled our branching
veins,

She lulled us with her tender nursery-
song,

And folded round us her untiring arms,
While the first unremembered twilight
year

Shaped us to conscious being; still we feel

Her pulses in our own, — too faintly
feel;

Would that the heart of woman warmed our creeds!

“ She who sat
So long a listener at her Master's feet.”

Not from the sad-eyed hermit's lonely cell,
Not from the conclave where the holy
men
Glare on each other, as with angry eyes
They battle for God's glory and their
own,
Till, sick of wordy strife, a show of
hands
Fixes the faith of ages yet unborn, — Ah, not from these the listening soul can hear
The Father's voice that speaks itself
divine!
Love must be still our Master; till we learn
What he can teach us of a woman's
heart,
We know not His, whose love embraces
all.

EPILOGUE TO THE BREAKFAST-TABLE SERIES.

AUTOCRAT — PROFESSOR — POET.

AT A BOOKSTORE.

Anno Domini 1972.

A CRAZY bookcase, placed before
A low-price dealer's open door;
Therein arrayed in broken rows
A ragged crew of rhyme and prose,
The homeless vagrants, waifs and strays
Whose low estate this line betrays (Set forth the lesser birds to lime)
YOUR CHOICE AMONG THESE BOOKS, 1 DIME!

Ho! dealer; for its motto's sake
This scarecrow from the shelf I take;
Three starveling volumes bound in one,
Its covers warping in the sun.
Methinks it hath a musty smell,
I like its flavor none too well,
But Yorick's brain was far from dull,

Though Hamlet pah! 'd, and dropped his skull.

Why, here comes rain! The sky grows dark, —

Was that the roll of thunder? Hark!
The shop affords a safe retreat,
A chair extends its welcome seat,
The tradesman has a civil look (I've paid, impromptu, for my book),
The clouds portend a sudden shower, —
I'll read my purchase for an hour.

* * *

What have I rescued from the shelf?
A Boswell, writing out himself!
For though he changes dress and name,
The man beneath is still the same,
Laughing or sad, by fits and starts,
One actor in a dozen parts,
And whatso'er the mask may be,
The voice assures us, This is he.

I say not this to cry him down;
I find my Shakespeare in his clown,
His rogues the selfsame parent own;
Nay! Satan talks in Milton's tone!
Where'er the ocean inlet strays,
The salt sea wave its source betrays,
Where'er the queen of summer blows,
She tells the zephyr, "I'm in the rose!"

And his is not the playwright's page;
His table does not ape the stage;
What matter if the figures seen
Are only shadows on a screen,
He finds in them his lurking thought,
And on their lips the words he sought,
Like one who sits before the keys
And plays a tune himself to please.

And was he noted in his day?
Read, flattered, honored? Who shall say?
Poor wreck of time the wave has cast
To find a peaceful shore at last,

Once glorying in thy gilded name
 And freighted deep with hopes of fame,
 Thy leaf is moistened with a tear,
 The first for many a long, long year !

For be it more or less of art
 That veils the lowliest human heart Where passion throbs, where friendship glows,

Where pity's tender tribute flows,
 Where love has lit its fragrant fire,
 And sorrow quenched its vain desire,
 For me the altar is divine,
 Its flame, its ashes, — all are mine !

And thou, my brother, as I look
 And see thee pictured in thy book,

Thy years on every page confessed
 In shadows lengthening from the west,
 Thy glance that wanders, as it sought
 Some freshly opening flower of thought,
 Thy hopeful nature, light and free,
 I start to find myself in thee !

* * *

Come, vagrant, outcast, wretch forlorn

In leather jerkin stained and torn,
 Whose talk has filled my idle hour
 And made me half forget the shower,
 I 'll do at least as much for you,
 Your coat I 'll patch, your gilt renew,
 Read you — perhaps — some other time.
 Not bad, my bargain ! Price one dime !

"Come, vagrant, outcast, wretch forlorn."

POEMS OF THE CLASS OF '29.

POEMS OF THE CLASS OF '29.

1851 - 1877.

BILL AND JOE.

COME, dear old comrade, you and I Will steal an hour from days gone by,
The shining days when life was new,
And all was bright with morning dew,
The lusty days of long ago,
When you were Bill and I was Joe.

Your name may flaunt a titled trail
Proud as a cockerel's rainbow tail,
And mine as brief appendix wear
As Tam O'Shanter's luckless mare ;
To-day, old friend, remember still
That I am Joe and you are Bill.

You've won the great world's envied
prize,
And grand you look in people's eyes,
With H O N. and L L D. .
In big brave letters, fair to see, —
Your fist, old fellow ! off they go ! —
How are you, Bill ? How are you, Joe ?

You've worn the judge's ermined robe ; You've taught your name to half the globe ;
You've sung mankind a deathless strain ;
You've made the dead past live again :
The world may call you what it will,
But you and I are Joe and Bill.

The chaffing young folks stare and say
"See those old buffers, bent and gray, —

They talk like fellows in their teens !
Mad, poor old boys ! That 's what it means," —

And shake their heads ; they little know
The throbbing hearts of Bill and Joe ! —

How Bill forgets his hour of pride,
While Joe sits smiling at his side ;
How Joe, in spite of time's disguise,
Finds the old schoolmate in his eyes, —
Those calm, stern eyes that melt and fill
As Joe looks fondly up at Bill.

Ah, pensive scholar, what is fame ?
A fitful tongue of leaping flame ;
A giddy whirlwind's fickle gust,
That lifts a pinch of mortal dust ;
A few swift years, and who can show Which dust was Bill and which was Joe ?

The weary idol takes his stand,
Holds out his bruised and aching hand,
While gaping thousands come and go, —
How vain it seems, this empty show !
Till all at once his pulses thrill ; —
'T is poor old Joe's "God bless you, Bill !"

And shall we breathe in happier spheres
The names that pleased our mortal ears ;
In some sweet lull of harp and song
For earth-born spirits none too long,

Just whispering of the world below
Where this was Bill, and that was Joe?

No matter ; while our home is here
No sounding name is half so dear ;
When fades at length our lingering day,
Who cares what pompous tombstones
say?

Read on the hearts that love us still,
Hic jacet Joe. Hic jacet Bill.

1851.

A SONG OF "TWENTY-NINE."

THE summer dawn is breaking
On Auburn's tangled bowers,
The golden light is waking
On Harvard's ancient towers ;
The sun is in the sky
That must see us do or die,
Ere it shine on the line
Of the CLASS OF '29.

At last the day is ended,
The tutor screws no more,
By doubt and fear attended
Each hovers round the door,
Till the good old Præses cries,
While the tears stand in his eyes,
"You have passed, and are classed With the BOYS OF '29."

Not long are they in making
The college halls their own,
Instead of standing shaking,
Too bashful to be known ;
But they kick the Seniors' shins
Ere the second week begins,
When they stray in the way
Of the BOYS OF '29.

If a jolly set is trolling
The last Der Freischutz airs,
Or a "cannon bullet" rolling Comes bouncing down the stairs,

The tutors looking out,
Sigh, "Alas ! there is no doubt,
'T is the noise of the Boys
Of the CLASS OF '29."

Four happy years together,
By storm and sunshine tried,
In changing wind and weather,
They rough it side by side,
Till they hear their Mother cry,
"You are fledged, and you must fly,"
And the bell tolls the knell
Of the days of '29.

Since then in peace or trouble,
Full many a year has rolled,
And life has counted double
The days that then we told ;
Yet we 'll end as we 've begun,
For though scattered, we are one,
While each year sees us here,
Round the board of '29.

Though fate may throw between us
The mountains or the sea,
No time shall ever wean us,
No distance set us free ;
But around the yearly board,
When the flaming pledge is poured,
It shall claim every name
On the roll of '29.

To yonder peaceful ocean
That glows with sunset fires,
Shall reach the warm emotion
This welcome day inspires,
Beyond the ridges cold
Where a brother toils for gold,
Till it shine through the mine
Round the BOY OF '29.

If one whom fate has broken
Shall lift a moistened eye,
We 'll say, before he 's spoken —
"Old Classmate, don't you cry !

Here, take the purse I hold,
There's a tear upon the gold —
It was mine — it is thine — A'n't we Boys of '29?"

As nearer still and nearer
The fatal stars appear,
The living shall be dearer
With each encircling year, Till a few old men shall say
"We remember 't is the day —
Let it pass with a glass
For the CLASS OF '29."

As one by one is falling
Beneath the leaves or snows,
Each memory still recalling
The broken ring shall close,
Till the nightwinds softly pass
O'er the green and growing grass,
Where it waves on the graves
Of the Boys of '29!

1852.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

WHERE, O where are the visions of morning,
Fresh as the dews of our prime?
Gone, like tenants that quit without warning,
Down the back entry of time.

Where, O where are life's lilies and roses,
Nursed in the golden dawn's smile?
Dead as the bulrushes round little Moses,
On the old banks of the Nile.

Where are the Marys, and Anns, and Elizas,
Loving and lovely of yore?
Look in the columns of old Advertisers, —
Married and dead by the score.

Where the gray colts and the ten-year-old fillies,
Saturday's triumph and joy?
Gone, like our friend ποδας ωκος Achilles, Homer's ferocious old boy.

Die-away dreams of ecstatic emotion,
Hopes like young eagles at play,
Vows of unheard-of and endless devotion,
How ye have faded away!

Yet, though the ebbing of Time's mighty river
Leave our young blossoms to die, Let him roll smooth in his current forever,
Till the last pebble is dry.

1853.

AN IMPROMPTU.

Not premeditated.

THE clock has struck noon; ere it thrice tell the hours
We shall meet round the table that blushes with flowers,
And I shall blush deeper with shame-driven blood
That I came to the banquet and brought not a bud.

Who cares that his verse is a beggar in art
If you see through its rags the full throb of his heart?
Who asks if his comrade is battered and tanned
When he feels his warm soul in the clasp of his hand?

No! be it an epic, or be it a line,
The Boys will all love it because it is
mine;
I sung their last song on the morn of the day

That tore from their lives the last blossom of May.

It is not the sunset that glows in the wine,

But the smile that beams over it, makes it divine ;

I scatter these drops, and behold, as they fall,

The day-star of memory shines through them all !

And these are the last ; they are drops that I stole

From a wine-press that crushes the life from the soul,

But they ran through my heart and they sprang to my brain

Till our twentieth sweet summer was smiling again !

1854.

THE OLD MAN DREAMS.

O for one hour of youthful joy !
Give back my twentieth spring !
I'd rather laugh, a bright-haired boy,
Than reign, a gray-beard king.

Off with the spoils of wrinkled age !
Away with Learning's crown !
Tear out life's Wisdom-written page,
And dash its trophies down !

One moment let my life-blood stream
From boyhood's fount of flame !
Give me one giddy, reeling dream
Of life all love and fame !

My listening angel heard the prayer,
And, calmly smiling, said,
" If I but touch thy silvered hair
My hasty wish hath sped.

" But is there nothing in thy track,
To bid thee fondly stay,
While the swift seasons hurry back
To find the wished-for day ? "

" Ah, truest soul of womankind !
Without thee what were life ?
One bliss I cannot leave behind :
I'll take — my — precious — wife ! "

— The angel took a sapphire pen
And wrote in rainbow dew,
*The man would be a boy again,
And be a husband too !*

" And is there nothing yet unsaid,
Before the change appears ?
Remember, all their gifts have fled
With those dissolving years. "

" Why yes " ; for memory would recall My fond paternal joys ;
" I could not bear to leave them all — I'll take — my — girl — and — boys. "

The smiling angel dropped his pen, —
" Why this will never do ;
The man would be a boy again,
And be a father too ! "

1855.

REMEMBER — FORGET.

AND what shall be the song to-night,
If song there needs must be ?
If every year that brings us here
Must steal an hour from me ?
Say, shall it ring a merry peal,
Or heave a mourning sigh
O'er shadows cast, by years long past,
On moments flitting by ?

Nay, take the first unbidden line
The idle hour may send,
No studied grace can mend the face
That smiles as friend on friend ;

The balsam oozes from the pine,
 The sweetness from the rose,
 And so, unsought, a kindly thought
 Finds language as it flows.

The years rush by in sounding flight,
 I hear their ceaseless wings ;
 Their songs I hear, some far, some near,
 And thus the burden rings :
 "The morn has fled, the noon has past,
 The sun will soon be set,
 The twilight fade to midnight shade ;
 Remember — and Forget !"

Remember all that time has brought —
 The starry hope on high,
 The strength attained, the courage gained,
 The love that cannot die.
 Forget the bitter, brooding thought, —
 The word too harshly said,
 The living blame love hates to name,
 The frailties of the dead !

We have been younger, so they say,
 But let the seasons roll,
 He doth not lack an almanac,
 Whose youth is in his soul.
 The snows may clog life's iron track,
 But does the axle tire, While bearing swift through bank and drift
 The engine's heart of fire ?

I lift a goblet in my hand ;
 If good old wine it hold,
 An ancient skin to keep it in,
 Is just the thing, we 're told.
 We 're grayer than the dusty flask, —
 We 're older than our wine ;
 Our corks reveal the "white top" seal,
 The stamp of '29.

Ah, Boys ! we clustered in the dawn,
 To sever in the dark ;
 A merry crew, with loud halloo,
 We climbed our painted bark ;

We sailed her through the four years'
 cruise,
 We 'll sail her to the last,
 Our dear old flag, though but a rag,
 Still flying on her mast.

So gliding on, each winter's gale
 Shall pipe us all on deck,
 Till, faint and few, the gathering crew
 Creep o'er the parting wreck,
 Her sails and streamers spread aloft
 To fortune's rain or shine,
 Till storm or sun shall all be one,
 And down goes TWENTY-NINE !

1856.

OUR INDIAN SUMMER.

You 'll believe me, dear boys, 't is a pleasure to rise,
 With a welcome like this in your darling old eyes ;
 To meet the same smiles and to hear the same tone,
 Which have greeted me oft in the years that have flown.

Were I gray as the grayest old rat in the wall,
 My locks would turn brown at the sight of you all ;
 If my heart were as dry as the shell on
 the sand,
 It would fill like the goblet I hold in my hand.

There are noontides of autumn when summer returns,
 Though the leaves are all garnered and sealed in their urns,
 And the bird on his perch that was silent so long,
 Believes the sweet sunshine and breaks
 into song.

We have caged the young birds of our beautiful June;
 Their plumes are still bright and their voices in tune;
 One moment of sunshine from faces like these
 And they sing as they sung in the green-growing trees.

The voices of morning! how sweet is their thrill
 When the shadows have turned, and the evening grows still!
 The text of our lives may get wiser with
 age,
 But the print was so fair on its twentieth page!

Look off from your goblet and up from your plate;
 Come, take the last journal, and glance at its date:
 Then think what we fellows should say and should do,
 If the 6 were a 9 and the 5 were a 2.

Ah, no! for the shapes that would meet with us here,
 From the far land of shadows, are ever too dear!
 Though youth flung around us its pride and its charms,
 We should see but the comrades we clasped in our arms.

A health to our future — a sigh for our
 past,
 We love, we remember, we hope to the
 last;
 And for all the base lies that the almanacs hold,
 While we 've youth in our hearts we can never grow old!

1858.

MARE RUBRUM.

FLASH out a stream of blood-red wine,
 For I would drink to other days,
 And brighter shall their memory shine,
 Seen flaming through its crimson
 blaze!

The roses die, the summers fade,
 But every ghost of boyhood's dream
 By nature's magic power is laid
 To sleep beneath this blood-red
 stream!

It filled the purple grapes that lay,
 And drank the splendors of the sun,
 Where the long summer's cloudless day
 Is mirrored in the broad Garonne;
 It pictures still the bacchant shapes
 That saw their hoarded sunlight
 shed, —

The maidens dancing on the grapes, —
 Their milk-white ankles splashed with red.

Beneath these waves of crimson lie,
 In rosy fetters prisoned fast,
 Those fitting shapes that never die, —
 The swift-winged visions of the past.
 Kiss but the crystal's mystic rim
 Each shadow rends its flowery chain, Springs in a bubble from its brim
 And walks the chambers of the brain.

Poor beauty! Time and fortune's wrong
 No shape nor feature may withstand;
 Thy wrecks are scattered all along,
 Like emptied sea-shells on the sand;
 Yet, sprinkled with this blushing rain,
 The dust restores each blooming girl,
 As if the sea-shells moved again
 Their glistening lips of pink and pearl.

Here lies the home of school-boy life,
 With creaking stair and wind-swept
 hall,

And, scarred by many a truant knife,
 Our old initials on the wall;
 Here rest, their keen vibrations mute,
 The shout of voices known so well,
 The ringing laugh, the wailing flute,
 The chiding of the sharp-tongued bell.

Here, clad in burning robes, are laid Life's blossomed joys, untimely shed,
 And here those cherished forms have strayed

We miss awhile, and call them dead.
 What wizard fills the wondrous glass?
 What soil the enchanted clusters grew?

That buried passions wake and pass
 In beaded drops of fiery dew?

Nay! take the cup of blood-red wine, —
 Our hearts can boast a warmer glow,
 Filled from a vintage more divine, Calmed, but not chilled, by winter's
 snow!

To-night the palest wave we sip
 Rich as the priceless draught shall be
 That wet the bride of Cana's lip, —
 The wedding wine of Galilee!

1859.

THE BOYS.

HAS there any old fellow got mixed with the boys?
 If there has, take him out, without making a noise.
 Hang the Almanac's cheat and the Catalogue's spite!
 Old time is a liar! We're twenty tonight!

We're twenty! We're twenty! Who says we are more?
 He's tipsy, — young jackanapes! — show him the door!

"Gray temples at twenty?" — Yes!
white if we please;
 Where the snow-flakes fall thickest there's nothing can freeze!

Was it snowing I spoke of? Excuse the mistake!

Look close, — you will see not a sign of a flake!

We want some new garlands for those we have shed, —

And these are white roses in place of the red.

We've a trick, we young fellows, you may have been told,
 Of talking (in public) as if we were
 old: —

That boy we call "Doctor," and this we call "Judge";

It's a neat little fiction, — of course it's all fudge.

That fellow's the "Speaker," — the one on the right;

"Mr. Mayor," my young one, how are you to-night?

That's our "Member of Congress," we say when we chaff;

There's the "Reverend" What's his name? — don't make me laugh.

That boy with the grave mathematical look

Made believe he had written a wonderful book,

And the ROYAL SOCIETY thought it was true!

So they chose him right in; a good joke
 it was, too!

There's a boy, we pretend, with a three-decker brain,

That could harness a team with a logical
 chain;

When he spoke for our manhood in syl-labled fire,
We called him "The Justice," but now
he's "The Squire."

And there's a nice youngster of excellent pith, —
Fate tried to conceal him by naming him Smith ;
But he shouted a song for the brave and the free, —
Just read on his medal, "My country,"
"of thee !"

You hear that boy laughing ? — You think he's all fun ;
But the angels laugh, too, at the good
he has done ;
The children laugh loud as they troop to his call,
And the poor man that knows him laughs loudest of all !

Yes, we're boys, — always playing with tongue or with pen, —
And I sometimes have asked, — Shall we ever be men ?
Shall we always be youthful, and laughing, and gay,
Till the last dear companion drops smiling away ?

Then here's to our boyhood, its gold and its gray !
The stars of its winter, the dews of its
May !
And when we have done with our life-lasting toys,
Dear Father, take care of thy children,
THE BOYS !

1860.

LINES.

I'M ashamed, — that's the fact, — it's a pitiful case, —

Won't any kind classmate get up in my place ?

Just remember how often I've risen before, —

I blush as I straighten my legs on the floor !

There are stories, once pleasing, too many times told, —

There are beauties once charming, too fearfully old, —

There are voices we've heard till we know them so well,

Though they talked for an hour they'd have nothing to tell.

Yet, Classmates ! Friends ! Brothers !
dear blessed old boys !

Made one by a lifetime of sorrows and joys,

What lips have such sounds as the poorest of these,

Though honeyed, like Plato's, by musical bees ?

What voice is so sweet and what greeting so dear

As the simple, warm welcome that waits for us here ?

The love of our boyhood still breathes in its tone,

And our hearts throb the answer, "He's one of our own !"

Nay ! count not our numbers ; some sixty we know,

But these are above, and those under the
snow ;

And thoughts are still mingled wherever we meet

For those we remember with those that we greet.

We have rolled on life's journey, — how fast and how far !

One round of humanity's many-wheeled
car,

But up-hill and down-hill, through rattle and rih,
Old, true Twenty-niners ! we 've stuck to our hub !

While a brain lives to think, or a bosom to feel,
We will cling to it still like the spokes of a wheel !
And age, as it chills us, shall fasten the tire
That youth fitted round in his circle of fire !

1861.

(JANUARY 3D.)

A VOICE OF THE LOYAL NORTH.

WE sing "Our Country's" song to-night
With saddened voice and eye ;
Her banner droops in clouded light
Beneath the wintry sky.
We 'll pledge her once in golden wine
Before her stars have set :
Though dim one reddening orb may shine,
We have a Country yet.

'T were vain to sigh o'er errors past,
The fault of sires or sons ;
Our soldier heard the threatening blast,
And spiked his useless guns ;
He saw the star-wreathed ensign fall,
By mad invaders torn ;
But saw it from the bastioned wall
That laughed their rage to scorn !

What though their angry cry is flung Across the howling wave, —
They smite the air with idle tongue
The gathering storm who brave ;
Enough of speech ! the trumpet rings ;
Be silent, patient, calm, —
God help them if the tempest swings
The pine against the palm !

Our toilsome years have made us tame ;
Our strength has slept unfelt ;
The furnace-fire is slow to flame
That bids our ploughshares melt ;
'T is hard to lose the bread they win
In spite of Nature's frowns, —
To drop the iron threads we spin
That weave our web of towns,

To see the rusting turbines stand
Before the emptied flumes,
To fold the arms that flood the land
With rivers from their looms, —
But harder still for those who learn
The truth forgot so long ;
When once their slumbering passions burn,
The peaceful are the strong !

The Lord have mercy on the weak,
And calm their frenzied ire,
And save our brothers ere they shriek,
"We played with Northern fire !"
The eagle hold his mountain height, —
The tiger pace his den !
Give all their country, each his right !
God keep us all ! Amen !

THE friends that are, and friends that were,
What shallow waves divide !
I miss the form for many a year
Still seated at my side.
I miss him, yet I feel him still Amidst our faithful band,
As if not death itself could chill
The warmth of friendship's hand.
His story other lips may tell, —
For me the veil is drawn ;
I only know he loved me well,
He loved me — and is gone !

VOYAGE OF THE GOOD SHIP UNION.

'T IS midnight : through my troubled
dream

Loud wails the tempest's cry ;
Before the gale, with tattered sail,
A ship goes plunging by.

What name ? Where 'bound ? — The rocks around

Repeat the loud halloo.

— The good ship Union, Southward
bound :

God help her and her crew !

And is the old flag flying still
That o'er your fathers flew,
With bands of white and rosy light,
And field of starry blue ?
— Ay ! look aloft ! its folds full oft
Have braved the roaring blast,
And still shall fly when from the sky
This black typhoon has past !

Speak, pilot of the storm-tost bark !
May I thy peril share ?

— O landsman, these are fearful seas
The brave alone may dare !

— Nay, ruler of the rebel deep,
What matters wind or wave ?

The rocks that wreck your reeling deck
Will leave me naught to save !

O landsman, art thou false or true ?
What sign hast thou to show ?

— The crimson stains from loyal veins
That hold my heart-blood's flow !

— Enough ! what more shall honor
claim ?

I know the sacred sign ;
Above thy head our flag shall spread,
Our ocean path be thine !

The bark sails on ; the Pilgrim's Cape
Lies low along her lee,

Whose headland crooks its anchor-flukes
To lock the shore and sea.

No treason here ! it cost too dear
To win this barren realm !

And true and free the hands must be
That hold the whaler's helm !

Still on ! Manhattan's narrowing bay
No Rebel cruiser scars ;

Her waters feel no pirate's keel
That flaunts the fallen stars !

— But watch the light on yonder height, —

Ay, pilot, have a care !
Some lingering cloud in mist may shroud
The capes of Delaware !

Say, pilot, what this fort may be,
Whose sentinels look down
From moated walls that show the sea
Their deep embrasures' frown ?
The Rebel host claims all the coast,
But these are friends, we know,
Whose footprints spoil the "sacred soil,"
And this is ? — Fort Monroe !

The breakers roar, — how bears the shore ?

— The traitorous wreckers' hands Have quenched the blaze that poured its rays

Along the Hatteras sands.

— Ha ! say not so ! I see its glow !
Again the shoals display

The beacon light that shines by night,
The Union Stars by day !

The good ship flies to milder skies,
The wave more gently flows,
The softening breeze wafts o'er the seas
The breath of Beaufort's rose.

What fold is this the sweet winds kiss,
Fair-striped and many-starred,
Whose shadow palls these orphaned
walls,

The twins of Beauregard ?

What! heard you not Port Royal's doom?
 How the black war-ships came
 And turned the Beaufort roses' bloom
 To redder wreaths of flame?
 How from Rebellion's broken reed
 We saw his emblem fall,
 As soon his curséd poison-weed
 Shall drop from Sumter's wall?

On! on! Pulaski's iron hail Falls harmless on Tybee!
 The good ship feels the freshening gales,
 She strikes the open sea;
 She rounds the point, she threads the keys
 That guard the Land of Flowers,
 And rides at last where firm and fast
 Her own Gibraltar towers!

The good ship Union's voyage is o'er,
 At anchor safe she swings,
 And loud and clear with cheer on cheer
 Her joyous welcome rings:
 Hurrah! Hurrah! it shakes the wave,
 It thunders on the shore, —
 One flag, one land, one heart, one hand,
 One Nation, evermore!

1863.

"CHOOSE YOU THIS DAY WHOM YE WILL SERVE."

Yes, tyrants, you hate us, and fear while you hate
 The self-ruling, chain-breaking, throne-shaking State!
 The night-birds dread morning, — your instinct is true, —
 The day-star of Freedom brings midnight for you!

Why plead with the deaf for the cause of mankind?
 The owl hoots at noon that the eagle is blind!

We ask not your reasons, — 't were wasting our time, —
 Our life is a menace, our welfare a crime!

We have battles to fight, we have foes to subdue, —
 Time waits not for us, and we wait not
 for you!
 The mower mows on, though the adder may writhe
 And the copper-head coil round the blade of his scythe!

"No sides in this quarrel," your statesmen may urge,
 Of school-house and wages with slave-pen and scourge! —
 No sides in the quarrel! proclaim it as well
 To the angels that fight with the legions of hell!

They kneel in God's temple, the North and the South,
 With blood on each weapon and prayers in each mouth.
 Whose cry shall be answered? Ye Heavens, attend
 The lords of the lash as their voices ascend!

"O Lord, we are shaped in the image of Thee, —
 Smite down the base millions that claim to be free,
 And lend Thy strong arm to the soft-handed race
 Who eat not their bread in the sweat of their face!"

So pleads the proud planter. What echoes are these?
 The bay of his bloodhound is borne on the breeze,
 And, lost in the shriek of his victim's despair,

His voice dies unheard. — Hear the Puritan's prayer !

“ O Lord, that didst smother mankind in Thy flood,

The sun is as sackcloth, the moon is as
blood,

The stars fall to earth as untimely are cast

The figs from the fig-tree that shakes in the blast !

“ All nations, all tribes in whose nostrils is breath,

Stand gazing at Sin as she travails with Death !

Lord, strangle the monster that struggles to birth,

Or mock us no more with Thy ‘ Kingdom on Earth !’

“ If Ammon and Moab must reign in the land

Thou gavest Thine Israel, fresh from Thy hand,

Call Baäl and Ashtaroth out of their graves

To be the new gods for the empire of slaves !”

Whose God will ye serve, O ye rulers of men ?

Will ye build you new shrines in the slave-breeder's den ?

Or bow with the children of light, as they call

On the Judge of the Earth and the Father of All ?

Choose wisely, choose quickly, for time moves apace, —

Each day is an age in the life of our race !

Lord, lead them in love, ere they hasten in fear

From the fast-rising flood that shall girdle the sphere !

F. W. C.

FAST as the rolling seasons bring
The hour of fate to those we love,
Each pearl that leaves the broken string
Is set in Friendship's crown above.
As narrower grows the earthly chain,
The circle widens in the sky ;
These are our treasures that remain,
But those are stars that beam on high.

We miss — O, how we miss ! — his face, —
With trembling accents speak his
name.

Earth cannot fill his shadowed place
From all her rolls of pride and fame ;
Our song has lost the silvery thread
That carolled through his jocund lips ;
Our laugh is mute, our smile is fled,
And all our sunshine in eclipse.

And what and whence the wondrous
charm

That kept his manhood boylike still, —
That life's hard censors could disarm
And lead them captive at his will ?
His heart was shaped of rosier clay, —
His veins were filled with ruddier
fire, —

Time could not chill him, fortune sway,
Nor toil with all its burdens tire.

His speech burst throbbing from its fount

And set our colder thoughts aglow,
As the hot leaping geysers mount
And falling melt the Iceland snow.
Some word, perchance, we counted rash, —
Some phrase our calmness might dis-
claim,

Yet 't was the sunset's lightning's flash,
No angry bolt, but harmless flame.

Man judges all, God knoweth each ;
 We read the rule, He sees the law ;
 How oft his laughing children teach
 The truths his prophets never saw !
 O friend, whose wisdom flowered in mirth,
 Our hearts are sad, our eyes are
 dim ;
 He gave thy smiles to brighten earth, —
 We trust thy joyous soul to Him !

Alas ! — our weakness Heaven forgive !
 We murmur, even while we trust,
 "How long earth's breathing burdens
 live,
 Whose hearts, before they die, are dust !"
 But thou ! — through grief's untimely
 tears
 We ask with half-reproachful sigh —
 "Couldst thou not watch a few brief
 years
 Till Friendship faltered, 'Thou mayst
 die' ?"

Who loved our boyish years so well ?
 Who knew so well their pleasant tales,
 And all those livelier freaks could tell
 Whose oft-told story never fails ?
 In vain we turn our aching eyes, —
 In vain we stretch our eager hands, —
 Cold in his wintry shroud he lies Beneath the dreary drifting sands !

Ah, speak not thus ! He lies not there !
 We see him, hear him as of old !
 He comes ! he claims his wonted
 chair ;
 His beaming face we still behold !
 His voice rings clear in all our songs,
 And loud his mirthful accents rise ;
 To us our brother's life belongs, —
 Dear friends, a classmate never dies !

1864.

THE LAST CHARGE.

Now, men of the North ! will you join in the strife
 For country, for freedom, for honor, for life ?
 The giant grows blind in his fury and spite, —
 One blow on his forehead will settle the fight !
 Flash full in his eyes the blue lightning of steel,
 And stun him with cannon-bolts, peal upon peal !
 Mount, troopers, and follow your game to its lair,
 As the hound tracks the wolf and the beagle the hare !
 Blow, trumpets, your summons, till slug-gards awake !
 Beat, drums, till the roofs of the faint-hearted shake !
 Yet, yet, ere the signet is stamped on the scroll,
 Their names may be traced on the blood-sprinkled roll !
 Trust not the false herald that painted your shield :
 True honor to-day must be sought on the
 field !
 Her scutcheon shows white with a blazon of red, —
 The life-drops of crimson for liberty
 shed !
 The hour is at hand, and the moment draws nigh ;
 The dog-star of treason grows dim in
 the sky ;
 Shine forth from the battle-cloud, light of the morn,

Call back the bright hour when the Nation was born !

The rivers of peace through our valleys shall run,

As the glaciers of tyranny melt in the
sun ;

Smite, smite the proud parricide down from his throne, —

His sceptre once broken, the world is our own !

1865.

OUR OLDEST FRIEND.

I GIVE you the health of the oldest friend

That, short of eternity, earth can lend, —
A friend so faithful and tried and true
That nothing can wean him from me and you.

When first we screeched in the sudden
blaze

Of the daylight's blinding and blasting
rays,

And gulped at the gaseous, groggy air,
This old, old friend stood waiting there.

And when, with a kind of mortal strife,
We had gasped and choked into breathing life,

He watched by the cradle, day and night,
And held our hands till we stood upright.

From gristle and pulp our frames have grown

To stringy muscle and solid bone ;

While we were echanging, he altered not ;

We might forget, but he never forgot.

He came with us to the college class, —
Little cared he for the steward's pass !

All the rest must pay their fee,

But the grim old dead-head entered free.

He stayed with us while we counted o'er Four times each of the seasons four ;
And with every season, from year to year,
The dear name Classmate he made more
dear.

He never leaves us, — he never will,
Till our hands are cold and our hearts are still ;

On birthdays, and Christmas, and New-Year's too,

He always remembers both me and you.

Every year this faithful friend

His little present is sure to send ;

Every year, wheresoe'er we be,

He wants a keepsake from you and me.

How he loves us ! he pats our heads,

And, lo ! they are gleaming with silver
threads ;

And he's always begging one lock of
hair,

Till our shining crowns have nothing to wear.

At length he will tell us, one by one,

“ My child, your labor on earth is done ;

And now you must journey afar to see

My elder brother, — Eternity ! ”

And so, when long, long years have passed,

Some dear old fellow will be the last, —

Never a boy alive but he

Of all our goodly company !

When he lies down, but not till then,

Our kind Class-Angel will drop the pen

That writes in the day-book kept above

Our lifelong record of faith and love.

So here's a health in homely rhyme

To our oldest classmate, Father Time !

May our last survivor live to be

As bald and as wise and as tough as he !

1865.

SHERMAN'S IN SAVANNAH.

A HALF-RHYMED IMPROMPTU.

LIKE the tribes of Israel,
Fed on quails and manna,
Sherman and his glorious band
Journeyed through the rebel land,
Fed from Heaven's all-bounteous hand, Marching on Savannah!

As the moving pillar shone,
Streamed the starry banner
All day long in rosy light,
Flaming splendor all the night,
Till it swooped in eagle flight
Down on doomed Savannah!

Glory be to God on high!
Shout the loud Hosanna!
Treason's wilderness is past,
Canaan's shore is won at last,
Peal a nation's trumpet-blast, —
Sherman's in Savannah!

Soon shall Richmond's tough old hide
Find a tough old tanner!
Soon from every rebel wall
Shall the rag of treason fall,
Till our banner flaps o'er all
As it crowns Savannah!

1866.

MY ANNUAL.

How long will this harp which you once loved to hear Cheat your lips of a smile or your eyes of a tear?
How long stir the echoes it wakened of
old,
While its strings were unbroken, untar-nished its gold?

Dear friends of my boyhood, my words do you wrong;
The heart, the heart only, shall throb in my song;
It reads the kind answer that looks from your eyes, —
“We will bid our old harper play on till he dies.”

Though Youth, the fair angel that looked o'er the strings,
Has lost the bright glory that gleamed on his wings,
Though the freshness of morning has passed from its tone,
It is still the old harp that was always your own.

I claim not its music, — each note it affords
I strike from your heart-strings, that lend me its chords;
I know you will listen and love to the
last,
For it trembles and thrills with the voice of your past.

Ah, brothers! dear brothers! the harp that I hold
No craftsman could string and no artisan mould;
He shaped it, He strung it, who fashioned the lyres
That ring with the hymns of the sera-phim choirs.

Not mine are the visions of beauty it brings,
Not mine the faint fragrance around it that clings;
Those shapes are the phantoms of years that are fled,
Those sweets breathe from roses your summers have shed.

Each hour of the past lends its tribute to this,
Till it blooms like a bower in the Garden
of Bliss;
The thorn and the thistle may grow as they will,
Where Friendship unfolds there is Paradise
still.

The bird wanders careless while summer is green,
The leaf-hidden cradle that rocked him unseen;
When Autumn's rude fingers the woods have undressed,
The boughs may look bare, but they show him his nest.

Too precious these moments! the lustre they fling
Is the light of our year, is the gem of its ring,
So brimming with sunshine, we almost forget
The rays it has lost, and its border of jet.

While round us the many-hued halo is
shed,
How dear are the living, how near are
the dead!
One circle, scarce broken, these waiting
below,
Those walking the shores where the asphodels blow!

Not life shall enlarge it nor death shall divide, —
No brother new-born finds his place at my side;
No titles shall freeze us, no grandeurs infest,
His Honor, His Worship, are boys like the rest.

Some won the world's homage, their names we hold dear, —

But Friendship, not Fame, is the countersign here;
Make room by the conqueror crowned
in the strife
For the comrade that limps from the battle of life!

What tongue talks of battle? Too long we have heard
In sorrow, in anguish, that terrible word;
It reddened the sunshine, it crimsoned
the wave,
It sprinkled our doors with the blood of our brave.

Peace, Peace comes at last, with her garland of white;
Peace broods in all hearts as we gather
to-night;
The blazon of Union spreads full in the
sun;
We echo its words, — We are one! We are one!

1867.

ALL HERE.

It is not what we say or sing,
That keeps our charm so long unbroken,
Though every lightest leaf we bring May touch the heart as friendship's token;
Not what we sing or what we say
Can make us dearer to each other;
We love the singer and his lay,
But love as well the silent brother.

Yet bring whate'er your garden grows, Thrice welcome to our smiles and praises;
Thanks for the myrtle and the rose,
Thanks for the marigolds and daisies;
One flower ere long we all shall claim,
Alas! unloved of Amarylhis —

Nature's last blossom — need I name
The wreath of threescore's silver lilies ?

How many, brothers, meet to-night
Around our boyhood's covered embers?
Go read the treasured names aright
The old triennial list remembers :
Though twenty wear the starry sign
That tells a life has broke its tether,
The fifty-eight of 'twenty-nine —
God bless THE BOYS! — are all together !

These come with joyous look and word,
With friendly grasp and cheerful greeting, —
Those smile unseen, and move unheard,
The angel guests of every meeting ;
They cast no shadow in the flame
That flushes from the gilded lustre,
But count us — we are still the same ;
One earthly band, one heavenly cluster !

Love dies not when he bows his head
To pass beyond the narrow portals, —
The light these glowing moments shed
Wakes from their sleep our lost immortals ;
They come as in their joyous prime,
Before their morning days were numbered, —
Death stays the envious hand of Time, —
The eyes have not grown dim that slumbered !

The paths that loving souls have trod Arch o'er the dust where worldlings grovel
High as the zenith o'er the sod, —
The cross above the Sexton's shovel !
We rise beyond the realms of day ;
They seem to stoop from spheres of glory

With us one happy hour to stray, While youth comes back in song and story.

Ah ! ours is friendship true as steel
That war has tried in edge and temper ;
It writes upon its sacred seal
The priest's ubique — omnes — semper !
It lends the sky a fairer sun
That cheers our lives with rays as steady
As if our footsteps had begun
To print the golden streets already !

The tangling years have clinched its knot
Too fast for mortal strength to sunder ;
The lightning bolts of noon are shot ;
No fear of evening's idle thunder !
Too late ! too late ! — no graceless hand
Shall stretch its cords in vain endeavor
To rive the close encircling band
That made and keeps us one forever !

So when upon the fated scroll
The falling stars have all descended,
And, blotted from the breathing roll,
Our little page of life is ended,
We ask but one memorial line
Traced on thy tablet, Gracious Mother :
“ My children. Boys of '29.
In pace. How they loved each other ! ”

1868.

ONCE MORE.

“ Will I come ? ” That is pleasant ! I beg to inquire
If the gun that I carry has ever missed
fire ?
And which was the muster-roll — mention but one —

That missed your old comrade who carries the gun ?

You see me as always, my hand on the lock,

The cap on the nipple, the hammer full cock ;

It is rusty, some tell me ; I heed not the scoff ;

It is battered and bruised, but it always goes off !

— "Is it loaded?" I'll bet you ! What does n't it hold ?

Rammed full to the muzzle with memories untold ;

Why, it scares me to fire, lest the pieces should fly

Like the cannons that burst on the Fourth of July !

One charge is a remnant of College-day dreams

(Its wadding is made of forensics and themes) ;

Ah, visions of fame ! what a flash in the pan

As the trigger was pulled by each clever young man !

And love ! Bless my stars, what a cartridge is there !

With a wadding of rose-leaves and ribbons and hair, —

All crammed in one verse to go off at a shot !

— Were there ever such sweethearts ? Of course there were not !

And next, — what a load ! it will split the old gun, —

Three fingers, — four fingers, — five fingers of fun !

Come tell me, gray sages, for mischief and noise

Was there ever a lot like us fellows, "The Boys" ?

Bump ! bump ! down the staircase the cannon-ball goes, —

Aha, old Professor ! Look out for your toes !

Don't think, my poor Tutor, to sleep in your bed, —

Two "Boys" — 'twenty-niners — room over your head !

Remember the nights when the tar-barrel blazed !

From red "Massachusetts" the war-cry was raised ;

And "Hollis" and "Stoughton" re-echoed the call ;

Till P—— poked his head out of Holloworthy Hall !

Old P——, as we called him, — at fifty or so, —

Not exactly a bud, but not quite in full blow ;

In ripening manhood, suppose we should say,

Just nearing his prime, as we boys are to-day !

O, say, can you look through the vista of age

To the time when old Morse drove the regular-stage ?

When Lyon told tales of the long-vanished years,

And Lenox crept round with the rings in his ears ?

And dost thou, my brother, remember indeed

The days of our dealings with Willard and Read ?

When "Dolly" was kicking and running away,

And punch came up smoking on Fillebrown's tray ?

But where are the Tutors, my brother, O tell ! —

And where the Professors, remembered so well ?

The sturdy old Grecian of Holworthy
Hall,
And Latin, and Logic, and Hebrew, and all ?

—“They are dead, the old fellows” (we called them so then,

Though we since have found out they were lusty young men).

—They are dead, do you tell me? — but how do you know ?

You 've filled once too often. I doubt if it 's so.

I 'm thinking. I 'm thinking. Is this 'sixty-eight ?

It 's not quite so clear. It admits of debate.

I may have been dreaming. I rather incline

To think — yes, I 'm certain — it is 'twenty-nine !

“By Zhorzhe !” — as friend Sales is accustomed to cry, —

You tell me they 're dead, but I know it 's a lie !

Is Jackson not President ? — What was
't you said ?

It can't be ; you 're joking ; what, — all of 'em dead ?

Jim, — Harry, — Fred, — Isaac, — all gone from our side ?

They could n't have left us, — no, not if they tried.

— Look, — there 's our old Præses, —
he can't find his text ;

— See, — P—— rubs his leg, as he growls out, “The next !”

I told you 't was nonsense. Joe, give us a song !

Go harness up “Dolly,” and fetch her along ! —

Dead ! Dead ! You false graybeard, I swear they are not !

Hurrah for Old Hickory ! — O, I forgot !

Well, one we have with us (how could he contrive

To deal with us youngsters and still to survive ?)

Who wore for our guidance authority's robe, —

No wonder he took to the study of Job !

— And now as my load was uncommonly large,

Let me taper it off with a classical charge ;
When that has gone off, I shall drop my old gun —

And then stand at ease, for my service is done.

Bibamus ad Classem vocatam “The Boys”

Et eorum Tutorem cui nomen est “Noycs” ;

*Et floreat, valeant, vigeant tam,
Non Peircius ipse enumeret quam !*

1869.

THE OLD CRUISER.

HERE 's the old cruiser, 'Twenty-nine,
Forty times she 's crossed the line ;
Same old masts and sails and crew,
Tight and tough and as good as new.

Into the harbor she bravely steers Just as she 's done for these forty
years, —

Over her anchor goes, splash and clang !
Down her sails drop, rattle and bang !

Comes a vessel out of the dock
Fresh and spry as a fighting-cock,

Feathered with sails and spurred with steam,
Heading out of the classic stream.

Crew of a hundred all aboard,
Every man as fine as a lord.
Gay they look and proud they feel,
Bowling along on even keel.

On they float with wind and tide, —
Gain at last the old ship's side ;
Every man looks down in turn, — Reads the name that 's on her stern.

"Twenty-nine ! — Diable you say !
That was in Skipper Kirkland's day !
What was the Flying Dutchman's name ?
This old rover must be the same.

"Ho ! you Boatswain that walks the
deck,
How does it happen you 're not a wreck ?
One and another have come to grief,
How have you dodged by rock and reef ?"

— Boatswain, lifting one knowing lid, Hitches his breeches and shifts his quid :
"Hey ? What is it ? Who 's come to grief ?
Louder, young swab, I 'm a little deaf."

"I say, old fellow, what keeps your boat
With all you jolly old boys afloat,
When scores of vessels as good as she Have swallowed the salt of the bitter
sea ?

"Many a crew from many a craft Goes drifting by on a broken raft
Pieced from a vessel that clove the brine Taller and prouder than "Twenty-nine.

"Some capsized in an angry breeze,
Some were lost in the narrow seas,
Some on snags and some on sands
Struck and perished and lost their hands.

"Tell us young ones, you gray old man,
What is your secret, if you can.
We have a ship as good as you,
Show us how to keep our crew."

So in his ear the youngster cries ;
Then the gray Boatswain straight replies : —

"All your crew be sure you know, —
Never let one of your shipmates go.

"If he leaves you, change your tack,
Follow him close and fetch him back ;
When you 've hauled him in at last,
Grapple his flipper and hold him fast.

"If you 've wronged him, speak him
fair,
Say you 're sorry and make it square ;
If he 's wronged you, wink so tight
None of you see what 's plain in sight.

"When the world goes hard and wrong,
Lend a hand to help him along ;
When his stockings have holes to darn,
Don't you grudge him your ball of yarn.

"Once in a twelvemonth, come what may,
Anchor your ship in a quiet bay,
Call all hands and read the log,
And give 'em a taste of grub and grog.

"Stick to each other through thick and
thin ;
All the closer as age leaks in ;
Squalls will blow and clouds will frown,
But stay by your ship till you all go
down !"

ADDED FOR THE ALUMNI MEETING,
JUNE 29, 1869.

So the gray Boatswain of "Twenty-nine Piped to "The Boys" as they crossed
the line ;

Round the cabin sat thirty guests, Babes of the nurse with a thousand breasts.

There were the judges, grave and grand,
Flanked by the priests on either hand ;
There was the lord of wealth untold,
And the dear good fellow in broadcloth
old.

Thirty men, from twenty towns, Sires and grandsires with silvered
crowns, —
Thirty school-boys all in a row, — Bens and Georges and Bill and Joe.

In thirty goblets the wine was poured,
But threescore gathered around the board, —
For lo ! at the side of every chair
A shadow hovered — we all were there !

1869.

HYMN FOR THE CLASS-MEETING.

THOU Gracious Power, whose mercy lends
The light of home, the smile of friends,
Our gathered flock thine arms infold
As in the peaceful days of old.

Wilt thou not hear us while we raise,
In sweet accord of solemn praise,
The voices that have mingled long
In joyous flow of mirth and song ?

For all the blessings life has brought,
For all its sorrowing hours have taught,
For all we mourn, for all we keep,
The hands we clasp, the loved that
sleep ;

The noontide sunshine of the past,
These brief, bright moments fading fast,
The stars that gild our darkening years,
The twilight ray from holier spheres ;

We thank thee, Father ! let thy grace
Our narrowing circle still embrace,
Thy mercy shed its heavenly store,
Thy peace be with us evermore !

EVEN-SONG.

It may be, yes, it must be, Time that brings

An end to mortal things,
That sends the beggar Winter in the train

Of Autumn's burdened wain, —
Time, that is heir of all our earthly state,

And knoweth well to wait Till sea hath turned to shore and shore to sea,

If so it need must be,
Ere he make good his claim and call his
own

Old empires overthrown, —
Time, who can find no heavenly orb too large

To hold its fee in charge,
Nor any notes that fill its beam so small,

But he shall care for all, —
It may be, must be, — yes, he soon shall tire

This hand that holds the lyre.

Then ye who listened in that earlier day
When to my careless lay
I matched its chords and stole their first-born thrill,

With untought rudest skill
Vexing a treble from the slender strings
Thin as the locust sings

When the shrill-crying child of summer's heat

Pipes from its leafy seat,
The dim pavilion of embowefing green

Beneath whose shadowy screen
 The small sopranoist tries his single note
 Against the song-bird's throat,
 And all the echoes listen, but in vain ;
 They hear no answering strain, —
 Then ye who listened in that earlier day
 Shall sadly turn away,

Saying, "The fire burns low, the hearth is cold

That warmed our blood of old ;
 Cover its embers and its half-burnt brands,

And let us stretch our hands
 Over a brighter and fresh-kindled flame ;
 Lo, this is not the same,
 The joyous singer of our morning time,
 Flushed high with lusty rhyme !
 Speak kindly, for he bears a human
 heart,

But whisper him apart, —
 Tell him the woods their autumn robes have shed

And all their birds have fled,
 And shouting winds unbuild the naked
 nests

They warmed with patient breasts ;
 Tell him the sky is dark, the summer
 o'er,

And bid him sing no more !

Ah, welladay ! if words so cruel-kind
 A listening ear might find !
 But who that hears the music in his soul
 Of rhythmic waves that roll Crested with gleams of fire, and as they flow

Stir all the deeps below
 Till the great pearls no calm might ever reach

Leap glistening on the beach, —
 Who that has known the passion and the pain,

The rush through heart and brain,
 The joy so like a pang his hand is pressed

Hard on his throbbing breast,
 When thou, whose smile is life and bliss and fame

Hast set his pulse aflame, Muse of the lyre ! can say farewell to
 thee ?

Alas ! and must it be ?

In many a clime, in many a stately
 tongue,

The mighty bards have sung ;
 To these the immemorial thrones belong
 And purple robes of song ;
 Yet the slight minstrel loves the slender
 tone

His lips may call his own,
 And finds the measure of the verse more sweet

Timed by his pulse's beat,
 Than all the hymnings of the laurelled throng.

Say not I do him wrong,
 For Nature spoils her warblers, — them she feeds

In lotus-growing meads
 And pours them subtle draughts from haunted streams

That fill their souls with dreams.

Full well I know the gracious mother's wiles

And dear delusive smiles !

No callow fledgling of her singing brood
 But tastes that witching food,
 And hearing overhead the eagle's wing,
 And how the thrushes sing, Vents his exiguous chirp, and from his nest

Flaps forth — we know the rest.

I own the weakness of the tuneful
 kind,—

Are not all harpers blind ?

I sang too early, must I sing too late ?
 The lengthening shadows wait
 The first pale stars of twilight, — yet how sweet

The flattering whisper's cheat, —
 "Thou hast the fire no evening chill
 can tame,
 Whose coals outlast its flame!"

Farewell, ye carols of the laughing morn,
 Of earliest sunshine born!
 The sower flings the seed and looks not back

Along his furrowed track;
 The reaper leaves the stalks for other
 hands

To gird with circling bands;
 The wind, earth's careless servant, truant-
 born,

Blows clean the beaten corn
 And quits the thresher's floor, and goes his way

To sport with ocean's spray;
 The headlong-stumbling rivulet scrambling down

To wash the sea-girt town, Still babbling of the green and billowy waste

Whose salt he longs to taste, Ere his warm wave its chilling clasp may feel

Has twirled the miller's wheel.

The song has done its task that makes us bold

With secrets else untold, —
 And mine has run its errand; through the dews

I tracked the flying Muse;
 The daughter of the morning touched my lips

With roseate finger-tips;
 Whether I would or would not, I must sing

With the new choirs of spring;
 Now, as I watch the fading autumn day
 And trill my softened lay,

I think of all that listened, and of one
 For whom a brighter sun

Dawned at high summer's noon. Ah, comrades dear,

Are not all gathered here?
 Our hearts have answered. — Yes! they hear our call:

All gathered here! all! all!

1871.

THE SMILING LISTENER.

PRECISELY. I see it. You all want to say

That a tear is too sad and a laugh is too gay;

You could stand a faint smile, you could manage a sigh,

But you value your ribs, and you don't want to cry.

And why at our feast of the clasping of
 hands

Need we turn on the stream of our lachrymal glands?

Though we see the white breakers of age
 on our bow,

Let us take a good pull in the jolly-boat
 now!

It's hard if a fellow cannot feel content
 When a banquet like this does n't cost him a cent,

When his goblet and plate he may empty at will,

And our kind Class Committee will settle the bill.

And here's your old friend the identical bard

Who has rhymed and recited you verse by the yard

Since the days of the empire of Andrew the First

Till you're full to the brim and feel ready to burst.

It's awful to think of, — how year after year
With his piece in his pocket he waits for you here ;
No matter who's missing, there always
is one
To lug out his manuscript, sure as a gun.

“Why won't he stop writing?” Humanity cries :
The answer is briefly, “He can't if he tries ;
He has played with his foolish old feather
so long,
That the goose-quill in spite of him cackles in song.”

You have watched him with patience from morning to dusk
Since the tassel was bright o'er the green of the husk,
And now — it's too bad — it's a pitiful job —
He has shelled the ripe ear till he's come to the cob.

I see one face beaming — it listens so
well
There must be some music yet left in my shell —
The wine of my soul is not thick on the lees ;
One string is unbroken, one friend I can please !

Dear comrade, the sunshine of seasons gone by Looks out from your tender and tearmoistened eye,
A pharos of love on an ice-girdled coast, —
Kind soul ! — Don't you hear me ? —
He's deaf as a post !

Can it be one of Nature's benevolent tricks

That you grow hard of hearing as I grow prolix ?
And that look of delight which would angels beguile
Is the deaf man's prolonged unintelligent
smile ?

Ah ! the ear may grow dull, and the eye may wax dim,
But they still know a classmate — they can't mistake him ;
There is something to tell us, “That's one of our band,” Though we groped in the dark for a touch of his hand.

Well, Time with his snuffers is prowling about
And his shaky old fingers will soon snuff us out ;
There's a hint for us all in each pendulum tick,
For we're low in the tallow and long in the wick.

You remember Rossini — you've been at the play ?
How his overture-endings keep crashing
away
Till you think, “It's all over — it can't but stop now —
That's the screech and the bang of the final bow-wow.”

And you find you're mistaken ; there's lots more to come,
More banging, more screeching of fiddle and drum,
Till when the last ending is finished and
done,
You feel like a horse when the winningpost's won.

So I, who have sung to you, merry or sad,

Since the days when they called me a promising lad,

Though I've made you more rhymes than a tutor could scan,
Have a few more still left, like the razorstrop man.

Now pray don't be frightened—I'm ready to stop

My galloping anapests' clatter and pop—
In fact, if you say so, retire from to-day
To the garret I left, on a poet's half-pay.

And yet—I can't help it—perhaps—who can tell?

You might miss the poor singer you treated so well,

And confess you could stand him five minutes or so,

"It was so like old times we remember,
you know."

'T is not that the music can signify much,

But then there are chords that awake with a touch,—

And our hearts can find echoes of sorrow
and joy

To the winch of the minstrel who hails from Savoy.

So this hand-organ tune that I cheerfully grind

May bring the old places and faces to
mind,

And seen in the light of the past we recall

The flowers that have faded bloom fairest of all!

1872.

OUR SWEET SINGER.

J. A.

ONE memory trembles on our lips :
It throbs in every breast ;

In tear-dimmed eyes, in mirth's eclipse,
The shadow stands confessed.

O silent voice, that cheered so long
Our manhood's marching day, Without thy breath of heavenly song,
How weary seems the way!

Vain every pictured phrase to tell
Our sorrowing heart's desire ;
The shattered harp, the broken shell,
The silent unstrung lyre ;

For youth was round us while he sang ;
It glowed in every tone ;
With bridal chimes the echoes rang,
And made the past our own.

O blissful dream ! Our nursery joys
We know must have an end,
But love and friendship's broken toys
May God's good angels mend !

The cheering smile, the voice of mirth
And laughter's gay surprise
That please the children born of earth,
Why deem that Heaven denies ?

Methinks in that refulgent sphere
That knows not sun or moon,
An earth-born saint might long to hear
One verse of "Bonny Doon" ;

Or walking through the streets of gold
In Heaven's unclouded light,
His lips recall the song of old
And hum "The sky is bright."

* * *

And can we smile when thou art dead ?
Ah, brothers, even so !
The rose of summer will be red,
In spite of winter's snow.

Thou wouldst not leave us all in gloom
Because thy song is still,
Nor blight the banquet-garland's bloom
With grief's untimely chill.

The sighing wintry winds complain, —
 The singing bird has flown, —
 Hark ! heard I not that ringing strain,
 That clear celestial tone ?

How poor these pallid phrases seem,
 How weak this tinkling line,
 As warbles through my waking dream
 That angel voice of thine !

Thy requiem asks a sweeter lay ;
 It falters on my tongue ;
 For all we vainly strive to say,
 Thou shouldst thyself have sung !

1873.

* * *

H. C. M. H. S. J. K. W.

THE dirge is played, the throbbing death-peal rung ;
 The sad-voiced requiem sung
 On each white urn where memory dwells
 The wreath of rustling immortelles
 Our loving hands have hung,
 And balmiest leaves have strown and tenderest blossoms flung.

The birds that filled the air with songs have flown,
 The wintry blasts have blown,
 And these for whom the voice of spring
 Bade the sweet choirs their carols
 sing
 Sleep in those chambers lone Where snows untrodden lie, unheard the night-winds moan.

We clasp them all in memory, as the vine
 Whose running stems intwine,
 The marble shaft, and steal around,

The lowly stone, the nameless
 mound ;
 With sorrowing hearts resign
 Our brothers true and tried, and close our broken line.

How fast the lamps of life grow dim and die
 Beneath our sunset sky !
 Still fading, as along our track
 We cast our saddened glances back,
 And while we vainly sigh
 The shadowy day recedes, the starry night draws nigh.

As when from pier to pier across the tide
 With even keel we glide,
 The lights we left along the shore Grow less and less, while more, yet
 more
 New vistas open wide
 Of fair illumined streets and casements golden-eyed.

Each closing circle of our sunlit sphere
 Seems to bring Heaven more near :
 Can we not dream that those we love
 Are listening in the world above
 And smiling as they hear The voices known so well of friends that still are dear ?

Does all that made us human fade away
 With this dissolving clay ?
 Nay, rather deem the blessed isles Are bright and gay with joyous smiles,
 That angels have their play,
 And saints that tire of song may claim their holiday.

All else of earth may perish ; love alone
 Not Heaven shall find outgrown !
 Are they not here, our spirit guests With love still throbbing in their breasts ?

Once more let flowers be strown.
Welcome, ye shadowy forms, we count you still our own !

1873.

WHAT I HAVE COME FOR.

I HAVE come with my verses — I think
I may claim
It is not the first time I have tried on the same.
They were puckered in rhyme, they were wrinkled in wit ;
But your hearts were so large that they made them a fit.

I have come — not to tease you with more of my rhyme,
But to feel as I did in the blessed old
time ;
I want to hear him with the Brobdingnag laugh —
We count him at least as three men and a half.

I have come to meet judges so wise and so grand
That I shake in my shoes while they're shaking my hand ;
And the prince among merchants who put back the crown
When they tried to enthrone him the King of the Town.

I have come to see George — Yes, I think there are four,
If they all were like these I could wish there were more.
I have come to see one whom we used to call " Jim,"
I want to see — O, don't I want to see him ?

I have come to grow young — on my word I declare

I have thought I detected a change in my hair !
One hour with " The Boys " will restore it to brown —
And a wrinkle or two I expect to rub
down.

Yes, that's what I've come for, as all of us come ;
When I meet the dear Boys I could wish
I were dumb.
You asked me, you know, but it's spoilng the fun ;
I have told what I came for ; my ditty is done.

1874.

OUR BANKER.

OLD Time, in whose bank we deposit our notes,
Is a miser who always wants guineas for groats ;
He keeps all his customers still in arrears
By lending them minutes and charging them years.

The twelvemonth rolls round and we never forget
On the counter before us to pay him our debt.
We reckon the marks he has chalked on
the door,
Pay up and shake hands and begin a new score.

How long he will lend us, how much we may owe,
No angel will tell us, no mortal may
know.
At fivescore, at fourscore, at threescore and ten,
He may close the account with a stroke of his pen.

This only we know, —amid sorrows and joys Old Time has been easy and kind with "The Boys." Though he must have and will have and does have his pay, We have found him good-natured enough in his way. He never forgets us, as others will do, — I am sure he knows me, and I think he knows you, For I see on your foreheads a mark that he lends As a sign he remembers to visit his friends. In the shape of a classmate (a wig on his crown, — His day-book and ledger laid carefully down) He has welcomed us yearly, a glass in his hand, And pledged the good health of our brotherly band. He's a thief, we must own, but how many there be That rob us less gently and fairly than he : He has stripped the green leaves that were over us all, But they let in the sunshine as fast as they fall. Young beauties may ravish the world with a glance As they languish in song, as they float in the dance, — They are grandmothers now we remem- ber as girls, And the comely white cap takes the place of the curls.	But the sighing and moaning and groan- ing are o'er, We are pining and moping and sleepless no more, And the hearts that were thumping like ships on the rocks Beat as quiet and steady as meeting- house clocks. The trump of ambition, loud sounding and shrill, May blow its long blast, but the echoes are still, The spring-tides are past, but no billow may reach The spoils they have landed far up on the beach. We see that Time robs us, we know that he cheats, But we still find a charm in his pleas- ant deceits, While he leaves the remembrance of all that was best, Love, friendship, and hope, and the promise of rest. Sweet shadows of twilight ! how calm their repose, While the dewdrops fall soft in the breast of the rose ! How blest to the toiler his hour of re- lease When the vesper is heard with its whis- per of peace ! Then here's to the wrinkled old miser, our friend ; May he send us his bills to the century's end, And lend us the moments no sorrow alloys, Till he squares his account with the last of "The Boys."

FOR CLASS MEETING.

It is a pity and a shame — alas ! alas !

I know it is,

To tread the trodden grapes again, but so it has been, so it is ;

The purple vintage long is past, with ripened clusters bursting so

They filled the wine-vats to the brim —
't is strange you will be thirsting so !

Too well our faithful memory tells what might be rhymed or sung about,

For all have sighed and some have wept since last year's snows were flung about ;

The beacon flame that fired the sky, the modest ray that gladdened us,

A little breath has quenched their light, and deepening shades have saddened us.

No more our brother's life is ours for cheering or for grieving us,

One only sadness they bequeathed, the sorrow of their leaving us ;

Farewell ! Farewell ! — I turn the leaf
I read my chiming measure in ;

Who knows but something still is there a friend may find a pleasure in ?

For who can tell by what he likes what other people's fancies are ?

How all men think the best of wives their own particular Nancies are ?

If what I sing you brings a smile, you will not stop to catechise,

Nor read Beotia's lumbering line with nicely scanning Attic eyes.

Perhaps the alabaster box that Mary broke so lovingly,

While Judas looked so sternly on, the Master so approvingly,

Was not so fairly wrought as those that Pilate's wife and daughters had,
Or many a dame of Judah's line that drank of Jordan's waters had.

Perhaps the balm that cost so dear, as some remarked officially,

The precious nard that filled the room with fragrance so deliciously,

So oft recalled in storied page and sung in verse melodious,

The dancing girl had thought too cheap
— that daughter of Herodias.

Where now are all the mighty deeds that Herod boasted loudest of ?

Where now the flashing jewelry the tetrarch's wife was proudest of ?

Yet still to hear how Mary loved, all tribes of men are listening,

And still the sinful woman's tears like stars in heaven are glistening.

'T is not the gift our hands have brought,
the love it is we bring with it,

The minstrel's lips may shape the song,
his heart in tune must sing with it ;

And so we love the simple lays, and wish we might have more of them

Our poet brothers sing for us — there must be half a score of them.

It may be that of fame and name our voices once were emulous, —

With deeper thoughts, with tenderer throbs their softening tones are tremulous ;

The dead seem listening as of old, ere friendship was bereft of them ;

The living wear a kinder smile, the remnant that is left of them.

Though on the once unfurrowed brows
the harrow-teeth of Time may show,

Though all the strain of crippling years
the halting feet of rhyme may show,

We look and hear with melting hearts, for what we all remember is The morn of Spring, nor heed how chill the sky of gray November is.

Thanks to the gracious powers above from all mankind that singled us,
And dropped the pearl of friendship in the cup they kindly mingled us,
And bound us in a wreath of flowers with hoops of steel knit under it; — Nor time, nor space, nor chance, nor change, nor death himself shall sunder it!

1876.

"AD AMICOS."

"Dumque virent genua Et decet, obducta solvatur fronte senectus."

THE muse of boyhood's fervid hour
Grows tame as skies get chill and hazy;
Where once she sought a passion-flower,
She only hopes to find a daisy.
Well, who the changing world bewails?
Who asks to have it stay unaltered?
Shall grown-up kittens chase their tails?
Shall colts be never shod or haltered?

Are we "the boys" that used to make
The tables ring with noisy follies?
Whose deep-lunged laughter oft would shake

The ceiling with its thunder-volleys?
Are we the youths with lips unshorn,
At beauty's feet unwrinkled suitors, Whose memories reach tradition's
morn —

The days of prehistoric tutors?

"The boys" we knew — but who are these

Whose heads might serve for Plu-tarch's sages,

Or Fox's martyrs, if you please,
Or hermits of the dismal ages?
"The boys" we knew — can these be those?

Their cheeks with morning's blush were painted; —

Where are the Harrys, Jims, and Joes With whom we once were well acquainted?

If we are they, we're not the same;
If they are we, why then they're masking;

Do tell us, neighbor What's-your-name,
Who are you? — What's the use of asking?

You once were George, or Bill, or Ben;
There's you, yourself — there's you,
that other —

I know you now — I knew you then —
You used to be your younger brother!

You both are all our own to-day —
But ah! I hear a warning whisper;
Yon roseate hour that flits away
Repeats the Roman's sad paulisper.
Come back! come back! we've need of you

To pay you for your word of warning;
We'll bathe your wings in brighter dew
Than ever wet the lids of morning!

Behold this cup; its mystic wine
No alien's lip has ever tasted;
The blood of friendship's clinging
vine,

Still flowing, flowing, yet unwasted;
Old Time forgot his running sand
And laid his hour-glass down to fill it,
And Death himself with gentle hand
Has touched the chalice, not to spill
it.

Each bubble rounding at the brim
Is rainbowed with its magic story;

The shining days with age grown dim
 Are dressed again in robes of glory ;
 In all its freshness spring returns
 With song of birds and blossoms tender ;
 Once more the torch of passion burns,
 And youth is here in all its splendor !

Hope swings her anchor like a toy,
 Love laughs and shows the silver arrow
 We knew so well as man and boy, —
 The shaft that stings through bone and marrow ;
 Again our kindling pulses beat,
 With tangled curls our fingers dally,
 And bygone beauties smile as sweet
 As fresh-blown lilies of the valley.

O blesséd hour ! we may forget Its wreaths, its rhymes, its songs, its laughter,
 But not the loving eyes we met,
 Whose light shall gild the dim hereafter.
 How every heart to each grows warm !
 Is one in sunshine's ray ? We share
 it.
 Is one in sorrow's blinding storm ?
 A look, a word, shall help him bear it.

“The boys ” we were, “the boys ” we'll be
 As long as three, as two, are creep-
 ing ;
 Then here's to him — ah ! which is he ? —
 Who lives till all the rest are sleeping ;
 A life with tranquil comfort blest,
 The young man's health, the rich man's plenty,
 All earth can give that earth has best,
 And heaven at fourscore years and twenty.

1877.

HOW NOT TO SETTLE IT.

I LIKE, at times, to hear the steeples' chimes
 With sober thoughts impressively that mingle ;
 But sometimes, too, I rather like — don't you ? —
 To hear the music of the sleigh bells' jingle.

I like full well the deep resounding swell
 Of mighty symphonies with chords inwoven ;
 But sometimes, too, a song of Burns —
 don't you ?
 After a solemn storm-blast of Beethoven.

Good to the heels the well-worn slipper feels When the tired player shuffles off the buskin ;
 A page of Hood may do a fellow good After a scolding from Carlyle or Ruskin.

Some works I find, — say Watts upon the Mind, —
 No matter though at first they seemed amusing,
 Not quite the same, but just a little tame
 After some five or six times' reperus-
 ing.

So, too, at times when melancholy rhymes
 Or solemn speeches sober down a dinner,
 I've seen it, 's true, quite often, — have n't you ? —
 The best-fed guests perceptibly grow thinner.

Better some jest (in proper terms expressed)

Or story (strictly moral) even if musty, Or song we sung when these old throats were young, — Something to keep our souls from getting rusty.

The poorest scrap from memory's ragged lap

Comes like an heirloom from a dear dead mother —

Hush! there's a tear that has no business here,
A half-formed sigh that ere its birth we smother.

We cry, we laugh; ah, life is half and half,
Now bright and joyous as a song of Herrick's,

Then chill and bare as funeral-minded
Blair;
As fickle as a female in hysterics.

If I could make you cry I would n't try;
If you have hidden smiles I'd like to find them,
And that although, as well I ought to
know,
The lips of laughter have a skull behind them.

Yet when I think we may be on the brink
Of having Freedom's banner to dispose of,
All crimson-hued, because the Nation would Insist on cutting its own precious nose off,

I feel indeed as if we rather need
A sermon such as preachers tie a text on.

If Freedom dies because a ballot lies,
She earns her grave; 't is time to call the sexton!

But if a fight can make the matter right, Here are we, classmates, thirty men of mettle;
We're strong and tough, we've lived nigh long enough —
What if the Nation gave it us to settle?

The tale would read like that illustrious deed
When Curtius took the leap the gap that filled in,
Thus; "Fivescore years, good friends, as it appears,
At last this people split on Hayes and Tilden.

"One half cried, 'See! the choice is
S. J. T.!'
And one half swore as stoutly it was t' other;
Both drew the knife to save the Nation's life
By wholesale vivisection of each other.

"Then rose in mass that monumental Class, —
'Hold! hold!' they cried, 'give us, give us the daggers!'
'Content! content!' exclaimed with one consent
The gaunt ex-rebels and the carpetbaggers.

"Fifteen each side, the combatants
divide,
So nicely balanced are their predilec-
tions;
And first of all a tear-drop each lets fall,
A tribute to their obsolete affections.

“Man facing man, the sanguine strife
began,
Jack, Jim and Joe against Tom, Dick and Harry,
Each several pair its own account to square,
Till both were down or one stood solitary.

“And the great fight raged furious all
the night
Till every integer was made a fraction ; Reader, wouldst know what history has
to show
As net result of the above transaction ?

“Whole coat-tails, four ; stray fragments, several score ;
A heap of spectacles ; a deaf man's trumpet ;
Six lawyers' briefs ; seven pocket-handkerchiefs ;
Twelve canes wherewith the owners used to stump it ;

“Odd rubber-shoes ; old gloves of different hues ;
Tax-bills, — unpaid, — and several empty purses ;
And, saved from harm by some protecting charm,
A printed page with Smith's immortal verses ;

“Trifles that claim no very special
name, —
Some useful, others chiefly ornamental ;
Pins, buttons, rings, and other trivial
things,
With various wrecks, capillary and dental.

“Also, one flag, — 't was nothing but a rag,

And what device it bore it little matters ;
Red, white, and blue, but rent all through and through,
'Union forever' torn to shreds and tatters.

“They fought so well not one was left to tell
Which got the largest share of cuts and slashes ;
When heroes meet, both sides are bound to beat ;
They telescoped like cars in railroad smashes.

“So the great split that baffled human wit
And might have cost the lives of twenty millions,
As all may see that know the rule of three,
Was settled just as well by these civilians.

“As well. Just so. Not worse, not better. No, Next morning found the Nation still divided ;
Since all were slain, the inference is plain
They left the point they fought for undecided.”

If not quite true, as I have told it you, —
This tale of mutual extermination, To minds perplexed with threats of what comes next,
Perhaps may furnish food for contemplation.

To cut men's throats to help them count their votes
Is asinine — nay, worse — ascidian folly ;

Blindness like that would scare the mole and bat,
 And make the liveliest monkey melancholy.

I say once more, as I have said before,
 If voting for our Tildens and our Hayeses
 Means only fight, then, Liberty, good
 night!

Pack up your ballot-box and go to blazes!

Unfurl your blood-red flags, you murderous hags,

You pétroleuses of Paris, fierce and foamy;

We'll sell our stock in Plymouth's blasted rock,

Pull up our stakes and migrate to Dahomey!

SONGS OF MANY SEASONS.

SONGS OF MANY SEASONS.

1862 - 1874.

OPENING THE WINDOW.

THUS I lift the sash, so long Shut against the flight of song ;
All too late for vain excuse, —
Lo, my captive rhymes are loose !

Rhymes that, flitting through my brain,
Beat against my window-pane,
Some with gayly colored wings,
Some, alas ! with venom'd stings.

Shall they bask in sunny rays ?
Shall they feed on sugared praise ?
Shall they stick with tangled feet
On the critic's poisoned sheet ?

Are the outside winds too rough ?
Is the world not wide enough ?
Go, my wingéd verse, and try, —
Go, like Uncle Toby's fly !

PROGRAMME.

READER — gentle — if so be Such still live, and live for me,
Will it please you to be told What my tenscore pages hold ?

Here are verses that in spite
Of myself I needs must write,
Like the wine that oozes first
When the unsqueezed grapes have burst.

Here are angry lines, "too hard !"
Says the soldier, battle-scarred.
Could I smile his scars away
I would blot the bitter lay,

Written with a knitted brow,
Read with placid wonder now.
Throbb'd such passion in my heart ?
— Did his wounds once really smart ?

Here are varied strains that sing
All the changes life can bring,
Songs when joyous friends have met,
Songs the mourner's tears have wet.

See the banquet's dead bouquet,
Fair and fragrant in its day ;
Do they read the selfsame lines, —
He that fasts and he that dines ?

Year by year, like milestones placed,
Mark the record Friendship traced.
Prisoned in the walls of time
Life has notched itself in rhyme :

As its seasons slid along,
Every year a notch of song,
From the June of long ago,
When the rose was full in blow,

Till the scarlet sage has come
And the cold chrysanthemum.
Read, but not to praise or blame ;
Are not all our hearts the same ?

For the rest, they take their chance, —
 Some may pay a passing glance;
 Others, — well, they served a turn, — Wherefore written, would you learn?

Not for glory, not for pelf,
 Not, be sure, to please myself,
 Not for any meaner ends, —
 Always "by request of friends."

Here 's the cousin of a king, —
 Would I do the civil thing?
 Here 's the first-born of a queen;
 Here 's a slant-eyed Mandarin.

Would I polish off Japan?
Would I greet this famous man, Prince or Prelate, Sheik or Shah? —
 — Figaro çî and Figaro là!

Would I just this once comply? —
 So they teased and teased till I

(Be the truth at once confessed)
 Wavered — yielded — did my best.

Turn my pages, — never mind
 If you like not all you find;
 Think not all the grains are gold Sacramento's sand-banks hold.

Every kernel has its shell,
 Every chime its harshest bell,
 Every face its weariest look,
 Every shelf its emptiest book,

Every field its leanest sheaf,
 Every book its dullest leaf,
 Every leaf its weakest line, —
 Shall it not be so with mine?

Best for worst shall make amends,
 Find us, keep us, leave us friends
 Till, perchance, we meet again.
 Benedicite. — Amen!

DOROTHY Q.

[From the Original Painting.]

IN THE QUIET DAYS.

AN OLD-YEAR SONG.

As through the forest, disarrayed
 By chill November, late I strayed,
 A lonely minstrel of the wood
 Was singing to the solitude:
 I loved thy music, thus I said,
 When o'er thy perch the leaves were
 spread ;
 Sweet was thy song, but sweeter now
 Thy carol on the leafless bough.
 Sing, little bird ! thy note shall cheer
 The sadness of the dying year.

When violets pranked the turf with blue
 And morning filled their cups with dew,
 Thy slender voice with rippling trill
 The budding April bowers would fill,
 Nor passed its joyous tones away
 When April rounded into May :
 Thy life shall hail no second dawn, —
 Sing, little bird ! the spring is gone.

And I remember — well-a-day ! —
 Thy full-blown summer roundelay,
 As when behind a brodered screen
 Some holy maiden sings unseen :
 With answering notes the woodland rung,
 And every tree-top found a tongue.
 How deep the shade ! the groves how
 fair !
 Sing, little bird ! the woods are bare.

The summer's throbbing chant is done
 And mute the choral antiphon ;
 The birds have left the shivering pines

To flit among the trellised vines,
 Or fan the air with scented plumes
 Amid the love-sick orange-blooms,
 And thou art here alone, — alone, —
 Sing, little bird ! the rest have flown.

The snow has capped yon distant hill,
 At morn the running brook was still,
 From driven herds the clouds that rise
 Are like the smoke of sacrifice ;
 Erelong the frozen sod shall mock
 The ploughshare, changed to stubborn
 rock,
 The brawling streams shall soon be dumb, —
 Sing, little bird ! the frosts have come.

Fast, fast the lengthening shadows creep,
 The songless fowls are half asleep,
 The air grows chill, the setting sun
 May leave thee ere thy song is done,
 The pulse that warms thy breast grow
 cold,
 Thy secret die with thee, untold :
 The lingering sunset still is bright, —
 Sing, little bird ! 't will soon be night.

DOROTHY Q.

A FAMILY PORTRAIT.

GRANDMOTHER'S mother : her age, I guess,
 Thirteen summers, or something less ;

Girlish bust, but womanly air ;
 Smooth, square forehead with uprolled
 hair,
 Lips that lover has never kissed ;
 Taper fingers and slender wrist ;
 Hanging sleeves of stiff brocade ;
 So they painted the little maid.

On her hand a parrot green
 Sits unmoving and broods serene.
 Hold up the canvas full in view, —
 Look ! there 's a rent the light shines
 through,
 Dark with a century's fringe of dust, —
 That was a Red-Coat's rapier-thrust !
 Such is the tale the lady old,
 Dorothy's daughter's daughter, told.

Who the painter was none may tell, —
 One whose best was not over well ;
 Hard and dry, it must be confessed,
 Flat as a rose that has long been pressed ;
 Yet in her cheek the hues are bright,
 Dainty colors of red and white,
 And in her slender shape are seen
 Hint and promise of stately mien.

Look not on her with eyes of scorn, —
 Dorothy Q. was a lady born !
 Ay ! since the galloping Normans came,
 England's annals have known her name ;
 And still to the three-hilled rebel town
 Dear is that ancient name's renown,
 For many a civic wreath they won,
 The youthful sire and the gray-haired
 son.

O Damsel Dorothy ! Dorothy Q. !
 Strange is the gift that I owe to you ;
 Such a gift as never a king
 Save to daughter or son might bring, —
 All my tenure of heart and hand,
 All my title to house and land ;
 Mother and sister and child and wife
 And joy and sorrow and death and life !

What if a hundred years ago
 Those close-shut lips had answered No,
 When forth the tremulous question came
 That cost the maiden her Norman name,
 And under the folds that look so still The bodice swelled with the bosom's thrill ?

Should I be I, or would it be
 One tenth another, to nine tenths me ?

Soft is the breath of a maiden's YEs :
 Not the light gossamer stirs with less ;
 But never a cable that holds so fast Through all the battles of wave and
 blast,

And never an echo of speech or song
 That lives in the babbling air so long !
 There were tones in the voice that whispered then

You may hear to-day in a hundred men.

O lady and lover, how faint and far
 Your images hover, — and here we are,
 Solid and stirring in flesh and bone, — Edward's and Dorothy's — all their own, —

A goodly record for Time to show
 Of a syllable spoken so long ago ! —
 Shall I bless you, Dorothy, or forgive
 For the tender whisper that bade me
 live ?

It shall be a blessing, my little maid !
 I will heal the stab of the Red-Coat's
 blade,

And freshen the gold of the tarnished
 frame,

And gild with a rhyme your household
 name ;

So you shall smile on us brave and bright
 As first you greeted the morning's light,
 And live untroubled by woes and fears Through a second youth of a hundred years.

THE ORGAN-BLOWER.

DEVOUTEST of my Sunday friends,
The patient Organ-blower bends;
I see his figure sink and rise, (Forgive me, Heaven, my wandering
eyes !)

A moment lost, the next half seen,
His head above the scanty screen,
Still measuring out his deep salaams Through quavering hymns and panting psalms.

No priest that prays in gilded stole,
To save a rich man's mortgaged soul;
No sister, fresh from holy vows,
So humbly stoops, so meekly bows;
His large obeisance puts to shame
The proudest genuflecting dame,
Whose Easter bonnet low descends
With all the grace devotion lends.

O brother with the supple spine,
How much we owe those bows of thine !
Without thine arm to lend the breeze,
How vain the finger on the keys !
Though all unmatched the player's skill, Those thousand throats were dumb and
still :

Another's art may shape the tone,
The breath that fills it is thine own.

Six days the silent Memnon waits
Behind his temple's folded gates;
But when the seventh day's sunshine falls

Through rainbowed windows on the
walls,

He breathes, he sings, he shouts, he fills
The quivering air with rapturous thrills;
The roof resounds, the pillars shake,
And all the slumbering echoes wake !

The Preacher from the Bible-text
With weary words my soul has vexed
(Some stranger, fumbling far astray
To find the lesson for the day);

He tells us truths too plainly true,
And reads the service all askew, — Why, why the — mischief — can't he look

Beforehand in the service-book ?

But thou, with decent mien and face,
Art always ready in thy place;
Thy strenuous blast, whate'er the tune,
As steady as the strong monsoon;
Thy only dread a leathery creak,
Or small residual extra squeak,
To send along the shadowy aisles
A sunlit wave of dimpled smiles.

Not all the preaching, O my friend,
Comes from the church's pulpit end !
Not all that bend the knee and bow
Yield service half so true as thou !
One simple task performed aright,
With slender skill, but all thy might,
Where honest labor does its best,
And leaves the player all the rest.

This many-diapasoned maze,
Through which the breath of being strays,

Whose music makes our earth divine,
Has work for mortal hands like mine.
My duty lies before me. Lo,
The lever there ! Take hold and blow !
And He whose hand is on the keys
Will play the tune as He shall please.

1872.

AT THE PANTOMIME.

THE house was crammed from roof to
floor,

Heads piled on heads at every door;
Half dead with August's seething heat
I crowded on and found my seat,
My patience slightly out of joint,
My temper short of boiling-point,
Not quite at Hate mankind as such,
Nor yet at Love them overmuch.

Amidst the throng the pageant drew
 Were gathered Hebrews not a few,
 Black-bearded, swarthy, — at their side Dark, jewelled women, orient-eyed :
 If scarce a Christian hopes for grace
 Who crowds one in his narrow place
 What will the savage victim do Whose ribs are kneaded by a Jew ?

Next on my left a breathing form Wedged up against me, close and warm ;
 The beak that crowned the bistr'd face
 Betrayed the mould of Abraham's race, —
 That coal-black hair, that smoke-brown
 hue, —

Ah, curséd, unbelieving Jew !
 I started, shuddering, to the right,
 And squeezed — a second Israelite !

Then woke the evil brood of rage
 That slumber, tongueless, in their cage ;
 I stabbed in turn with silent oaths
 The hook-nosed kite of carrion clothes,
 The snaky usurer, him that crawls
 And cheats beneath the golden balls,
 Moses and Levi, all the horde,
 Spawn of the race that slew its Lord.

Up came their murderous deeds of old,
 The grisly story Chaucer told,
 And many an ugly tale beside
 Of children caught and crucified ;
 I heard the ducat-sweating thieves
 Beneath the Ghetto's slouching eaves,
 And, thrust beyond the tented green,
 The lepers cry, "Unclean ! Unclean !"

The show went on, but, ill at ease,
 My sullen eye it could not please,
 In vain my conscience whispered,
 "Shame !

Who but their Maker is to blame ?"
 I thought of Judas and his bribe,
 And steeled my soul against their tribe :
 My neighbors stirred ; I looked again
 Full on the younger of the twain.

A fresh young cheek whose olive hue
 The mantling blood shows faintly
 through ;

Locks dark as midnight, that divide
 And shade the neck on either side ;
 Soft, gentle, loving eyes that gleam Clear as a starlit mountain stream ; —
 So looked that other child of Shem,
 The Maiden's Boy of Bethlehem !

— And thou couldst scorn the peerless
 blood

That flows unmingled from the Flood, — Thy scutcheon spotted with the stains
 Of Norman thieves and pirate Danes !
 The New World's foundling, in thy pride
 Scowl on the Hebrew at thy side,
 And lo ! the very semblance there
 The Lord of Glory deigned to wear !

I see that radiant image rise,
 The flowing hair, the pitying eyes,
 The faintly crimsoned cheek that shows
 The blush of Sharon's opening rose, — Thy hands would clasp his hallowed feet
 Whose brethren soil thy Christian seat,
 Thy lips would press his garment's hem
 That curl in wrathful scorn for them !

A sudden mist, a watery screen,
 Dropped like a veil before the scene ;
 The shadow floated from my soul,
 And to my lips a whisper stole, —
 "Thy prophets caught the Spirit's flame,
 From thee the Son of Mary came,
 With thee the Father deigned to dwell, — Peace be upon thee, Israel !"

18 —. Rewritten 1874.

AFTER THE FIRE.

WHILE far along the eastern sky
 I saw the flags of Havoc fly,
 As if his forces would assault
 The sovereign of the starry vault

And hurl Him back the burning rain
That seared the cities of the plain,
I read as on a crimson page
The words of Israel's sceptred sage : —

For riches make them wings, and they Do as an eagle fly away.

O vision of that sleepless night,
What hue shall paint the mocking light
That burned and stained the orient skies
Where peaceful morning loves to rise,
As if the sun had lost his way
And dawned to make a second day, —
Above how red with fiery glow,
How dark to those it woke below !

On roof and wall, on dome and spire,
Flashed the false jewels of the fire ;
Girt with her belt of glittering panes,
And crowned with starry-gleaming vanes,
Our northern queen in glory shone
With new-born splendors not her own,
And stood, transfigured in our eyes,
A victim decked for sacrifice !

The cloud still hovers overhead,
And still the midnight sky is red ;
As the lost wanderer strays alone
To seek the place he called his own,
His devious footprints sadly tell How changed the pathways known so
well ;

The scene, how new ! The tale, how old Ere yet the ashes have grown cold !

Again I read the words that came Writ in the rubric of the flame :
Howe'er we trust to mortal things,
Each hath its pair of folded wings ;
Though long their terrors rest unspread
Their fatal plumes are never shed ;
At last, at last, they stretch in flight,
And blot the day and blast the night !

Hope, only Hope, of all that clings Around us, never spreads her wings ;
Love, though he break his earthly chain,
Still whispers he will come again ;
But Faith that soars to seek the sky
Shall teach our half-fledged souls to fly,
And find, beyond the smoke and flame,
The cloudless azure whence they came !

1872.

A BALLAD OF THE BOSTON TEA-PARTY.

No ! never such a draught was poured Since Hebe served with nectar
The bright Olympians and their Lord,
Her over-kind protector, —
Since Father Noah squeezed the grape
And took to such behaving
As would have shamed our grandsire ape
Before the days of shaving, —
No ! ne'er was mingled such a draught
In palace, hall, or arbor,
As freemen brewed and tyrants quaffed
That night in Boston Harbor !
It kept King George so long awake
His brain at last got addled,
It made the nerves of Britain shake,
With sevenscore millions saddled ;
Before that bitter cup was drained,
Amid the roar of cannon,
The Western war-cloud's crimson stained
The Thames, the Clyde, the Shannon ;
Full many a six-foot grenadier
The flattened grass had measured,
And many a mother many a year
Her tearful memories treasured ;
Fast spread the tempest's darkening pall,
The mighty realms were troubled,
The storm broke loose, but first of all The Boston teapot bubbled !

An evening party, — only that,
No formal invitation,
No gold-laced coat, no stiff cravat,
No feast in contemplation,

No silk-robed dames, no fiddling band,
 No flowers, no songs, no dancing, —
 A tribe of Red men, axe in hand, —
 Behold the guests advancing !
 How fast the stragglers join the throng,
 From stall and workshop gathered !
 The lively barber skips along
 And leaves a chin half-lathered ;
 The smith has flung his hammer down, —
 The horseshoe still is glowing ;
 The truant tapster at the Crown
 Has left a beer-cask flowing ;
 The cooper's boys have dropped the adze,
 And trot behind their master ;
 Up run the tarry ship-yard lads, —
 The crowd is hurrying faster, —
 Out from the Millpond's purlieus gush
 The streams of white-faced millers,
 And down their slippery alleys rush
 The lusty young Fort-Hillers ;
 The ropewalk lends its 'prentice crew, —
 The tories seize the omen :
 " Ay, boys, you 'll soon have work to do
 For England's rebel foemen,
 ' King Hancock,' Adams, and their gang,
 That fire the mob with treason, — When these we shoot and those we hang
 The town will come to reason."

On — on to where the tea-ships ride !
 And now their ranks are forming, —
 A rush, and up the Dartmouth's side
 The Mohawk band is swarming !
 See the fierce natives ! What a glimpse Of paint and fur and feather,
 As all at once the full-grown imps
 Light on the deck together !
 A scarf the pigtail's secret keeps,
 A blanket hides the breeches, —
 And out the curséd cargo leaps,
 And overboard it pitches !

O woman, at the evening board
 So gracious, sweet, and purring,

So happy while the tea is poured,
 So blest while spoons are stirring,
 What martyr can compare with thee,
 The mother, wife, or daughter,
 That night, instead of best Bohea,
 Condemned to milk and water !

Ah, little dreams the quiet dame
 Who plies with rock and spindle
 The patient flax, how great a flame
 Yon little spark shall kindle !
 The lurid morning shall reveal
 A fire no king can smother
 Where British flint and Boston steel
 Have clashed against each other !
 Old charters shrivel in its track,
 His Worship's bench has crumbled,
 It climbs and clasps the union-jack,
 Its blazoned pomp is humbled,
 The flags go down on land and sea
 Like corn before the reapers ;
 So burned the fire that brewed the tea
 That Boston served her keepers !

The waves that wrought a century's wreck
 Have rolled o'er whig and tory ;
 The Mohawks on the Dartmouth's deck
 Still live in song and story ;
 The waters in the rebel bay
 Have kept the tea-leaf savor ;
 Our old North-Enders in their spray Still taste a Hyson flavor ;
 And Freedom's teacup still o'erflows
 With ever fresh libations,
 To cheat of slumber all her foes
 And cheer the wakening nations !

1874.

NEARING THE SNOW-LINE.

SLOW toiling upward from the misty
 vale,
 I leave the bright enamelled zones
 below ;

No more for me their beauteous bloom shall glow,
Their lingering sweetness load the morning gale ;
Few are the slender flowerets, scentless,
pale,
That on their ice-clad stems all trembling blow
Along the margin of unmelting
snow ;
Yet with unsaddened voice thy verge I hail,

White realm of peace above the flowering line ;
Welcome thy frozen domes, thy rocky spires !
O'er thee undimmed the moon-girt planets shine,
On thy majestic altars fade the fires
That filled the air with smoke of vain desires,
And all the unclouded blue of heaven is thine !

IN WAR TIME.

TO CANAAN.

A PURITAN WAR-SONG.

WHERE are you going, soldiers,
 With banner, gun, and sword?
 We're marching South to Canaan
 To battle for the Lord!
 What Captain leads your armies
 Along the rebel coasts?
 The Mighty One of Israel,
 His name is Lord of Hosts!
 To Canaan, to Canaan
 The Lord has led us forth,
 To blow before the heathen walls
 The trumpets of the North!

What flag is this you carry
 Along the sea and shore?
 The same our grandsires lifted up, —
 The same our fathers bore!
 In many a battle's tempest
 It shed the crimson rain, —
 What God has woven in his loom
 Let no man rend in twain!
 To Canaan, to Canaan
 The Lord has led us forth,
 To plant upon the rebel towers
 The banners of the North!

What troop is this that follows,
 All armed with picks and spades?¹
 These are the swarthy bondsmen, —
 The iron-skin brigades!

¹ The captured slaves were at this time organized as pioneers.

They'll pile up Freedom's breastwork, They'll scoop out rebels' graves;
 Who then will be their owner
 And march them off for slaves?
 To Canaan, to Canaan
 The Lord has led us forth,
 To strike upon the captive's chain
 The hammers of the North!

What song is this you're singing?
 The same that Israel sung
 When Moses led the mighty choir,
 And Miriam's timbrel rung!
 To Canaan! To Canaan!
 The priests and maidens cried:
 To Canaan! To Canaan!
 The people's voice replied.
 To Canaan, to Canaan
 The Lord has led us forth,
 To thunder through its adder dens
 The anthems of the North!

When Canaan's hosts are scattered,
 And all her walls lie flat,
 What follows next in order?
 — The Lord will see to that!
 We'll break the tyrant's sceptre, —
 We'll build the people's throne, —
 When half the world is Freedom's,
 Then all the world's our own!
 To Canaan, to Canaan
 The Lord has led us forth,
 To sweep the rebel threshing-floors,
 A whirlwind from the North!

August 12, 1862.

"THUS SAITH THE LORD, I OFFER THEE THREE THINGS."

IN poisonous dens, where traitors hide
Like bats that fear the day,
While all the land our charters claim
Is sweating blood and breathing flame,
Dead to their country's woe and shame,
The recreants whisper STAY!

IN peaceful homes, where patriot fires
On Love's own altars glow,
The mother hides her trembling fear,
The wife, the sister, checks a tear,
To breathe the parting word of cheer,
Soldier of Freedom, Go!

IN halls where Luxury lies at ease,
And Mammon keeps his state, Where flatterers fawn and menials crouch,
The dreamer, startled from his couch,
Wrings a few counters from his pouch,
And murmurs faintly WAIT!

IN weary camps, on trampled plains
That ring with fife and drum,
The battling host, whose harness gleams
Along the crimson-flowing streams,
Calls, like a warning voice in dreams,
We want you, Brother! COME!

Choose ye whose bidding ye will do, —
To go, to wait, to stay!
Sons of the Freedom-loving town,
Heirs of the Fathers' old renown,
The servile yoke, the civic crown,
Await your choice TO-DAY!

The stake is laid! O gallant youth
With yet unsilvered brow, If Heaven should lose and Hell should win,
On whom shall lie the mortal sin,
That cries aloud, It might have been?
God calls you — answer NOW.

1862.

NEVER OR NOW.

AN APPEAL.

LISTEN, young heroes! your country is calling!

Time strikes the hour for the brave and the true!

Now, while the foremost are fighting and falling,

Fill up the ranks that have opened for you!

You whom the fathers made free and defended,

Stain not the scroll that emblazons their fame!

You whose fair heritage spotless descended,

Leave not your children a birthright of shame!

Stay not for questions while Freedom stands gasping!

Wait not till Honor lies wrapped in his pall!

Brief the lips' meeting be, swift the hands' clasping, —

"Off for the wars!" is enough for them all!

Break from the arms that would fondly caress you!

Hark! 't is the bugle-blast, sabres are drawn!

Mothers shall pray for you, fathers shall bless you,

Maidens shall weep for you when you are gone!

Never or now! cries the blood of a nation,

Poured on the turf where the red rose should bloom;

Now is the day and the hour of salvation, —

Never or now ! peals the trumpet of doom !

Never or now ! roars the hoarse-throated cannon

Through the black canopy blotting
the skies ;

Never or now ! flaps the shell-blasted pennon

O'er the deep ooze where the Cumberland lies !

From the foul dens where our brothers are dying,

Aliens and foes in the land of their
birth, —

From the rank swamps where our martyrs are lying

Pleading in vain for a handful of earth, —

From the hot plains where they perish outnumbered,

Furrowed and ridged by the battlefield's plough,

Comes the loud summons ; too long you have slumbered,

Hear the last Angel-trump, — Never or Now !

1862.

ONE COUNTRY.

ONE country ! Treason's writhing asp
Struck madly at her girdle's clasp, And Hatred wrenched with might and
main

To rend its welded links in twain,
While Mammon hugged his golden calf
Content to take one broken half,
While thankless churls stood idly by
And heard unmoved a nation's cry !

One country ! "Nay," — the tyrant crew

Shrieked from their dens, — "it shall be two !

Ill bodes to us this monstrous birth,
That scowls on all the thrones of earth,
Too broad yon starry cluster shines, Too proudly tower the New-World
pines,

Tear down the 'banner of the free,'
And cleave their land from sea to sea !"

One country still, though foe and
"friend"

Our seamless empire strove to rend ;
Safe ! safe ! though all the fiends of hell
Join the red murderers' battle-yell !

What though the lifted sabres gleam,
The cannons frown by shore and stream,—
The sabres clash, the cannons thrill,
In wild accord, One country still !

One country ! in her stress and strain
We heard the breaking of a chain !
Look where the conquering Nation swings

Her iron flail, — its shivered rings !
Forged by the rebels' crimson hand,
That bolt of wrath shall scourge the
land

Till Peace proclaims on sea and shore
One Country now and evermore !

1865.

GOD SAVE THE FLAG!

WASHED in the blood of the brave and the blooming,

Snatched from the altars of insolent
foes,

Burning with star-fires, but never consuming,

Flash its broad ribbons of lily and
rose.

Vainly the prophets of Baal would rend
it,

Vainly his worshippers pray for its
fall ;

“In weary camps, on trampled plains.”

W. P. M. & C.

Thousands have died for it, millions defend it,
Emblem of justice and mercy to all :

Justice that reddens the sky with her terrors,
Mercy that comes with her white-handed train,
Soothing all passions, redeeming all errors,
Sheathing the sabre and breaking the chain.

Borne on the deluge of old usurpations,
Drifted our Ark o'er the desolate seas,
Bearing the rainbow of hope to the nations,
Torn from the storm-cloud and flung to the breeze !

God bless the Flag and its loyal defenders,
While its broad folds o'er the battle-field wave,
Till the dim star-wreath rekindle its splendors,
Washed from its stains in the blood of the brave !

1865.

HYMN

AFTER THE EMANCIPATION PROCLAMATION.

GIVER of all that crowns our days,
With grateful hearts we sing thy praise ;
Through deep and desert led by thee,
Our promised land at last we see.

Ruler of Nations, judge our cause !
If we have kept thy holy laws,

The sons of Belial curse in vain
The day that rends the captive's chain.

Thou God of vengeance ! Israel's Lord !
Break in their grasp the shield and sword,
And make thy righteous judgments known
Till all thy foes are overthrown !

Then, Father, lay thy healing hand
In mercy on our stricken land ;
Lead all its wanderers to the fold,
And be their Shepherd as of old.

So shall one Nation's song ascend
To thee, our Ruler, Father, Friend,
While Heaven's wide arch resounds again
With Peace on earth, good-will to men !
1865.

HYMN

FOR THE FAIR AT CHICAGO.

O GOD ! in danger's darkest hour,
In battle's deadliest field,
Thy name has been our Nation's tower,
Thy truth her help and shield.

Our lips should fill the air with praise,
Nor pay the debt we owe,
So high above the songs we raise
The floods of mercy flow.

Yet thou wilt hear the prayer we speak,
The song of praise we sing, —
Thy children, who thine altar seek Their grateful gifts to bring.

Thine altar is the sufferer's bed,
The home of woe and pain,
The soldier's turfy pillow, red
With battle's crimson rain.

No smoke of burning stains the air,
No incense-clouds arise ;
Thy peaceful servants, Lord, prepare
A bloodless sacrifice.

Lo ! for our wounded brothers' need,
We bear the wine and oil ;

For us they faint, for us they bleed,
For them our gracious toil !

O Father, bless the gifts we bring !
Cause thou thy face to shine,
Till every nation owns her King,
And all the earth is thine.

SONGS OF WELCOME AND FAREWELL.

AMERICA TO RUSSIA.

AUGUST 5, 1866.

READ BY HON. G. V. FOX AT A DINNER GIVEN TO THE MISSION FROM THE UNITED STATES,
ST. PETERSBURG.

THOUGH watery deserts hold apart
The worlds of East and West,
Still beats the selfsame human heart
In each proud Nation's breast.

Our floating turret tempts the main
And dares the howling blast
To clasp more close the golden chain
That long has bound them fast.

In vain the gales of ocean sweep,
In vain the billows roar
That chafe the wild and stormy steep
Of storied Elsinore.

She comes! She comes! her banners dip
In Neva's flashing tide,
With greetings on her cannon's lip,
The storm-god's iron bride!

Peace garlands with the olive-bough
Her thunder-bearing tower,
And plants before her cleaving prow
The sea-foam's milk-white flower.

No prairies heaped their garnered store
To fill her sunless hold,
Not rich Nevada's gleaming ore
Its hidden caves infold,

But lightly as the sea-bird swings
She floats the depths above,
A breath of flame to lend her wings,
Her freight a people's love!

When darkness hid the starry skies
In war's long winter night,
One ray still cheered our straining eyes,
The far-off Northern light!

And now the friendly rays return
From lights that glow afar, Those clustered lamps of Heaven that burn
Around the Western Star.

A nation's love in tears and smiles
We bear across the sea,
O Neva of the banded isles,
We moor our hearts in thee!

WELCOME TO THE GRAND DUKE ALEXIS.

MUSIC HALL, DECEMBER 9, 1871.

SUNG TO THE RUSSIAN NATIONAL AIR BY THE CHILDREN OF THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

SHADOWED so long by the storm-cloud of danger,
Thou whom the prayers of an empire defend,
Welcome, thrice welcome! but not as a stranger,
Come to the nation that calls thee its friend!

Bleak are our shores with the blasts of December,

Fettered and chill is the rivulet's flow ; Throbbing and warm are the hearts that remember

Who was our friend when the world was our foe.

Look on the lips that are smiling to greet
thee,

See the fresh flowers that a people has strewn :

Count them thy sisters and brothers that meet thee ;

Guest of the Nation, her heart is thine own !

Fires of the North, in eternal communion,

Blend your broad flashes with evening's bright star !

God bless the Empire that loves the Great Union ;

Strength to her people ! Long life to the Czar !

AT THE BANQUET TO THE GRAND DUKE ALEXIS.

DECEMBER 9, 1871.

ONE word to the guest we have gathered to greet !

The echoes are longing that word to repeat, —

It springs to the lips that are waiting to part,

For its syllables spell themselves first in the heart.

Its accents may vary, its sound may be strange,

But it bears a kind message that nothing can change ;

The dwellers by Neva its meaning can
tell,

For the smile, its interpreter, shows it full well.

That word ! How it gladdened the Pilgrim of yore,

As he stood in the snow on the desolate
shore !

When the shout of the Sagamore startled his ear

In the phrase of the Saxon, 't was music
to hear !

Ah, little could Samoset offer our sire, —
The cabin, the corn-cake, the seat by the fire ;

He had nothing to give, — the poor lord of the land, —

But he gave him a WELCOME, — his heart in his hand !

The tribe of the Sachem has melted
away,

But the word that he spoke is remembered to-day,

And the page that is red with the record
of shame

The tear-drops have whitened round
Samoset's name.

The word that he spoke to the Pilgrim
of old

May sound like a tale that has often been told ;

But the welcome we speak is as fresh as the dew, —

As the kiss of a lover, that always is new !

Ay, Guest of the Nation ! each roof is thine own

Through all the broad continent's star-battered zone ;

From the shore where the curtain of morn is uprolled,

To the billows that flow through the gateway of gold.

The snow-crested mountains are calling aloud ;

Nevada to Ural speaks out of the cloud,
And Shasta shouts forth, from his throne
in the sky,

To the storm-splintered summits, the peaks of Altai !

You must leave him, they say, till the summer is green !

Both shores are his home, though the waves roll between ;

And then we 'll return him, with thanks for the same,

As fresh and as smiling and tall as he came.

But ours is the region of Arctic delight ;
We can show him Auroras and pole-stars by night ;

There 's a Muscovy sting in the ice-tempered air,

And our firesides are warm and our maidens are fair.

The flowers are full-blown in the garlanded hall, —

They will bloom round his footsteps wherever they fall ;

For the splendors of youth and the sunshine they bring

Make the roses believe 't is the summons of Spring.

One word of our language he needs must know well,

But another remains that is harder to spell ;

We shall speak it so ill, if he wishes to learn

How we utter Farewell, he will have to return !

AT THE BANQUET TO THE CHINESE EMBASSY.

AUGUST 21, 1868.

BROTHERS, whom we may not reach
Through the veil of alien speech,
Welcome ! welcome ! eyes can tell
What the lips in vain would spell, —
Words that hearts can understand, Brothers from the Flowery Land !

We, the evening's latest born,
Hail the children of the morn !
We, the new creation's birth,
Greet the lords of ancient earth,
From their storied walls and towers
Wandering to these tents of ours !

Land of wonders, fair Cathay,
Who long hast shunned the staring day,
Hid in mists of poet's dreams
By thy blue and yellow streams, —
Let us thy shadowed form behold, —
Teach us as thou didst of old.

Knowledge dwells with length of days ;
Wisdom walks in ancient ways ;
Thine the compass that could guide
A nation o'er the stormy tide,
Scourged by passions, doubts, and fears,
Safe through thrice a thousand years !

Looking from thy turrets gray
Thou hast seen the world's decay, —
Egypt drowning in her sands, —
Athens rent by robbers' hands, —
Rome, the wild barbarian's prey,
Like a storm-cloud swept away :

Looking from thy turrets gray
Still we see thee. Where are they ?
And lo ! a new-born nation waits,
Sitting at the golden gates
That glitter by the sunset sea, —
Waits with outspread arms for thee !

Open wide, ye gates of gold,
To the Dragon's banner-fold !
Builders of the mighty wall,
Bid your mountain barriers fall !
So may the girdle of the sun Bind the East and West in one,

Till Mount Shasta's breezes fan
The snowy peaks of Ta Sieue-Shan, —
Till Erie blends its waters blue
With the waves of Tung-Ting-Hu, —
Till deep Missouri lends its flow
To swell the rushing Hoang-Ho !

AT THE BANQUET TO THE JAPANESE EMBASSY.

AUGUST 2, 1872.

WE welcome you, Lords of the Land of
the Sun !
The voice of the many sounds feebly through one ;
Ah ! would 't were a voice of more musical tone,
But the dog-star is here, and the songbirds have flown.

And what shall I sing that can cheat you of smiles,
Ye heralds of peace from the Orient isles ?
If only the Jubilee — Why did you wait ?
You are welcome, but oh ! you're a little too late !

We have greeted our brothers of Ireland and France, Round the fiddle of Strauss we have joined in the dance,
We have lagered Herr Saro, that fine-looking man,
And glorified Godfrey, whose name it is Dan.

What a pity ! we've missed it and you've missed it too,
We had a day ready and waiting for you ;
We'd have shown you — provided, of course, you had come — You'd have heard — no, you would n't, because it was dumb.

And then the great organ ! The chorus's shout !
Like the mixture teetotalers call, " Cold without " —
A mingling of elements, strong, but not sweet ;
And the drum, just referred to, that
" could n't be beat."

The shrines of our pilgrims are not like
your own,
Where white Fusi-yama lifts proudly its cone, (The snow-mantled mountain we see on the fan
That cools our hot cheeks with a breeze from Japan.)

But ours the wide temple where worship is free
As the wind of the prairie, the wave of the sea ;
You may build your own altar wherever you will,
For the roof of that temple is over you still.

One dome overarches the star-bannered
shore ;
You may enter the Pope's or the Puritan's door,
Or pass with the Buddhist his gateway of bronze,
For a priest is but Man, be he bishop or bonze.

And the lesson we teach with the sword and the pen

Is to all of God's children, " We also are men !

If you wrong us we smart, if you prick us we bleed,

If you love us, no quarrel with color or creed ! "

You 'll find us a well-meaning, free-spoken crowd,

Good-natured enough, but a little too loud, —

To be sure there is always a bit of a row
When we choose our Tycoon, and especially now.

You 'll take it all calmly, — we want you to see

What a peaceable fight such a contest can be,

And of one thing be certain, however it ends,

You will find that our voters have chosen your friends.

If the horse that stands saddled is first in the race,

You will greet your old friend with the weed in his face,

And if the white hat and the White House agree,

You 'll find H. G. really as loving as he.

But O, what a pity — once more I must say —

That we could not have joined in a " Japanese day " !

Such greeting we give you to-night as we can ;

Long life to our brothers and friends of Japan !

The Lord of the mountain looks down from his crest

As the banner of morning unfurls in the West ;

The Eagle was always the friend of the Sun ;

You are welcome ! — The song of the cage-bird is done.

BRYANT'S SEVENTIETH BIRTHDAY.

NOVEMBER 3, 1864.

O EVEN-HANDED Nature ! we confess
This life that men so honor, love, and bless

Has filled thine olden measure. Not the less

We count the precious seasons that remain ;

Strike not the level of the golden grain,
But heap it high with years, that earth may gain

What heaven can lose, — for heaven is rich in song :

Do not all poets, dying, still prolong
Their broken chants amid the seraph throng,

Where, blind no more, Ionia's bard is seen,

And England's heavenly minstrel sits between

The Mantuan and the wan-cheeked Florentine ?

— This was the first sweet singer in the cage

Of our close-woven life. A new-born age

Claims in his vesper song its heritage :

Spare us, O, spare us long our heart's desire !

Moloch, who calls our children through the fire,

Leaves us the gentle master of the lyre.

We count not on the dial of the sun
The hours, the minutes, that his sands have run ;
Rather, as on those flowers that one by one

From earliest dawn their ordered bloom display
Till evening's planet with her guiding ray Leads in the blind old mother of the
day,

We reckon by his songs, each song a
flower,
The long, long daylight, numbering hour by hour,
Each breathing sweetness like a bridal bower.

His morning glory shall we e'er forget?
His noontide's full-blown lily coronet?
His evening primrose has not opened yet ;

Nay, even if creeping Time should hide
the skies
In midnight from his century-laden
eyes,
Darkened like his who sang of Paradise,

Would not some hidden song-bud open bright
As the resplendent cactus of the night
That floods the gloom with fragrance and with light ?

— How can we praise the verse whose music flows
With solemn cadence and majestic close, Pure as the dew that filters through the rose ?

How shall we thank him that in evil
days

He faltered never, — nor for blame, nor
praise,
Nor hire, nor party, shamed his earlier lays ?

But as his boyhood was of manliest hue,
So to his youth his manly years were
true,
All dyed in royal purple through and
through !

He for whose touch the lyre of Heaven is strung Needs not the flattering toil of mortal
tongue :
Let not the singer grieve to die unsung !

Marbles forget their message to mankind :
In his own verse the poet still we find,
In his own page his memory lives enshrined,

As in their amber sweets the smothered bees, —
As the fair cedar, fallen before the breeze,
Lies self-embalmed amidst the mouldering trees.

— Poets, like youngest children, never grow
Out of their mother's fondness. Nature so Holds their soft hands, and will not let them go,

Till at the last they track with even feet
Her rhythmic footsteps, and their pulses beat Twinned with her pulses, and their lips repeat

The secrets she has told them, as their
own :

Thus is the inmost soul of Nature known,
And the rapt minstrel shares her awful
throne!

O lover of her mountains and her woods,
Her bridal chamber's leafy solitudes,
Where Love himself with tremulous step intrudes,

Her snows fall harmless on thy sacred
fire:
Far be the day that claims thy sounding
lyre
To join the music of the angel choir!

Yet, since life's amplest measure must be filled,
Since throbbing hearts must be forever stilled,
And all must fade that evening sunsets
gild,

Grant, Father, ere he close the mortal
eyes
That see a Nation's reeking sacrifice,
Its smoke may vanish from these blackened skies!

Then, when his summons comes, since come it must,
And, looking heavenward with unfaltering trust,
He wraps his drapery round him for the dust,

His last fond glance will show him o'er
his head
The Northern fires beyond the zenith spread
In lambent glory, blue and white and red, —

The Southern cross without its bleeding load,

The milky way of peace all freshly strowed,
And every white-throned star fixed in its lost abode!

AT A DINNER TO GENERAL GRANT.

JULY 31, 1865.

WHEN treason first began the strife
That crimsoned sea and shore,
The Nation poured her hoarded life
On Freedom's threshing-floor;
From field and prairie, east and west,
From coast and hill and plain,
The sheaves of ripening manhood pressed Thick as the bearded grain.

Rich was the harvest; souls as true
As ever battle tried;
But fiercer still the conflict grew,
The floor of death more wide;
Ah, who forgets that dreadful day
Whose blot of grief and shame
Four bitter years scarce wash away
In seas of blood and flame?

Vain, vain the Nation's lofty boasts, — Vain all her sacrifice!
"Give me a man to lead my hosts,
O God in heaven!" she cries.
While Battle whirls his crushing flail,
And plies his winnowing fan, —
Thick flies the chaff on every gale, —
She cannot find her man!

Bravely they fought who failed to win, —
Our leaders battle-scarred, —
Fighting the hosts of hell and sin,
But devils die always hard!
Blame not the broken tools of God
That helped our sorest needs;
Through paths that martyr feet have trod
The conqueror's step he leads.

But now the heavens grow black with
doubt,

The ravens fill the sky,
"Friends" plot within, foes storm without,

Hark, — that despairing cry,
"Where is the heart, the hand, the brain

To dare, to do, to plan?"
The bleeding Nation shrieks in vain, —
She has not found her man!

A little echo stirs the air, —
Some tale, whate'er it be,
Of rebels routed in their lair
Along the Tennessee.
The little echo spreads and grows,
And soon the trump of Fame Had taught the Nation's friends and foes
The "man on horseback" 's name.

So well his warlike wooing sped,
No fortress might resist
His billets-doux of lispng lead,
The bayonets in his fist, —
With kisses from his cannons' mouth
He made his passion known Till Vicksburg, vestal of the South, Unbound her virgin zone.

And still where'er his banners led
He conquered as he came,
The trembling hosts of treason fled
Before his breath of flame,
And Fame's still gathering echoes grew Till high o'er Richmond's towers
The starry fold of Freedom flew,
And all the land was ours.

Welcome from fields where valor fought
To feasts where pleasure waits ;
A Nation gives you smiles nubought
At all her opening gates !

Forgive us when we press your hand, —
Your war-worn features scan, —
God sent you to a bleeding land ;
Our Nation found its man !

AT A DINNER TO ADMIRAL FARRAGUT.

JULY 6, 1865.

Now, smiling friends and shipmates all,
Since half our battle 's won,
A broadside for our Admiral !
— Load every crystal gun !
Stand ready till I give the word, —
— You won't have time to tire, —
And when that glorious name is heard,
Then hip ! hurrah ! and fire !

Bow foremost sinks the rebel craft, —
Our eyes not sadly turn
And see the pirates huddling aft
To drop their raft astern ;
Soon o'er the sea-worm's destined prey
The lifted wave shall close, —
So perish from the face of day
All Freedom's banded foes !

But ah ! what splendors fire the sky !
What glories greet the morn !
The storm-tost banner streams on high
Its heavenly hues new-born !
Its red fresh dyed in heroes' blood,
Its peaceful white more pure,
To float unstained o'er field and flood
While earth and seas endure !

All shapes before the driving blast
Must glide from mortal view ;
Black roll the billows of the past Behind the present's blue,
Fast, fast, are lessening in the light
The names of high renown, — Van Tromp's proud besom fades from sight,
And Nelson's half hull down !

Scarce one tall frigate walks the sea
 Or skirts the safer shores
 Of all that bore to victory
 Our stout old Commodores ; Hull, Bainbridge, Porter, — where are they ?
 The waves their answer roll,
 "Still bright in memory's sunset ray, — God rest each gallant soul !"

A brighter name must dim their light
 With more than noontide ray,
 The Sea-King of the "River Fight,"
 The Conqueror of the Bay, —
 Now then the broadside ! cheer on cheer
 To greet him safe on shore !
 Health, peace, and many a bloodless year
 To fight his battles o'er !

A TOAST TO WILKIE COLLINS.

FEBRUARY 16, 1874.

THE painter's and the poet's fame Shed their twinned lustre round his
 name,
 To gild our story-teller's art,
 Where each in turn must play his part.

What scenes from Wilkie's pencil sprung,
 The minstrel saw but left unsung !
 What shapes the pen of Collins drew,
 No painter elad in living hue !

But on our artist's shadowy screen
 A stranger miracle is seen Than priest unveils or pilgrim seeks, —
 The poem breathes, the picture speaks !

And so his double name comes true,
 They christened better than they knew,
 And Art proclaims him twice her son, —
 Painter and poet, both in one !

TO H. W. LONGFELLOW.

BEFORE HIS DEPARTURE FOR EUROPE,
 MAY 27, 1868.

OUR Poet, who has taught the Western breeze
 To waft his songs before him o'er the seas,
 Will find them wheresoe'er his wanderings reach Borne on the spreading tide of English
 speech
 Twin with the rhythmic waves that kiss the farthest beach.

Where shall the singing bird a stranger
 be
 That finds a nest for him in every tree ?
 How shall he travel who can never go Where his own voice the echoes do not know,
 Where his own garden flowers no longer learn to grow ?

Ah, gentlest soul ! how gracious, how benign Breathes through our troubled life that voice of thine,
 Filled with a sweetness born of happier spheres,
 That wins and warms, that kindles,
 softens, cheers,
 That calms the wildest woe and stays the bitterest tears !

Forgive the simple words that sound like praise ;
 The mist before me dims my gilded phrase ;
 Our speech at best is half alive and
 cold,
 And save that tenderer moments make us bold
 Our whitening lips would close, their truest truth untold.

We who behold our autumn sun below
 The Scorpion's sign, against the Archer's bow,
 Know well what parting means of friend from friend ;
 After the snows no freshening dews descend,
 And what the frost has marred, the sunshine will not mend.

So we all count the months, the weeks,
 the days,
 That keep thee from us in unwonted
 ways, Grudging to alien hearths our widowed
 time ;
 And one has shaped a breath in artless
 rhyme
 That sighs, " We track thee still through each remotest clime."

What wishes, longings, blessings, prayers shall be
 The more than golden freight that floats with thee !
 And know, whatever welcome thou shalt find, — Thou who hast won the hearts of half mankind, —
 The proudest, fondest love thou leavest still behind !

TO CHRISTIAN GOTTFRIED EHREN-BERG.

FOR HIS "JUBILÆUM" AT BERLIN,
 NOVEMBER 5, 1868.

THOU who hast taught the teachers of mankind
 How from the least of things the mightiest grow,
 What marvel jealous Nature made thee
 blind,
 Lest man should learn what angels long to know ?

Thou in the flinty rock, the river's flow,
 In the thick-moted sunbeam's sifted
 light
 Hast trained thy downward-pointed tube
 to show
 Worlds within worlds unveiled to mortal sight,
 Even as the patient watchers of the night, —
 The cyclope gleaners of the fruitful
 skies, —
 Show the wide misty way where heaven is white
 All paved with suns that daze our wondering eyes.

Far o'er the stormy deep an empire lies,
 Beyond the storied islands of the blest,
 That waits to see the lingering day-star
 rise ;
 The forest-cinctured Eden of the West ;
 Whose queen, fair Freedom, twines her iron crest
 With leaves from every wreath that mortals wear,
 But loves the sober garland ever best That Science lends the sage's silvered
 hair ;—
 Science, who makes life's heritage more
 fair,
 Forging for every lock its mastering key,
 Filling with life and hope the stagnant
 air, Pouring the light of Heaven o'er land and sea !
 From her unseptred realm we come to
 thee,
 Bearing our slender tribute in our
 hands ;
 Deem it not worthless, humble though it be,
 Set by the larger gifts of older lands :

The smallest fibres weave the strongest bands, —

In narrowest tubes the sovereign nerves are spun, —

A little cord along the deep sea-sands Makes the live thought of severed nations one :

Thy fame has journeyed westering with
the sun,

Prairies and lone sierras know thy
name

And the long day of service nobly done
That crowns thy darkened evening with its flame !

One with the grateful world, we own thy
claim, —

Nay, rather claim our right to join the throng

Who come with varied tongues, but hearts the same,

To hail thy festal morn with smiles and song ;

Ah, happy they to whom the joys belong

Of peaceful triumphs that can never die
From History's record, — not of gilded
wrong,

But golden truths that while the world goes by

With all its empty pageant, blazoned
high

Around the Master's name forever
shine !

So shines thy name illumined in the sky, —

Such joys, such triumphs, such remembrance thine !

MEMORIAL VERSES.

FOR THE SERVICES IN MEMORY OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

CITY OF BOSTON, JUNE 1, 1865.

CHORAL: Luther's "Judgment Hymn."

O THOU of soul and sense and breath,
The ever-present Giver,
Unto thy mighty Angel, Death,
All flesh thou dost deliver ;
What most we cherish we resign,
For life and death alike are thine,
Who reignest Lord forever !

Our hearts lie buried in the dust
With him so true and tender,
The patriot's stay, the people's trust,
The shield of the offender ;
Yet every murmuring voice is still,
As, bowing to thy sovereign will,
Our best-loved we surrender.

Dear Lord, with pitying eye behold
This martyr generation,
Which thou, through trials manifold,
Art showing thy salvation !
O let the blood by murder spilt
Wash out thy stricken children's guilt
And sanctify our nation !

Be thou thy orphaned Israel's friend, Forsake thy people never,
In One our broken Many blend,
That none again may sever !
Hear us, O Father, while we raise
With trembling lips our song of praise,
And bless thy name forever !

FOR THE COMMEMORATION SER-VICES.

CAMBRIDGE, JULY 21, 1865.

FOUR summers coined their golden light in leaves,
Four wasteful autumns flung them to the gale,
Four winters wore the shroud the tempest weaves,
The fourth wan April weeps o'er hill and vale ;

And still the war-clouds scowl on sea and land,
With the red gleams of battle staining
through,
When lo ! as parted by an angel's
hand,
They open, and the heavens again are blue !

Which is the dream, the present or the
past ?
The night of anguish or the joyous
morn ?
The long, long years with horrors over-
cast,
Or the sweet promise of the day newborn ?

Tell us, O father, as thine arms infold Thy belted first-born in their fast embrace,
Murmuring the prayer the patriarch breathed of old, —
" Now let me die, for I have seen thy face ! "

“And ye who mourn your dead, — how sternly true
The crushing hour that wrenched their lives away.”

Tell us, O mother, — nay, thou canst
not speak,

But thy fond eyes shall answer, brimmed with joy, —

Press thy mute lips against the sunbrowned cheek,

Is this a phantom, — thy returning
boy ?

Tell us, O maiden — Ah, what canst thou tell

That Nature's record is not first to teach, —

The open volume all can read so well,
With its twin rose-hued pages full of speech ?

And ye who mourn your dead, — how sternly true

The crushing hour that wrenched their lives away,

Shadowed with sorrow's midnight veil
for you,

For them the dawning of immortal
day !

Dream-like these years of conflict, not a
dream !

Death, ruin, ashes tell the awful tale,
Read by the flaming war-track's lurid
gleam :

No dream, but truth that turns the nations pale !

For on the pillar raised by martyr
hands

Burns the rekindled beacon of the right,

Sowing its seeds of fire o'er all the lands, —

Thrones look a century older in its light !

Rome had her triumphs ; round the con-queror's car

The ensigns waved, the brazen clarions blew,

And o'er the reeking spoils of bandit war

With outspread wings the cruel eagles
flew ;

Arms, treasures, captives, kings in clank-ing chains

Urged on by trampling cohorts bronzed and scarred,

And wild-eyed wonders snared on Lybian plains,

Lion and ostrich and camelopard.

Vain all that prætors clutched, that consuls brought

When Rome's returning legions crowned their lord ;

Less than the least brave deed these hands have wrought,

We clasp, unclenching from the bloody sword.

Theirs was the mighty work that seers foretold ;

They know not half their glorious toil
has won,

For this is Heaven's same battle, — joined of old

When Athens fought for us at Marathon !

— Behold a vision none hath understood !

The breaking of the Apocalyptic seal ; Twice rings the summons. — Hail and fire and blood !

Then the third angel blows his trumpet-peal.

Loud wail the dwellers on the myrtle coasts,

The green savannas swell the maddened cry,

And with a yell from all the demon hosts Falls the great star called Wormwood from the sky !

Bitter it mingles with the poisoned flow
Of the warm rivers winding to the shore,

Thousands must drink the waves of death and woe,

But the star Wormwood stains the heavens no more !

Peace smiles at last ; the Nation calls her sons

To sheathe the sword ; her battle-flag
she furls,

Speaks in glad thunders from unshotted
guns,

No terror shrouded in the smoke-wreath's curls.

O ye that fought for Freedom, living,
dead,

One sacred host of God's anointed Queen,

For every holy drop your veins have shed
We breathe a welcome to our bowers
of green !

Welcome, ye living ! from the foeman's gripe

Your country's banner it was yours to wrest, —

Ah, many a forehead shows the banner-stripe,

And stars, once crimson, hallow many a breast.

And ye, pale heroes, who from glory's
bed

Mark when your old battalions form in line,

Move in their marching ranks with noiseless tread,

And shape unheard the evening coun-tersign,

Come with your comrades, the returning
brave ;

Shoulder to shoulder they await you
here ;

These lent the life their martyr-brothers gave, —

Living and dead alike forever dear !

EDWARD EVERETT.

“OUR FIRST CITIZEN.”¹

WINTER's cold drift lies glistening o'er
his breast ;

For him no spring shall bid the leaf
unfold :

What Love could speak, by sudden grief oppressed,

What swiftly summoned Memory tell,
is told.

Even as the bells, in one consenting chime,

Filled with their sweet vibrations all
the air,

So joined all voices, in that mournful
time,

His genius, wisdom, virtues, to declare.

What place is left for words of measured
praise,

Till calm-eyed History, with her iron
pen,

Grooves in the unchanging rock the final phrase

That shapes his image in the souls of
men ?

Yet while the echoes still repeat his
name,

While countless tongues his full-orbed life rehearse,

¹ Read at the meeting of the Massachusetts Historical Society, January 30, 1865.

Love, by his beating pulses taught, will
claim

The breath of song, the tuneful throb of verse, —

Verse that, in ever-changing ebb and
flow,

Moves, like the laboring heart, with rush and rest,

Or swings in solemn cadence, sad and slow,

Like the tired heaving of a grief-worn
breast.

— This was a mind so rounded, so complete ;

No partial gift of Nature in excess ;

That, like a single stream where many
meet,

Each separate talent counted something less.

A little hillock, if it lonely stand,

Holds o'er the fields an undisputed
reign ;

While the broad summit of the table-
land

Seems with its belt of clouds a level
plain.

Servant of all his powers, that faithful
slave,

Unsleeping Memory, strengthening with his toils,

To every ruder task his shoulder gave,
And loaded every day with golden spoils.

Order, the law of Heaven, was throned supreme

O'er action, instinct, impulse, feeling,
thought ;

True as the dial's shadow to the beam,
Each hour was equal to the charge it brought.

Too large his compass for the nicer skill
That weighs the world of science grain by grain ;

All realms of knowledge owned the mastering will

That claimed the franchise of its whole domain.

Earth, air, sea, sky, the elemental fire,
Art, history, song, — what meanings lie in each

Found in his cunning hand a stringless
lyre,

And poured their mingling music through his speech.

Thence flowed those anthems of our fes-
tal days,

Whose ravishing division held apart

The lips of listening throngs in sweet amaze,

Moved in all breasts the selfsame human heart.

Subdued his accents, as of one who tries To press some care, some haunting sadness down ;

His smile half shadow ; and to stranger
eyes

The kingly forehead wore an iron crown.

He was not armed to wrestle with the storm,

To fight for homely truth with vulgar
power ;

Grace looked from every feature, shaped his form, —

The rose of Academe, — the perfect
flower !

Such was the stately scholar whom we knew

In those ill days of soul-enslaving
calm,

Before the blast of Northern vengeance blew

Her snow-wreathed pine against the Southern palm.

Ah, God forgive us! did we hold too
cheap

The heart we might have known, but would not see,

And look to find the nation's friend asleep

Through the dread hour of her Gethsemane?

That wrong is past; we gave him up to Death

With all a hero's honors round his
name;

As martyrs coin their blood, he coined his breath,

And dimmed the scholar's in the patriot's fame.

So shall we blazon on the shaft we raise, —

Telling our grief, our pride, to unborn years, —

“He who had lived the mark of all men's praise

Died with the tribute of a Nation's tears.”

SHAKESPEARE.

TERCENTENNIAL CELEBRATION.

APRIL 23, 1864.

“WHO claims our Shakespeare from that realm unknown,

Beyond the storm-vexed islands of the deep,

Where Genoa's roving mariner was blown?

Her twofold Saint's-day let our England keep;

Shall warring aliens share her holy task?”

The Old World echoes ask.

O land of Shakespeare! ours with all thy past,

Till these last years that make the sea so wide,

Think not the jar of battle's trumpet-
blast

Has dulled our aching sense to joyous pride

In every noble word thy sons bequeathed
The air our fathers breathed!

War-wasted, haggard, panting from the strife,

We turn to other days and far-off
lands,

Live o'er in dreams the Poet's faded life, Come with fresh lilies in our fevered
hands

To wreath his bust, and scatter purple
flowers, —

Not his the need, but ours!

We call those poets who are first to mark

Through earth's dull mist the coming of the dawn, —

Who see in twilight's gloom the first pale spark,

While others only note that day is gone;

For him the Lord of light the curtain rent

That veils the firmament.

The greatest for its greatness is half
known,

Stretching beyond our narrow quadrant-lines, —

As in that world of Nature all outgrown
Where Calaveras lifts his awful pines,

And cast from Mariposa's mountain-wall
Nevada's cataracts fall.

Yet heaven's remotest orb is partly ours,
Throbbing its radiance like a beating heart;

In the wide compass of angelic powers
The instinct of the blindworm has its part;

So in God's kingliest creature we behold
The flower our buds infold.

With no vain praise we mock the stone-carved name

Stamped once on dust that moved with pulse and breath,
As thinking to enlarge that amplest fame

Whose undimmed glories gild the night of death:

We praise not star or sun; in these we see

Thee, Father, only thee!

Thy gifts are beauty, wisdom, power, and love:

We read, we reverence on this human soul,—

Earth's clearest mirror of the light above,—

Plain as the record on thy prophet's scroll,

When o'er his page the effluent splendors poured,

Thine own, "Thus saith the Lord!"

This player was a prophet from on high,
Thine own elected. Statesman, poet, sage,

For him thy sovereign pleasure passed them by;

Sidney's fair youth, and Raleigh's ripened age,

Spenser's chaste soul, and his imperial mind
Who taught and shamed mankind.

Therefore we bid our hearts' Te Deum rise,

Nor fear to make thy worship less divine,

And hear the shouted choral shake the skies,

Counting all glory, power, and wisdom thine;

For thy great gift thy greater name adore,

And praise thee evermore!

In this dread hour of Nature's utmost need,

Thanks for these unstained drops of freshening dew!

O, while our martyrs fall, our heroes bleed,

Keep us to every sweet remembrance true,

Till from this blood-red sunset springs new-born

Our Nation's second morn!

IN MEMORY OF JOHN AND ROBERT WARE.

READ AT THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE MASSACHUSETTS MEDICAL SOCIETY, MAY 25, 1864.

No mystic charm, no mortal art,

Can bid our loved companions stay;
The bands that clasp them to our heart

Snap in death's frost and fall apart;

Like shadows fading with the day,

They pass away.

The young are stricken in their pride,

The old, long tottering, faint and fall;

Master and scholar, side by side,

Through the dark portals silent glide,
That open in life's mouldering wall
And close on all.

Our friend's, our teacher's task was done,
When Mercy called him from on high ;
A little cloud had dimmed the sun,
The saddening hours had just begun,
And darker days were drawing nigh :
'T was time to die.

A whiter soul, a fairer mind,
A life with purer course and aim,
A gentler eye, a voice more kind,
We may not look on earth to find.
The love that lingers o'er his name
Is more than fame.

These blood-red summers ripen fast ;
The sons are older than the sires ;
Ere yet the tree to earth is cast,
The sapling falls before the blast ;
Life's ashes keep their covered fires, —
Its flame expires.

Struck by the noiseless, viewless foe, Whose deadlier breath than shot or shell
Has laid the best and bravest low,
His boy, all bright in morning's glow,
That high-souled youth he loved so
well,
Untimely fell.

Yet still he wore his placid smile,
And, trustful in the cheering creed
That strives all sorrow to beguile, Walked calmly on his way awhile :
Ah, breast that leans on breaking reed
Must ever bleed !

So they both left us, sire and son,
With opening leaf, with laden bough :
The youth whose race was just begun,
The wearied man whose course was run,
Its record written on his brow,
Are brothers now.

Brothers ! — The music of the sound Breathes softly through my closing
strain ;

The floor we tread is holy ground,
Those gentle spirits hovering round,
While our fair circle joins again
Its broken chain.

1864.

HUMBOLDT'S BIRTHDAY.

CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION, SEPTEMBER 14, 1869.

BONAPARTE, AUGUST 15, 1769. — HUMBOLDT, SEPTEMBER 14, 1769.

ERE yet the warning chimes of midnight
sound,
Set back the flaming index of the year,
Track the swift-shifting seasons in their round
Through fivescore circles of the swinging sphere.

Lo, in yon islet of the midland sea
That cleaves the storm-cloud with its snowy crest,
The embryo-heir of Empires yet to be,
A month-old babe upon his mother's
breast.

Those little hands that soon shall grow so strong
In their rude grasp great thrones shall rock and fall,
Press her soft bosom, while a nursery
song
Holds the world's master in its slender thrall.

Look ! a new crescent bends its silver
bow ;
A new-lit star has fired the eastern
sky ;

Hark ! by the river where the lindens
 blow
 A waiting household hears an infant's
 cry.

This, too, a conqueror ! His the vast domain,
 Wider than widest sceptre-shadowed
 lands ;
 Earth, and the weltering kingdom of the main Laid their broad charters in his royal
 hands.

His was no taper lit in cloistered cage,
 Its glimmer borrowed from the grove or porch ;
 He read the record of the planet's page
 By Etna's glare and Cotopaxi's torch.

He heard the voices of the pathless woods ;
 On the salt steppes he saw the starlight shine ;
 He scaled the mountain's windy solitudes,
 And trod the galleries of the breathless mine.

For him no fingering of the love-strung
 lyre,
 No problem vague, by torturing school-men vexed ;
 He fed no broken altar's dying fire,
 Nor skulked and scowled behind a Rabbi's text.

For God's new truth he claimed the kingly robe
 That priestly shoulders counted all their own,
 Unrolled the gospel of the storied globe
 And led young Science to her empty
 throne.

While the round planet on its axle spins
 One fruitful year shall boast its double
 birth,
 And show the cradles of its mighty twins,
 Master and Servant of the sons of earth.

Which wears the garland that shall never fade,
 Sweet with fair memories that can never die ?
 Ask not the marbles where their bones are laid,
 But bow thine ear to hear thy brothers'
 cry :—

“Tear up the despot's laurels by the root,
 Like mandrakes, shrieking as they quit the soil !
 Feed us no more upon the blood-red fruit
 That sucks its crimson from the heart of Toil !

“We claim the food that fixed our mortal fate, —
 Bend to our reach the long-forbidden
 tree !
 The angel frowned at Eden's eastern gate, —
 Its western portal is forever free !

“Bring the white blossoms of the waning
 year,
 Heap with full hands the peaceful con-queror's shrine
 Whose bloodless triumphs cost no sufferer's tear !
 Hero of knowledge, be our tribute thine !”

POEM

AT THE DEDICATION OF THE HALLECK
MONUMENT, JULY 8, 1869.

SAY not the Poet dies !
Though in the dust he lies,
He cannot forfeit his melodious breath,
Unspurred by envious death !
Life drops the voiceless myriads from its roll ;
Their fate he cannot share,
Who, in the enchanted air
Sweet with the lingering strains that Echo stole,
Has left his dearer self, the music of his soul !

We o'er his turf may raise
Our notes of feeble praise,
And carve with pious care for after
eyes
The stone with " Here he lies " ;
He for himself has built a nobler
shrine,
Whose walls of stately rhyme
Roll back the tides of time, While o'er their gates the gleaming tablets shine
That wear his name inwrought with many a golden line !

Call not our Poet dead,
Though on his turf we tread !
Green is the wreath their brows so long have worn, —
The minstrels of the morn,
Who, while the Orient burned with newborn flame,
Caught that celestial fire
And struck a Nation's lyre !
These taught the western winds the poet's name ;
Theirs the first opening buds, the maiden flowers of fame !

Count not our Poet dead !
The stars shall watch his bed,
The rose of June its fragrant life renew
His blushing mound to strew,
And all the tuneful throats of summer
swell
With trills as crystal-clear
As when he wooed the ear
Of the young muse that haunts each wooded dell,
With songs of that " rough land " he loved so long and well !

He sleeps ; he cannot die !
As evening's long-drawn sigh, Lifting the rose-leaves on his peaceful
mound,
Spreads all their sweets around,
So, laden with his song, the breezes
blow
From where the rustling sedge
Frets our rude ocean's edge
To the smooth sea beyond the peaks of snow.
His soul the air enshrines and leaves but dust below !

HYMN

FOR THE CELEBRATION AT THE LAY-ING OF THE CORNER-STONE OF HAR-VARD MEMORIAL HALL, CAMBRIDGE,
OCTOBER 6, 1870.

NOT with the anguish of hearts that are breaking Come we as mourners to weep for our
dead ;
Grief in our breasts has grown weary of aching,
Green is the turf where our tears we have shed.

While o'er their marbles the mosses are creeping,

Stealing each name and its legend
away,
Give their proud story to Memory's keeping,
Shrined in the temple we hallow today.

Hushed are their battle-fields, ended their marches,
Deaf are their ears to the drum-beat of morn, —
Rise from the sod, ye fair columns and arches !
Tell their bright deeds to the ages unborn !

Emblem and legend may fade from the portal, Keystone may crumble and pillar may
fall ;
They were the builders whose work is immortal,
Crowned with the dome that is over us all !

HYMN

FOR THE DEDICATION OF MEMORIAL HALL AT CAMBRIDGE, JUNE 23, 1874.

WHERE, girt around by savage foes,
Our nurturing Mother's shelter rose,
Behold, the lofty temple stands,
Reared by her children's grateful hands !

Firm are the pillars that defy
The volleyed thunders of the sky ; Sweet are the summer wreaths that twine
With bud and flower our martyrs'
shrine.

The hues their tattered colors bore
Fall mingling on the sunlit floor

Till evening spreads her spangled pall,
And wraps in shade the storied hall.

Firm were their hearts in danger's
hour,
Sweet was their manhood's morning
flower,
Their hopes with rainbow hues were bright, —
How swiftly winged the sudden night !

O Mother ! on thy marble page
Thy children read, from age to age,
The mighty word that upward leads Through noble thought to nobler deeds.

TRUTH, heaven-born TRUTH, their fearless guide,
Thy saints have lived, thy heroes
died ;
Our love has reared their earthly shrine,
Their glory be forever thine !

HYMN

AT THE FUNERAL SERVICES OF CHARLES
SUMNER, APRIL 29, 1874.

SUNG BY MALE VOICES TO A NATIONAL AIR OF HOLLAND.

ONCE more, ye sacred towers,
Your solemn dirges sound ;
Strew, loving hands, the April flowers,
Once more to deck his mound.
A nation mourns its dead,
Its sorrowing voices one,
As Israel's monarch bowed his head
And cried, " My son ! My son ! "

Why mourn for him ? — For him
The welcome angel came Ere yet his eye with age was dim
Or bent his stately frame ;

His weapon still was bright,
His shield was lifted high
To slay the wrong, to save the right, —
What happier hour to die ?

Thou orderest all things well ;
Thy servant's work was done ;

He lived to hear Oppression's knell,
The shouts for Freedom won.
Hark ! from the opening skies
The anthem's echoing swell, —
"O mourning Land, lift up thine
eyes !
God reigneth. All is well !"

RHYMES OF AN HOUR.

ADDRESS

FOR THE OPENING OF THE FIFTH AVENUE THEATRE, NEW YORK, DECEMBER 3, 1873.

HANG out our banners on the stately tower !
 It dawns at last — the long-expected hour !
 The steep is climbed, the star-lit summit won,
 The builder's task, the artist's labor done ;
 Before the finished work the herald stands,
 And asks the verdict of your lips and hands !

Shall rosy daybreak make us all forget
 The golden sun that yester-evening set ?
 Fair was the fabric doomed to pass away
 Ere the last headaches born of New Year's Day ;
 With blasting breath the fierce destroyer came
 And wrapped the victim in his robes of flame ;
 The pictured sky with redder morning blushed,
 With scorching streams the naiad's fountain gushed,
 With kindling mountains glowed the funeral pyre,

Forests ablaze and rivers all on fire, —
 The scenes dissolved, the shrivelling curtain fell, —
 Art spread her wings and sighed a long farewell !

Mourn o'er the Player's melancholy plight, —
 Falstaff in tears, Othello deadly white, — Poor Romeo reckoning what his doublet cost,
 And Juliet whimpering for her dresses lost, —
 Their wardrobes burned, their salaries all undrawn,
 Their cues cut short, their occupation gone !

“Lie there in dust,” the red-winged demon cried, “Wreck of the lordly city's hope and pride !”
 Silent they stand, and stare with vacant gaze,
 While o'er the embers leaps the fitful blaze ;
 When, lo ! a hand, before the startled train,
 Writes in the ashes, “It shall rise again, — Rise and confront its elemental foes !” —
 The word was spoken, and the walls arose,
 And ere the seasons round their brief career

The new-born temple waits the unborn year.

Ours was the toil of many a weary
day
Your smiles, your plaudits, only can repay;
We are the monarchs of the painted
scenes,
You, you alone the real Kings and Queens!
Lords of the little kingdom where we meet,
We lay our gilded sceptres at your feet,
Place in your grasp our portal's silvered keys
With one brief utterance— We have tried to please.
Tell us, ye Sovereigns of the new do-
main,
Are you content — or have we toiled in
vain?

With no irreverent glances look around
The realm you rule, for this is haunted
ground!
Here stalks the Sorcerer, here the Fairy trips,
Here limps the Witch with malice-working lips,
The Graces here their snowy arms en-
twine,
Here dwell the fairest sisters of the Nine, —
She who, with jocund voice and twinkling eye,
Laughs at the brood of follies as they
fly;
She of the dagger and the deadly bowl,
Whose charming horrors thrill the trembling soul;
She who, a truant from celestial spheres,

In mortal semblance now and then appears,
Stealing the fairest earthly shape she can — Sontag or Nilsson, Lind or Malibrán; With these the spangled hours of the dance, —
What shaft so dangerous as her melting
glance,
As poised in air she spurns the earth
below,
And points aloft her heavenly-minded toe!

What were our life, with all its rents and seams,
Stripped of its purple robes, our waking dreams?
The poet's song, the bright romancer's
page,
The tinselled shows that cheat us on the stage
Lead all our fancies captive at their will;
Three years or threescore, we are children still.
The little listener on his father's knee,
With wandering Sindbad ploughs the stormy sea,
With Gotham's sages hears the billows
roll (Illustrious trio of the venturesome bowl, Too early shipwrecked, for they died too soon
To see their offspring launch the great balloon);
Tracks the dark brigand to his mountain lair,
Slays the grim giant, saves the lady fair,
Fights all his country's battles o'er again
From Bunker's blazing height to Lundy's lane;
Floats with the mighty Captains as they sailed
Before whose flag the flaming red-cross paled,

And claims the oft-told story of the scars Scarce yet grown white, that saved the stripes and stars!

Children of later growth, we love the
PLAY,
We love its heroes, be they grave or gay,
From squeaking, peppery, devil-defying
Punch
To roaring Richard with his camel-hunch;
Adore its heroines, those immortal dames, Time's only rivals, whom he never tames,
Whose youth, unchanging, lives while thrones decay (Age spares the Pyramids — and Dejazet);
The saucy-aproned, razor-tongued soubrette,
The blond-haired beauty with the eyes of jet,
The gorgeous Beings whom the viewless wires
Lift to the skies in strontian-crimsoned
fires,
And all the wealth of splendor that awaits
The throng that enters those Elysian gates.

See where the hurrying crowd impatient pours,
With noise of trampling feet and flapping doors,
Streams to the numbered seat each pasteboard fits
And smooths its caudal plumage as it sits;
Waits while the slow musicians saunter
in,
Till the bald leader taps his violin;
Till the old overture we know so well,

Zampa or Magic Flute or William Tell,
Has done its worst — then hark! the tinkling bell!

The crash is o'er — the crinkling curtain furled,
And lo! the glories of that brighter world!

Behold the offspring of the Thespian cart,
This full-grown temple of the magic
art,
Where all the conjurors of illusion meet,
And please us all the more, the more they cheat.
These are the wizards and the witches too
Who win their honest bread by cheating you
With cheeks that drown in artificial tears
And lying skull-caps white with seventy
years,
Sweet-tempered matrons changed to scolding Kates, Maids mild as moonbeams crazed with murderous hates,
Kind, simple souls that stab and slash and slay
And stick at nothing, if it's in the play!

Would all the world told half as harmless lies!
Would all its real fools were half as wise
As he who blinks through dull Dundreary's eyes!
Would all the unhanged bandits of the
age
Were like the peaceful ruffians of the stage!
Would all the cankers wasting town and
state,
The mob of rascals, little thieves and great,

Dealers in watered milk and watered stocks,
Who lead us lambs to pasture on the rocks, —
Shepherds — Jack Sheppards — of their city flocks —
The rings of rogues that rob the luckless
town,
Those evil angels creeping up and down
The Jacob's ladder of the treasury
stairs, —
Not stage, but real Turpins and Macaires, —
Could doff, like us, their knavery with their clothes,
And find it easy as forgetting oaths !

Welcome, thrice welcome to our virgin dome,
The Muses' shrine, the Drama's newfound home !
Here shall the Statesman rest his weary
brain,
The worn-out Artist find his wits again ;
Here Trade forget his ledger and his cares,
And sweet communion mingle Bulls and Bears ;
Here shall the youthful Lover, nestling near
The shrinking maiden, her he holds most
dear,
Gaze on the mimic moonlight as it falls
On painted groves, on sliding canvas
walls,
And sigh, " My angel ! What a life of bliss
We two could live in such a world as this !"
Here shall the tumid pedants of the schools,
The gilded boors, the labor-scorning
fools,
The grass-green rustic and the smoke-dried cit,

Feel each in turn the stinging lash of
wit,
And as it tingles on some tender part Each find a balsam in his neighbor's smart ;
So every folly prove a fresh delight
As in the pictures of our play to-night.

Farewell ! The Players wait the Prompter's call ;
Friends, lovers, listeners ! Welcome one and all !

RIP VAN WINKLE, M. D.

AN AFTER-DINNER PRESCRIPTION TAKEN BY THE MASSACHUSETTS MEDICAL SOCIETY, AT THEIR MEETING HELD
MAY 25, 1870.

CANTO FIRST.

OLD Rip Van Winkle had a grandson,
Rip,
Of the paternal block a genuine chip ;
A lazy, sleepy, curious kind of chap ;
He, like his grandsire, took a mighty
nap,
Whereof the story I propose to tell
In two brief cantos, if you listen well.

The times were hard when Rip to manhood grew ;
They always will be when there's work to do ;
He tried at farming — found it rather slow —
And then at teaching — what he did n't
know ;
Then took to hanging round the tavern
bars,
To frequent toddies and long-nine cigars,
Till Dame Van Winkle, out of patience, vexed
With preaching homilies, having for their text

A mop, a broomstick — aught that might avail

To point a moral or adorn a tale, Exclaimed, "I have it! Now then,
Mr. V.!

He's good for something — make him an M. D.!"

The die was cast; the youngster was content;

They packed his shirts and stockings,
and he went.

How hard he studied it were vain to
tell;

He drowsed through Wistar, nodded over
Bell,

Slept sound with Cooper, snored aloud on Good;

Heard heaps of lectures — doubtless understood —

A constant listener, for he did not fail To carve his name on every bench and rail.

Months grew to years; at last he counted
three,

And Rip Van Winkle found himself M. D.
Illustrious title! in a gilded frame

He set the sheepskin with his Latin
name,

RIPUM VAN WINKLUM, QUEM WE — SCIMUS — know

IDONEUM ESSE — to do so and so;

He hired an office; soon its walls displayed

His new diploma and his stock in trade,
A mighty arsenal to subdue disease,

Of various names, whereof I mention
these:

Lancets and bougies, great and little squirt,

Rhubarb and Senna, Snakeroot, Thoroughwort,

Ant. Tart., Vin. Colch., Pil. Cochixæ, and Black Drop,

Tinctures of Opium, Gentian, Henbane, Hop,

Pulv. Ipecacuanhæ, which for lack Of breath to utter men call Ipecac, Camphor and Kino, Turpentine, Tolu, Cubebæ, "Copeevy," Vitriol — white
and blue,

Fennel and Flaxseed, Slippery Elm and Squill,

And roots of Sassafras, and "Sassafrill,"

Brandy — for colics — Pinkroot, death on worms —

Valerian, calmer of hysteric squirms,
Musk, Assafœtida, the resinous gum Named from its odor — well, it does smell some —

Jalap, that works not wisely, but too
well,

Ten pounds of Bark and six of Calomel.

For outward griefs he had an ample store,

Some twenty jars and gallipots, or more;
Ceratum simplex — housewives oft compile

The same at home, and call it "wax and ile";

Unguentum Resinosum — change its
name,

The "drawing salve" of many an ancient dame;

Argenti Nitras, also Spanish flies, Whose virtue makes the water-bladders
rise —

(Some say that spread upon a toper's skin

They draw no water, only rum or gin) — Leeches, sweet vermin! don't they charm the sick?

And Sticking-plaster — how it hates to stick!

Emplastrum Ferri — ditto Picis, Pitch; Washes and Powders, Brimstone for the — which,

Scabies or Psora, is thy chosen name Since Hahnemann's goose-quill scratched thee into fame,

Proved thee the source of every nameless ill,

Whose sole specific is a moonshine pill,
Till saucy Science, with a quiet grin, Held up the Acarus, crawling on a pin?

— Mountains have labored and have brought forth mice :

The Dutchman's theory hatched a brood of — twice

I've wellnigh said them — words unfitting quite

For these fair precincts and for ears polite.

The surest foot may chance at last to slip,

And so at length it proved with Doctor
Rip.

One full-sized bottle stood upon the shelf Which held the medicine that he took himself ;

Whate'er the reason, it must be confessed
He filled that bottle oftener than the rest ;

What drug it held I don't presume to
know —

The gilded label said "Elixir Pro."

One day the Doctor found the bottle full,

And, being thirsty, took a vigorous pull, Put back the "Elixir" where 't was always found,

And had old Dobbin saddled and brought round.

— You know those old-time rhubarbcolored nags

That carried Doctors and their saddlebags ;

Sagacious beasts ! they stopped at every place

Where blinds were shut — knew every patient's case —

Looked up and thought — the baby's in a fit —

That won't last long — he'll soon be through with it ;

But shook their heads before the knockered door

Where some old lady told the story
o'er

Whose endless stream of tribulation
flows

For gastric griefs and peristaltic woes.

What jack-o'-lantern led him from
his way,

And where it led him, it were hard to say ;

Enough that wandering many a weary mile

Through paths the mountain sheep trod single file,

O'ercome by feelings such as patients
know

Who dose too freely with "Elixir Pro.," He tumbled — dismounted, slightly in a heap,

And lay, promiscuous, lapped in balmy sleep.

Night followed night, and day succeeded day,

But snoring still the slumbering Doctor
lay.

Poor Dobbin, starving, thought upon his stall,

And straggled homeward, saddle-bags
and all.

The village people hunted all around,
But Rip was missing, — never could be found.

"Drowned," they guessed ; — for more than half a year

The pouts and eels did taste uncommon
queer ;

Some said of apple-brandy — other some Found a strong flavor of New England rum.

— Why can't a fellow hear the fine things said

About a fellow when a fellow 's dead ?
The best of doctors — so the press declared —

A public blessing while his life was spared,

True to his country, bounteous to the poor,

In all things temperate, sober, just, and pure ;

The best of husbands ! echoed Mrs. Van,
And set her cap to catch another man.

— So ends this Canto — if it's quan- tum suff.,

We 'll just stop here and say we 've had enough,

And leave poor Rip to sleep for thirty
years ;

I grind the organ — if you lend your ears
To hear my second Canto, after that

We 'll send around the monkey with the hat.

CANTO SECOND.

So thirty years had past — but not a word

In all that time of Rip was ever heard ;
The world wagg'd on — it never does go back —

The widow Van was now the widow
Mac —

France was an Empire — Andrew J. was dead,

And Abraham L. was reigning in his stead.

Four murderous years had passed in savage strife,

Yet still the rebel held his bloody knife.

— At last one morning — who forgets
the day

When the black cloud of war dissolved
away ?

The joyous tidings spread o'er land and
sea,

Rebellion done for ! Grant has captured Lee !

Up every flagstaff sprang the Stars and Stripes —

Out rushed the Extras wild with mammoth types —

Down went the laborer's hod, the school-boy's book —

“Hooraw !” he cried, — “the rebel army's took !”

Ah ! what a time ! the folks all mad with joy :

Each fond, pale mother thinking of her
boy ;

Old gray-haired fathers meeting — Have — you — heard ?

And then a choke — and not another
word ;

Sisters all smiling — maidens, not less
dear, -

In trembling poise between a smile and tear ;

Poor Bridget thinking how she 'll stuff the plums

In that big cake for Johnny when he comes ;

Cripples afoot ; rheumatics on the jump, Old girls so loving they could hug the pump ;

Guns going bang ! from every fort and ship ;

They banged so loud at last they wakened Rip.

I spare the picture, how a man appears

Who's been asleep a score or two of
years ;

You all have seen it to perfection done

By Joe Van Wink — I mean Rip Jefferson.

Well, so it was; old Rip at last came back,

Claimed his old wife — the present widow Mac —

Had his old sign regilded, and began To practise physic on the same old plan.

Some weeks went by — it was not long to wait —

And "please to call" grew frequent on the slate.

He had, in fact, an ancient, mildewed air,

A long gray beard, a plenteous lack of hair —

The musty look that always recommends Your good old Doctor to his ailing friends.

— Talk of your science! after all is said There's nothing like a bare and shiny head;

Age lends the graces that are sure to please;

Folks want their Doctors mouldy, like their cheese.

So Rip began to look at people's tongues

And thump their briskets (called it "sound their lungs"),

Brushed up his knowledge smartly as he could,

Read in old Cullen and in Doctor Good. The town was healthy; for a month or two

He gave the sexton little work to do.

About the time when dog-day heats begin,

The summer's usual maladies set in; With autumn evenings dysentery came,

And dusky typhoid lit his smouldering flame;

The blacksmith ailed — the carpenter was down,

And half the children sickened in the town.

The sexton's face grew shorter than before —

The sexton's wife a brand-new bonnet wore —

Things looked quite serious — Death had got a grip

On old and young, in spite of Doctor Rip.

And now the Squire was taken with a chill —

Wife gave "hot-drops" — at night an Indian pill;

Next morning, feverish — bedtime, getting worse —

Out of his head — began to rave and curse;

The Doctor sent for — double quick he came:

Ant. Tart. gran. duo, and repeat the same

If no et cetera. Third day — nothing new;

Percussed his thorax till 't was black and blue —

Lung-fever threatening — something of the sort —

Out with the lancet — let him bleed — a quart —

Ten leeches next — then blisters to his side;

Ten grains of calomel; just then he died.

The Deacon next required the Doctor's care —

Took cold by sitting in a draught of air —

Pains in the back, but what the matter is Not quite so clear, — wife calls it "rheumatiz."

Rubs back with flannel — gives him something hot —

“Ah!” says the Deacon, “that goes nigh the spot.”

Next day a rigor — “Run, my little
man,

And say the Deacon sends for Doctor
Van.”

The Doctor came — percussion as before, Thumping and banging till his ribs were sore —

“Right side the flattest” — then more vigorous raps —

“Fever — that ’s certain — pleurisy, perhaps.

A quart of blood will ease the pain, no
doubt,

Ten leeches next will help to suck it out,
Then clap a blister on the painful part —

But first two grains of Antimonium Tart.

Last, with a dose of cleansing calomel Unload the portal system — (that sounds
well !)”

But when the selfsame remedies were tried,

As all the village knew, the Squire had died;

The neighbors hinted — this will never do,

He ’s killed the Squire — he ’ll kill the Deacon too.”

— Now when a doctor’s patients are perplexed,

A consultation comes in order next —
You know what that is? In a certain place

Meet certain doctors to discuss a case
And other matters, such as weather, crops,

Potatoes, pumpkins, lager-beer, and hops.

For what ’s the use? — there ’s little to be said,

Nine times in ten your man ’s as good as
dead ;

At best a talk (the secret to disclose)
Where three men guess and sometimes one man knows.

The counsel summoned came without delay —

Young Doctor Green and shrewd old Doctor Gray --

They heard the story — “Bleed !” says
Doctor Green,

“That ’s downright murder! cut his throat, you mean !

Leeches! the reptiles! Why, for pity’s sake,

Not try an adder or a rattlesnake ?

Blisters! Why bless you, they ’re against the law —

It ’s rank assault and battery if they draw !

Tartrate of Antimony! shade of Luke, Stomachs turn pale at thought of such rebuke !

The portal system! What ’s the man about ?

Unload your nonsense! Calomel’s played out !

You ’ve been asleep — you ’d better sleep
away

Till some one calls you.”

“Stop!” says Doctor Gray —
“The story is you slept for thirty
years ;

With brother Green, I own that it appears

You must have slumbered most amazing
sound ;

But sleep once more till thirty years
come round,

You ’ll find the lancet in its honored
place,

Leeches and blisters rescued from disgrace,

Your drugs redeemed from fashion's passing scorn,
And counted safe to give to babes unborn."

Poor sleepy Rip, M. M. S. S., M. D., A puzzled, serious, saddened man was he;
Home from the Deacon's house he plodded slow

And filled one bumper of "Elixir Pro."
"Good by," he faltered, "Mrs. Van, my dear!

I'm going to sleep, but wake me once a year;

I don't like bleaching in the frost and dew,

I'll take the barn, if all the same to you.
Just once a year — remember! no mistake!

Cry, 'Rip Van Winkle! time for you to wake!'

Watch for the week in May when laylocks blow,

For then the Doctors meet, and I must go."

Just once a year the Doctor's worthy dame

Goes to the barn and shouts her husband's name,

"Come, Rip Van Winkle!" (giving him a shake)

"Rip! Rip Van Winkle! time for you to wake!

Laylocks in blossom! 't is the month of May —

The Doctors' meeting is this blessed day,
And come what will, you know I heard you swear

You'd never miss it, but be always there!"

And so it is, as every year comes round
Old Rip Van Winkle here is always found.

You 'll quickly know him by his mildewed air,

The hayseed sprinkled through his scanty hair,

The lichens growing on his rusty suit —
I've seen a toadstool sprouting on his boot —

— Who says I lie? Does any man presume? —

Toadstool? No matter — call it a mushroom.

Where is his seat? He moves it every year;

But look, you 'll find him — he is always here —

Perhaps you 'll track him by a whiff you know —

A certain flavor of "Elixir Pro."

Now, then, I give you — as you seem to think

We can give toasts without a drop to drink —

Health to the mighty sleeper — long live he!

Our brother Rip, M. M. S. S., M. D.!

CHANSON WITHOUT MUSIC.

BY THE PROFESSOR EMERITUS OF DEAD AND LIVE LANGUAGES.

Φ B K. — CAMBRIDGE, 1867.

You bid me sing, — can I forget

The classic ode of days gone by, —
How belle Fifine and jeune Lisette

Exclaimed, "Anacreōn, gerōn ei"?

"Regardez donc," those ladies said, —

"You're getting bald and wrinkled too:

When summer's roses all are shed,

Love's nullum ite, voyez-vous!"

In vain ce brave Anacreon's cry,

"Of Love alone my banjo sings"

(Erōta mounon). "Etiam si, — Eh b'en?" replied the saucy things, —
 "Go find a maid whose hair is gray,
 And strike your lyre, — we sha' n't complain ;

But parce nobis, s'il vous plait, —
 Voilà Adolphe ! Voilà Eugène !"

Ah, jeune Lisette ! Ah, belle Fifine !
 Anacreon's lesson all must learn ;
 'O kairos oxūs ; Spring is green,
 But Acer Hyems waits his turn !
 I hear you whispering from the dust,
 "Tiens, mon cher, c'est toujours so, —
 The brightest blade grows dim with rust,
 The fairest meadow white with snow !"

— You do not mean it ! Not encore ?
Another string of playday rhymes ?
 You 've heard me — nonne est ? — before,
 Multoties, — more than twenty times ;
 Non possum, — vraiment, — pas du tout,
 I cannot ! I am loath to shirk ;
 But who will listen if I do,
 My memory makes such shocking work ?

Ginōsko. Scio. Yes, I'm told
 Some ancients like my rusty lay,
 As Grandpa Noah loved the old
 Red-sandstone march of Jubal's day.
 I used to carol like the birds,
 But time my wits has quite unfixed,
 Et quoad verba, — for my words, — Ciel ! Eheu ! Whe-ew ! — how they 're mixed !

Mehercle ! Zeu ! Diable ! how My thoughts were dressed when I was young,
 But tempus fugit ! see them now
 Half clad in rags of every tongue !
 O philoi, fratres, chers amis !
 I dare not court the youthful Muse,
 For fear her sharp response should be,
 "Papa Anacreon, please excuse !"

Adieu ! I've trod my annual track How long ! — let others count the miles, —
 And peddled out my rhyming pack
 To friends who always paid in smiles.
 So, laissez-moi ! some youthful wit
 No doubt has wares he wants to show ;
 And I am asking, "Let me sit,"
 Dum ille clamat, "Dos pon sto !"

FOR THE CENTENNIAL DINNER

OF THE PROPRIETORS OF BOSTON PIER,
 OR THE LONG WHARF, APRIL 16, 1873.

DEAR friends, we are strangers ; we never before
 Have suspected what love to each other we bore ;
 But each of us all to his neighbor is dear,
 Whose heart has a throb for our time-honored pier.

As I look on each brother proprietor's
 face,
 I could open my arms in a loving embrace ;
 What wonder that feelings, undreamed of so long,
 Should burst all at once in a blossom of
 song !

While I turn my fond glance on the monarch of piers,
 Whose throne has stood firm through his eightscore of years,
 My thought travels backward and reaches
 the day
 When they drove the first pile on the edge of the bay.

See ! The joiner, the shipwright, the smith from his forge,
 The redcoat, who shoulders his gun for King George,

The shopman, the 'prentice, the boys from the lane,
The parson, the doctor with gold-headed cane,

Come trooping down King Street, where now may be seen
The pulleys and ropes of a mighty machine ;
The weight rises slowly ; it drops with a thud ;
And, lo ! the great timber sinks deep in the mud !

They are gone, the stout craftsmen that hammered the piles,
And the square-toed old boys in the three-cornered tiles ;
The breeches, the buckles, have faded from view,
And the parson's white wig and the ribbon-tied queue.

The redcoats have vanished ; the last grenadier Stepped into the boat from the end of our pier ;
They found that our hills were not easy to climb,
And the order came, "Countermarch, double-quick time !"

They are gone, friend and foe, — anchored fast at the pier, Whence no vessel brings back its pale passengers here ;
But our wharf, like a lily, still floats on the flood,
Its breast in the sunshine, its roots in the mud.

Who — who that has loved it so long and so well —
The flower of his birthright would barter or sell ?

No : pride of the bay, while its ripples
shall run,
You shall pass, as an heirloom, from father to son !

Let me part with the acres my grandfather bought,
With the bonds that my uncle's kind legacy brought,
With my bank-shares, — old "Union," whose ten per cent stock Stands stiff through the storms as the Eddystone rock ;

With my rights (or my wrongs) in the "Erie," — alas !
With my claims on the mournful and
"Mutual Mass." ;
With my "Phil. Wil. and Balt.," with my "C. B. and Q." ;
But I never, no never, will sell out of you.

We drink to thy past and thy future to-
day,
Strong right arm of Boston, stretched out o'er the bay.
May the winds waft the wealth of all nations to thee,
And thy dividends flow like the waves
of the sea !

A POEM SERVED TO ORDER.

PHI BETA KAPPA, JUNE 26, 1873.

THE Caliph ordered up his cook,
And, scowling with a fearful look That meant, — We stand no gammon, —

"To-morrow, just at two," he said,
"Hassan, our cook, will lose his head,
Or serve us up a salmon."

"Great Sire," the trembling chef replied,
"Lord of the Earth and all beside,

Sun, Moon, and Stars, and so on — ” (Look in Eothen — there you ’ll find A list of titles. Never mind,
 I have n’t time to go on :)

“Great Sire,” and so forth, thus he spoke,

“Your Highness must intend a joke ;
 It does n’t stand to reason
 For one to order salmon brought,
 Unless that fish is sometimes caught,
 And also is in season.

“Our luck of late is shocking bad,
 In fact, the latest catch we had (We kept the matter shady),
 But, hauling in our nets, — alack !
 We found no salmon, but a sack
 That held your honored Lady !”

— “Allah is great !” the Caliph said, “My poor Zuleika, you are dead,
 I once took interest in you.”

— “Perhaps, my Lord, you ’d like to
 know

We cut the lines and let her go.”

— “Allah be praised ! Continue.”

— “It is n’t hard one’s hook to bait,
 And, squatting down, to watch and wait,
 To see the cork go under ;
 At last suppose you ’ve got your bite,
 You twitch away with all your might, —
 You ’ve hooked an eel, by thunder !”

The Caliph patted Hassan’s head :

“Slave, thou hast spoken well,” he said,
 “And won thy master’s favor.

Yes ; since what happened t’ other morn
 The salmon of the Golden Horn
 Might have a doubtful flavor.

“That last remark about the eel
 Has also justice that we feel Quite to our satisfaction.
 To-morrow we dispense with fish,

And, for the present, if you wish,
 You ’ll keep your bulbous fraction.”

“Thanks ! thanks !” the grateful chef replied,

His nutrient feature showing wide
 The gleam of arches dental :

“To cut my head off would n’t pay,
 I find it useful every day,
 As well as ornamental.”

Brothers, I hope you will not fail
 To see the moral of my tale
 And kindly to receive it.
 You know your anniversary pie Must have its crust, though hard and dry,
 And some prefer to leave it.

How oft before these youths were born
 I’ve fished in Fancy’s Golden Horn
 For what the Muse might send me !
 How gayly then I cast the line,
 When all the morning sky was mine,
 And Hope her flies would lend me !

And now I hear our despot’s call,
 And come, like Hassan, to the hall, —
 If there’s a slave, I am one, —
 My bait no longer flies, but worms !
 I’ve caught — Lord bless me ! how he squirms !
 An eel, and not a salmon !

THE FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH.

READ AT THE MEETING OF THE HAR-VARD ALUMNI ASSOCIATION, JUNE 25, 1873.

THE fount the Spaniard sought in vain
 Through all the land of flowers Leaps glittering from the sandy plain Our classic grove embowers ;

Here youth, unchanging, blooms and smiles,

Here dwells eternal spring,
And warm from Hope's elysian isles
The winds their perfume bring.

Here every leaf is in the bud,
Each singing throat in tune,
And bright o'er evening's silver flood Shines the young crescent moon.

What wonder Age forgets his staff
And lays his glasses down,
And gray-haired grandsires look and laugh
As when their locks were brown !

With ears grown dull and eyes grown dim

They greet the joyous day
That calls them to the fountain's brim
To wash their years away.
What change has clothed the ancient sire
In sudden youth ? For, lo !
The Judge, the Doctor, and the Squire
Are Jack and Bill and Joe !

And be his titles what they will,
In spite of manhood's claim
The graybeard is a school-boy still
And loves his school-boy name ;
It calms the ruler's stormy breast Whom hurrying care pursues,
And brings a sense of peace and rest,
Like slippers after shoes.

And what are all the prizes won
To youth's enchanted view ?
And what is all the man has done
To what the boy may do ?
O blessed fount, whose waters flow
Alike for sire and son,
That melts our winter's frost and snow
And makes all ages one !

I pledge the sparkling fountain's tide,
That flings its golden shower
With age to fill and youth to guide,
Still fresh in morning flower !
Flow on with ever-widening stream,
In ever-brightening morn, —
Our story's pride, our future's dream,
The hope of times unborn !

A HYMN OF PEACE.

SUNG AT THE "JUBILEE," JUNE 15, 1869, TO THE MUSIC OF KELLER'S
"AMERICAN HYMN."

ANGEL of Peace, thou hast wandered
too long !

Spread thy white wings to the sunshine of love !

Come while our voices are blended in
song, —

Fly to our ark like the storm-beaten dove !

Fly to our ark on the wings of the dove, —

Speed o'er the far-sounding billows of
song,

Crowned with thine olive-leaf garland of love, —

Angel of Peace, thou hast waited too
long !

Brothers we meet, on this altar of thine Mingling the gifts we have gathered for thee,

Sweet with the odors of myrtle and pine, Breeze of the prairie and breath of the sea, —

Meadow and mountain and forest and
sea !

Sweet is the fragrance of myrtle and
pine,

Sweeter the incense we offer to thee,
Brothers once more round this altar of thine !

Angels of Bethlehem, answer the strain !	Let the loud tempest of voices re-
Hark ! a new birth-song is filling the	ply, —
sky ! —	Roll its long surge like the earth-
Loud as the storm-wind that tumbles	shaking main !
the main	Swell the vast song till it mounts to the Bid the full breath of the organ	sky ! —
reply, —	Angels of Bethlehem, echo the strain !

TO 1877.

AT A MEETING OF FRIENDS.

AUGUST 29, 1859.

I REMEMBER — why yes ! God bless me !
and was it so long ago ?

I fear I 'm growing forgetful, as old folks do, you know ;

It must have been in 'forty — I would say 'thirty-nine —

We talked this matter over, I and a friend of mine.

He said " Well now, old fellow, I 'm thinking that you and I,
If we act like other people, shall be older by and by ;

What though the bright blue ocean is smooth as a pond can be,

There is always a line of breakers to fringe the broadest sea.

" We 're taking it mighty easy, but that is nothing strange,

For up to the age of thirty we spend our years like change ;

But creeping up towards the forties, as fast as the old years fill,

And Time steps in for payment, we seem to change a bill.

" — I know it, — I said, — old fellow ;
you speak the solemn truth ;

A man can't live to a hundred and likewise keep his youth ;

But what if the ten years coming shall silver-streak my hair,
You know I shall then be forty ; of course I shall not care.

" At forty a man grows heavy and tired of fun and noise ;

Leaves dress to the five-and-twenties and love to the silly boys ;

No foppish tricks at forty, no pinching of waists and toes,

But high-low shoes and flannels and good thick worsted hose."

But one fine August morning I found myself awake :

My birthday : — By Jove, I 'm forty !
Yes, forty, and no mistake !

Why this is the very milestone, I think
I used to hold,

That when a fellow had come to, a fellow would then be old !

But that is the young folks' nonsense ;
they 're full of their foolish stuff ;

A man 's in his prime at forty, — I see that plain enough ;

At fifty a man is wrinkled, and may be
bald or gray ;

I call men old at fifty, in spite of all
they say.

At last comes another August with mist and rain and shine ;

Its mornings are slowly counted and creep to twenty-nine,
 And when on the western summits the fading light appears,
 It touches with rosy fingers the last of my fifty years.

There have been both men and women whose hearts were firm and bold, But there never was one of fifty that loved to say "I'm old";
 So any elderly person that strives to shirk his years,
 Make him stand up at a table and try him by his peers.

Now here I stand at fifty, my jury gathered round;
 Sprinkled with dust of silver, but not yet silver-crowned,
 Ready to meet your verdict, waiting to hear it told;
 Guilty of fifty summers; speak! Is the verdict old?

No! say that his hearing fails him; say that his sight grows dim;
 Say that he's getting wrinkled and weak in back and limb,
 Losing his wits and temper, but pleading, to make amends,
 The youth of his fifty summers he finds in his twenty friends.

A FAREWELL TO AGASSIZ.

How the mountains talked together,
 Looking down upon the weather,
 When they heard our friend had planned his Little trip among the Andes!
 How they'll bare their snowy scalps
 To the climber of the Alps
 When the cry goes through their passes,

"Here comes the great Agassiz!"
 "Yes, I'm tall," says Chimborazo,
 "But I wait for him to say so, — That's the only thing that lacks, —
 he

Must see me, Cotopaxi!"
 "Ay! ay!" the fire-peak thunders,
 "And he must view my wonders!
 I'm but a lonely crater
 Till I have him for spectator!"
 The mountain hearts are yearning,
 The lava-torches burning,
 The rivers bend to meet him,
 The forests bow to greet him,
 It thrills the spinal column
 Of fossil fishes solemn,
 And glaciers crawl the faster
 To the feet of their old master!

Heaven keep him well and hearty,
 Both him and all his party!
 From the sun that broils and smites,
 From the centipede that bites,
 From the hail-storm and the thunder,
 From the vampire and the condor,
 From the gust upon the river,
 From the sudden earthquake shiver,
 From the trip of mule or donkey,
 From the midnight howling monkey,
 From the stroke of knife or dagger,
 From the puma and the jaguar,
 From the horrid boa-constrictor
 That has scared us in the pictur',
 From the Indians of the Pampas
 Who would dine upon their grampas,
 From every beast and vermin
 That to think of sets us squirming,
 From every snake that tries on The traveller his p'ison,
 From every pest of Natur',
 Likewise the alligator,
 And from two things left behind him, —
 (Be sure they'll try to find him,)
 The tax-bill and assessor, —
 Heaven keep the great Professor!

May he find, with his apostles,
That the land is full of fossils,
That the waters swarm with fishes
Shaped according to his wishes,
That every pool is fertile
In fancy kinds of turtle,
New birds around him singing,
New insects, never stinging,
With a million novel data
About the articulata,
And facts that strip off all husks
From the history of mollusks.

And when, with loud Te Deum,
He returns to his Museum,
May he find the monstrous reptile
That so long the land has kept ill
By Grant and Sherman throttled,
And by Father Abraham bottled, (All specked and streaked and mottled

With the scars of murderous battles,
Where he clashed the iron rattles That gods and men he shook at,)
For all the world to look at!

God bless the great Professor!
And Madam, too, God bless her!
Bless him and all his band,
On the sea and on the land,
Bless them head and heart and hand,
Till their glorious raid is o'er,
And they touch our ransomed shore!
Then the welcome of a nation,
With its shout of exultation,
Shall awake the dumb creation,
And the shapes of buried æons
Join the living creatures' pæans,
Till the fossil echoes roar;
While the mighty megalosaurus
Leads the palæozoic chorus, —
God bless the great Professor,
And the land his proud possessor, —
Bless them now and evermore!

A SEA DIALOGUE.

Cabin Passenger. Man at Wheel.

CABIN PASSENGER.

FRIEND, you seem thoughtful. I not wonder much

That he who sails the ocean should be sad.
I am myself reflective. — When I think Of all this wallowing beast, the Sea, has sucked

Between his sharp, thin lips, the wedgy
waves,

What heaps of diamonds, rubies, emeralds, pearls;

What piles of shekels, talents, ducats,
crowns,

What bales of Tyrian mantles, Indian shawls,

Of laces that have blanked the weavers'
eyes,

Of silken tissues, wrought by worm and
man,

The half-starved workman, and the well-fed worm;

What marbles, bronzes, pictures, parch-ments, books;

What many-lobuled, thought-engendering brains;

Lie with the gaping sea-shells in his maw, —

I, too, am silent; for all language seems A mockery, and the speech of man is vain.

O mariner, we look upon the waves
And they rebuke our babbling. "Peace!"
they say, —

"Mortal, be still!" My noisy tongue is hushed,

And with my trembling finger on my lips
My soul exclaims in ecstasy —

MAN AT WHEEL.

Belay!

CABIN PASSENGER.

Ah yes! "Delay," — it calls, "nor haste to break

The charm of stillness with an idle
word !”

O mariner, I love thee, for thy thought Strides even with my own, nay, flies before.

Thou art a brother to the wind and
wave ;

Have they not music for thine ear as
mine,

When the wild tempest makes thy ship
his lyre,

Smiting a cavernous basso from the shrouds

And climbing up his gamut through the stays,

Through buntlines, bowlines, ratlines, till it shrills

An alto keener than the locust sings,

And all the great Æolian orchestra

Storms out its mad sonata in the gale ?

Is not the scene a wondrous and —

MAN AT WHEEL.

- Avast !

CABIN PASSENGER.

Ah yes, a vast, a vast and wondrous scene !

I see thy soul is open as the day

That holds the sunshine in its azure
bowl

To all the solemn glories of the deep.

Tell me, O mariner, dost thou never feel

The grandeur of thine office, — to control

The keel that cuts the ocean like a knife

And leaves a wake behind it like a seam

In the great shining garment of the world ?

MAN AT WHEEL.

Belay y'r jaw, y' swab ! y' hoss-marine !

(To the Captain.)

Ay, ay, Sir ! Stiddy, Sir ! Sou'wes' b' sou' !

November 10, 1864.

AT THE "ATLANTIC" DINNER.

DECEMBER 15, 1874.

I SUPPOSE it's myself that you're making allusion to

And bringing the sense of dismay and confusion to.

Of course some must speak, — they are always selected to,

But pray what's the reason that I am expected to ?

I'm not fond of wasting my breath as those fellows do

That want to be blowing forever as bellows do ;

Their legs are uneasy, but why will you jog any

That long to stay quiet beneath the mahogany ?

Why, why call me up with your battery of flatteries ?

You say "He writes poetry," — that's what the matter is !

"It costs him no trouble — a pen full of ink or two

And the poem is done in the time of a wink or two ;

As for thoughts — never mind — take the ones that lie uppermost,

And the rhymes used by Milton and Byron and Tupper most ;

The lines come so easy ! at one end he jingles 'em,

At the other with capital letters he shingles 'em, —

Why, the thing writes itself, and before he's half done with it

He hates to stop writing he has such good fun with it !"

Ah, that is the way in which simple ones go about

And draw a fine picture of things they don't know about !

We all know a kitten, but come to a catamount
 The beast is a stranger when grown up to that amount,
 (A stranger we rather prefer should n't visit us,
 A felis whose advent is far from felicitous.)
 The boy who can boast that his trap has just got a mouse
 Must n't draw it and write underneath
 "hippopotamus";
 Or say unvarnishedly, "this is an elephant" —
 Don't think, let me beg, these examples irrelevant —
 What they mean is just this — that a thing to be painted well Should always be something with which we're acquainted well.

You call on your victim for "things he has plenty of, — Those copies of verses no doubt at least twenty of;
 His desk is crammed full, for he always keeps writing 'em
 And reading to friends as his way of de-lighting 'em!" —
 I tell you this writing of verses means business, —
 It makes the brain whirl in a vortex of dizziness:
 You think they are scrawled in the language of laziness —
 I tell you they're squeezed by a spasm of craziness,
 A fit half as bad as the staggering vertigos That seize a poor fellow and down in the dirt he goes!

And therefore it chimes with the word's etymology
 That the sons of Apollo are great on apology,

For the writing of verse is a struggle mysterious
 And the gayest of rhymes is a matter that's serious.
 For myself, I'm relied on by friends in extremities,
 And I don't mind so much if a comfort to them it is;
 'T is a pleasure to please, and the straw that can tickle us
 Is a source of enjoyment though slightly ridiculous.

I am up for a — something — and since I've begun with it,
 I must give you a toast now before I have done with it.
 Let me pump at my wits as they pumped the Cochituate
 That moistened — it may be — the very last bit you ate.
 — Success to our publishers, authors and editors;
 To our debtors good luck, — pleasant dreams to our creditors;
 May the monthly grow yearly, till all we are groping for Has reached the fulfilment we're all of us hoping for;
 Till the bore through the tunnel — it makes me let off a sigh
 To think it may possibly ruin my prophecy —
 Has been punned on so often 't will never provoke again
 One mild adolescent to make the old joke again;
 Till abstinent, all-go-to-meeting society
 Has forgotten the sense of the word in-ebriety;
 Till the work that poor Hannah and Bridget and Phillis do
 The humanized, civilized female goril'as
 do;

Till the roughs, as we call them, grown loving and dutiful, Shall worship the true and the pure and the beautiful,
 And, preying no longer as tiger and vulture do,
 All read the "Atlantic" as persons of culture do !

"LUCY."

FOR HER GOLDEN WEDDING, OCTOBER 18, 1875.

"LUCY." — The old familiar name
 Is now, as always, pleasant,
 Its liquid melody the same
 Alike in past or present ;
 Let others call you what they will,
 I know you 'll let me use it ;
 To me your name is Luey still,
 I cannot bear to lose it.

What visions of the past return
 With Luey's image blended !
 What memories from the silent urn
 Of gentle lives long ended !
 What dreams of childhood's fleeting
 morn,
 What starry aspirations,
 That filled the misty days unborn
 With fancy's coruscations !

Ah, Lucy, life has swiftly sped
 From April to November ;
 The summer blossoms all are shed
 That you and I remember ;
 But while the vanished years we share
 With mingling recollections,
 How all their shadowy features wear
 The hue of old affections !

Love called you. He who stole your
 heart
 Of sunshine half bereft us ;

Our household's garland fell apart
 The morning that you left us ;
 The tears of tender girlhood streamed
 Through sorrow's opening sluices ;
 Less sweet our garden's roses seemed,
 Less blue its flower-de-luces.

That old regret is turned to smiles,
 That parting sigh to greeting ;
 I send my heart-throb fifty miles, —
 Through every line 't is beating ;
 God grant you many and happy years,
 Till when the last has crowned you
 The dawn of endless day appears,
 And Heaven is shining round you !
 October 11, 1875.

HYMN.

FOR THE INAUGURATION OF THE STATUE OF GOVERNOR ANDREW, HINGHAM,
 OCTOBER 7, 1875.

BEHOLD the shape our eyes have known !
 It lives once more in changeless stone ;
 So looked in mortal face and form
 Our guide through peril's deadly storm.

But hushed the beating heart we knew,
 That heart so tender, brave, and true,
 Firm as the rooted mountain rock,
 Pure as the quarry's whitest block !

Not his beneath the blood-red star
 To win the soldier's envied sear ;
 Unarmed he battled for the right,
 In Duty's never-ending fight.

Unconquered will, unslumbering eye,
 Faith such as bids the martyr die,
 The prophet's glance, the master's hand
 To mould the work his foresight planned,

These were his gifts ; what Heaven had lent
 For justice, mercy, truth, he spent,

First to avenge the traitorous blow,
And first to lift the vanquished foe.

Lo, thus he stood ; in danger's strait
The pilot of the Pilgrim State !
Too large his fame for her alone, —
A nation claims him as her own !

A MEMORIAL TRIBUTE.

READ AT THE MEETING HELD AT MUSIC
HALL, FEBRUARY 8, 1876, IN MEMORY OF DR. SAMUEL G. HOWE.

I.

LEADER of armies, Israel's God,
Thy soldier's fight is won !
Master, whose lowly path he trod,
Thy servant's work is done !

No voice is heard from Sinai's steep
Our wandering feet to guide ;
From Horeb's rock no waters leap ;
No Jordan's waves divide ;

No prophet cleaves our western sky
On wheels of whirling fire ;
No shepherds hear the song on high
Of heaven's angelic choir :

Yet here as to the patriarch's tent
God's angel comes a guest ;
He comes on heaven's high errand sent,
In earth's poor raiment drest.

We see no halo round his brow
Till love its own recalls,
And like a leaf that quits the bough,
The mortal vesture falls.

In autumn's chill declining day,
Ere winter's killing frost,
The message came ; so passed away
The friend our earth has lost.

Still, Father, in Thy love we trust ;
Forgive us if we mourn
The saddening hour that laid in dust
His robe of flesh outworn.

II.

How long the wreck-strewn journey
seems
To reach the far-off past
That woke his youth from peaceful dreams
With Freedom's trumpet-blast !

Along her classic hillsides rung
The Paynim's battle-cry,
And like a red-cross knight he sprung
For her to live or die.

No trustier service claimed the wreath
For Sparta's bravest son ;
No truer soldier sleeps beneath
The mound of Marathon ;

Yet not for him the warrior's grave
In front of angry foes ;
To lift, to shield, to help, to save,
The holier task he chose.

He touched the eyelids of the blind,
And lo ! the veil withdrawn,
As o'er the midnight of the mind,
He led the light of dawn.

He asked not whence the fountains roll
No traveller's foot has found,
But mapped the desert of the soul
Untracked by sight or sound.

What prayers have reached the sapphire
throne,
By silent fingers spelt,
For him who first through depths unknown
His doubtful pathway felt,

Who sought the slumbering sense that lay

Close shut with bolt and bar,
And showed awakening thought the ray
Of reason's morning star!

Where'er he moved, his shadowy form
The sightless orbs would seek,
And smiles of welcome light and warm
The lips that could not speak.

No labored line, no sculptor's art,
Such hallowed memory needs;
His tablet is the human heart,
His record loving deeds.

III.

The rest that earth denied is thine, —
Ah, is it rest? we ask,
Or, traced by knowledge more divine,
Some larger, nobler task?

Had but those boundless fields of blue
One darkened sphere like this;
But what has heaven for thee to do
In realms of perfect bliss?

No cloud to lift, no mind to clear,
No rugged path to smooth,
No struggling soul to help and cheer,
No mortal grief to soothe!

Enough; is there a world of love,
No more we ask to know;
The hand will guide thy ways above
That shaped thy task below.

JOSEPH WARREN, M. D.

TRAINED in the holy art whose lifted shield
Wards off the darts a never-slumbering foe,

By hearth and wayside lurking, waits to throw,

Oppression taught his helpful arm to wield

The slayer's weapon: on the murderous
field

The fiery bolt he challenged laid him
low,

Seeking its noblest victim. Even so
The charter of a nation must be sealed!
The healer's brow the hero's honors
crowned,

From lowliest duty called to loftiest
deed.

Living, the oak-leaf wreath his temples
bound;

Dying, the conqueror's laurel was his meed,

Last on the broken ramparts' turf to bleed

Where Freedom's victory in defeat was found.

June 11, 1875.

GRANDMOTHER'S STORY OF BUNKER- HILL BATTLE.

AS SHE SAW IT FROM THE BELFRY.

'T is like stirring living embers when,
at eighty, one remembers

All the achings and the quakings of "the times that tried men's souls";

When I talk of Whig and Tory, when I tell the Rebel story,

To you the words are ashes, but to me they're burning coals.

I had heard the muskets' rattle of the April running battle;

Lord Percy's hunted soldiers, I can see their red coats still;

But a deadly chill comes o'er me, as the day looms up before me,

When a thousand men lay bleeding on the slopes of Bunker's Hill.

'T was a peaceful summer's morning, when the first thing gave us warning Was the booming of the cannon from the river and the shore :

"Child," says grandma, "what's the matter, what is all this noise and clatter ?

Have those scalping Indian devils come to murder us once more ?"

Poor old soul ! my sides were shaking in the midst of all my quaking,
To hear her talk of Indians when the guns began to roar :

She had seen the burning village, and the slaughter and the pillage,
When the Mohawks killed her father with their bullets through his door.

Then I said, "Now, dear old granny, don't you fret and worry any,
For I'll soon come back and tell you whether this is work or play ;
There can't be mischief in it, so I won't be gone a minute" —

For a minute then I started. I was gone the livelong day.

No time for bodice-lacing or for lookingglass grimacing ;

Down my hair went as I hurried, tumbling half-way to my heels ;

God forbid your ever knowing, when there's blood around her flowing, How the lonely, helpless daughter of a quiet household feels !

In the street I heard a thumping ; and I knew it was the stamping

Of the Corporal, our old neighbor, on that wooden leg he wore,

With a knot of women round him, — it was lucky I had found him,

So I followed with the others, and the Corporal marched before.

They were making for the steeple, — the old soldier and his people ;

The pigeons circled round us as we climbed the creaking stair,

Just across the narrow river — Ó, so close it made me shiver ! —

Stood a fortress on the hill-top that but yesterday was bare.

Not slow our eyes to find it ; well we knew who stood behind it,

Though the earthwork hid them from us, and the stubborn walls were dumb :

Here were sister, wife, and mother, looking wild upon each other,

And their lips were white with terror as they said, THE HOUR HAS COME !

The morning slowly wasted, not a morsel had we tasted,

And our heads were almost splitting with the cannons' deafening thrill,

When a figure tall and stately round the rampart strode sedately ;

It was PRESCOTT, one since told me ; he commanded on the hill.

Every woman's heart grew bigger when we saw his manly figure,

With the banyan buckled round it, standing up so straight and tall ;

Like a gentleman of leisure who is strolling out for pleasure,

Through the storm of shells and cannon-shot he walked around the wall.

At eleven the streets were swarming, for the red-coats' ranks were forming ;

At noon in marching order they were moving to the piers ;

How the bayonets gleamed and glistened, as we looked far down, and listened

To the trampling and the drum-beat of the belted grenadiers !

At length the men have started, with a cheer (it seemed faint-hearted), In their scarlet regimentals, with their knapsacks on their backs,
And the reddening, rippling water, as after a sea-fight's slaughter, Round the barges gliding onward blushed like blood along their tracks.

So they crossed to the other border, and again they formed in order ;
And the boats came back for soldiers, came for soldiers, soldiers still :
The time seemed everlasting to us women faint and fasting, —
At last they 're moving, marching, marching proudly up the hill.

We can see the bright steel glancing all along the lines advancing — Now the front rank fires a volley — they have thrown away their shot ;
For behind their earthwork lying, all the balls above them flying,
Our people need not hurry ; so they wait and answer not.

Then the Corporal, our old cripple (he would swear sometimes and tip-ple), —
He had heard the bullets whistle (in the old French war) before, — Calls out in words of jeering, just as if they all were hearing, — And his wooden leg thumps fiercely on the dusty belfry floor : —

“Oh ! fire away, ye villains, and earn King George's shillin's,
But ye 'll waste a ton of powder afore a 'rebel' falls ;
You may bang the dirt and welcome,
they're as safe as Dan'l Malcolm Ten foot beneath the gravestone that you've splintered with your balls !”

In the hush of expectation, in the awe and trepidation
Of the dread approaching moment, we are wellnigh breathless all ; Though the rotten bars are failing on the rickety belfry railing,
We are crowding up against them like the waves against a wall.

Just a glimpse (the air is clearer), they are nearer, — nearer, — nearer,
When a flash — a curling smoke-wreath — then a crash — the steeple shakes —
The deadly truce is ended ; the tempest's shroud is rended ;
Like a morning mist it gathered, like a thunder-cloud it breaks !

O the sight our eyes discover as the blue-black smoke blows over !
The red-coats stretched in windrows as a mower rakes his hay ;
Here a scarlet heap is lying, there a headlong crowd is flying Like a billow that has broken and is shivered into spray.

Then we cried, “The troops are routed !
they are beat — it can't be doubted !
God be thanked, the fight is over !” —
Ah ! the grim old soldier's smile !
“Tell us, tell us why you look so ?” (we could hardly speak, we shook so), — “Are they beaten ? Are they beaten ?
ARE they beaten ?” — “Wait a while.”

O the trembling and the terror ! for too soon we saw our error :
They are baffled, not defeated ; we have driven them back in vain ;
And the columns that were scattered,
round the colors that were tattered, Toward the sullen silent fortress turn their belted breasts again.

“How they surged above the breastwork.”

All at once, as we are gazing, lo the roofs of Charlestown blazing!

They have fired the harmless village;
in an hour it will be down!

The Lord in heaven confound them, rain his fire and brimstone round
them, —

The robbing, murdering red-coats, that would burn a peaceful town!

They are marching, stern and solemn;
we can see each massive column

As they near the naked earth-mound with the slanting walls so steep.

Have our soldiers got faint-hearted, and in noiseless haste departed?

Are they panic-struck and helpless?
Are they palsied or asleep?

Now! the walls they're almost under!
scarce a rod the foes asunder!

Not a firelock flashed against them! up the earthwork they will swarm!

But the words have scarce been spoken,
when the ominous calm is broken,

And a bellowing crash has emptied all the vengeance of the storm!

So again, with murderous slaughter, pelted backwards to the water,

Fly Pigot's running heroes and the frightened braves of Howe;

And we shout, "At last they're done for, it's their barges they have run
for:

They are beaten, beaten, beaten; and the battle's over now!"

And we looked, poor timid creatures, on the rough old soldier's features,

Our lips afraid to question, but he knew what we would ask:

"Not sure," he said; "keep quiet, — once more, I guess, they'll try it — Here's damnation to the cut-throats!"

— then he handed me his flask,

Saying, "Gal, you're looking shaky;
have a drop of old Jamaiky;

I'm afeard there'll be more trouble afore
the job is done";

So I took one scorching swallow; dreadful faint I felt and hollow,

Standing there from early morning when the firing was begun.

All through those hours of trial I had watched a calm clock dial,

As the hands kept creeping, creeping, — they were creeping round to four,

When the old man said, "They're forming with their bagonets fixed for storming:

It's the death-grip that's a coming, — they will try the works once more."

With brazen trumpets blaring, the flames behind them glaring,

The deadly wall before them, in close array they come;

Still onward, upward toiling, like a dragon's fold uncoiling, —

Like the rattlesnake's shrill warning the reverberating drum!

Over heaps all torn and gory — shall I tell the fearful story,

How they surged above the breastwork,
as a sea breaks over a deck;

How, driven, yet scarce defeated, our worn-out men retreated,

With their powder-horns all emptied, like the swimmers from a wreck!

It has all been told and painted; as for me, they say I fainted,

And the wooden-legged old Corporal stumped with me down the stair:

When I woke from dreams affrighted the evening lamps were lighted, —

On the floor a youth was lying; his bleeding breast was bare.

And I heard through all the flurry,
 "Send for WARREN! hurry! hurry!
 Tell him here's a soldier bleeding, and he'll come, and dress his wound!" Ah, we knew not till the morrow told its tale of death and sorrow, How the starlight found him stiffened on the dark and bloody ground.

Who the youth was, what his name was, where the place from which he came was,
 Who had brought him from the battle,
 and had left him at our door,
 He could not speak to tell us; but
 't was one of our brave fellows,
 As the homespun plainly showed us which the dying soldier wore.

For they all thought he was dying, as they gathered round him crying, —
 And they said, "O, how they'll miss him!" and, "What will his mother
 do?"
 Then, his eyelids just unclosing like a child's that has been dozing, He faintly murmured, "Mother!" — and — I saw his eyes were blue.

— "Why, grandma, how you're winking!" — Ah, my child, it sets me thinking
 Of a story not like this one. Well, he somehow lived along;
 So we came to know each other, and I nursed him like a — mother, Till at last he stood before me, tall, and rosy-cheeked, and strong.

And we sometimes walked together in the pleasant summer weather;
 — "Please to tell us what his name was?" — Just your own, my little
 dear, —

There's his picture Copley painted: we became so well acquainted,
 That — in short, that's why I'm grandma, and you children all are here!

OLD CAMBRIDGE.

JULY 3, 1875.

AND can it be you've found a place Within this consecrated space
 That makes so fine a show
 For one of Rip Van Winkle's race?
 And is it really so?
 Who wants an old receipted bill?
 Who fishes in the Frog-pond still?
 Who digs last year's potato hill? —
 That's what he'd like to know!

And were it any spot on earth
 Save this dear home that gave him birth
 Some scores of years ago,
 He had not come to spoil your mirth
 And chill your festive glow;
 But round his baby-nest he strays,
 With tearful eye the scene surveys,
 His heart unchanged by changing
 days, —
 That's what he'd have you know.

Can you whose eyes not yet are dim
 Live o'er the buried past with him,
 And see the roses blow
 When white-haired men were Joe and Jim
 Untouched by winter's snow?
 Or roll the years back one by one
 As Judah's monarch backed the sun,
 And see the century just begun? —
 That's what he'd like to know!

I come, but as the swallow dips,
 Just touching with her feather-tips
 The shining wave below,

To sit with pleasure-murmuring lips
 And listen to the flow
 Of Elmwood's sparkling Hippocrene,
 To tread once more my native green,
 To sigh unheard, to smile unseen, —
 That's what I'd have you know.

But since the common lot I've shared (We all are sitting "unprepared,"
 Like culprits in a row, Whose heads are down, whose necks are bared

To wait the headsman's blow)
 I'd like to shift my task to you,
 By asking just a thing or two
 About the good old times I knew, — Here's what I want to know :

The yellow meetin' house — can you tell
 Just where it stood before it fell

Prey of the vandal foe, —
 Our dear old temple, loved so well
 By ruthless hands laid low ?
 Where, tell me, was the Deacon's pew ?
 Whose hair was braided in a queue ?
 (For there were pig-tails not a few,) —
 That's what I'd like to know.

The bell — can you recall its clang ?
 And how the seats would slam and bang ?

The voices high and low ?
 The basso's trump before he sang ?
 The viol and its bow ?
 Where was it old Judge Winthrop sat ?
 Who wore the last three-cornered hat ?
 Was Israel Porter lean or fat ? —
 That's what I'd like to know.

Tell where the market used to be
 That stood beside the murdered tree ?

Whose dog to church would go ?
 Old Marcus Reemie, who was he ?
 Who were the brothers Snow ?
 Does not your memory slightly fail
 About that great September gale

Whereof one told a moving tale,
 As Cambridge boys should know.

When Cambridge was a simple town,
 Say just when Deacon William Brown
 (Last door in yonder row),
 For honest silver counted down,
 His groceries would bestow ? —
 For those were days when money meant Something that jingled as you went, —
 No hybrid like the nickel cent,
 I'd have you all to know,

But quarter, ninepence, pistareen,
 And fourpence happennies in between All metal fit to show,
 Instead of rags in stagnant green,
 The sum of debts we owe ;
 How sad to think such stuff should be
 Our Wendell's cure-all recipe, —
 Not Wendell H., but Wendell P., —
 The one you all must know !

I question — but you answer not —
 Dear me ! and have I quite forgot
 How fivescore years ago,
 Just on this very blessed spot,
 The summer leaves below,
 Before his homespun ranks arrayed
 In green New England's elmbough shade
 The great Virginian drew the blade
 King George full soon should know !

O George the Third ! you found it true
 Our George was more than double you,
 For nature made him so.
 Not much an empire's crown can do
 If brains are scant and slow, —
 Ah, not like that his laurel crown Whose presence gilded with renown
 Our brave old Academic town,
 As all her children know !

So here we meet with loud acclaim
 To tell mankind that here he came,
 With hearts that throb and glow ;

Ours is a portion of his fame
 Our trumpets needs must blow !
 On yonder hill the Lion fell,
 But here was chipped the eagle's shell, —
 That little hatchet did it well,
 As all the world shall know !

WELCOME TO THE NATIONS.

PHILADELPHIA, JULY 4, 1876.

BRIGHT on the banners of lily and rose
 Lo ! the last sun of our century sets !
 Wreath the black cannon that scowled on our foes,
 All but her friendships the nation forgets !
 All but her friends and their welcome forgets !
 These are around her ; but where are her foes ?
 Lo, while the sun of her century sets, Peace with her garlands of lily and
 rose !

Welcome ! a shout like the war trumpet's swell
 Wakes the wild echoes that slumber around !
 Welcome ! it quivers from Liberty's bell ;
 Welcome ! the walls of her temple re-
 sound !
 Hark ! the gray walls of her temple
 resound !

Fade the far voices o'er hillside and dell ;
 Welcome ! still whisper the echoes
 around ;
 Welcome ! still trembles on Liberty's
 bell !

Thrones of the continents ! isles of the sea !
 Yours are the garlands of peace we entwine ;
 Welcome, once more, to the land of the free,

Shadowed alike by the palm and the pine ;
 Softly they murmur, the palm and the pine,
 " Hushed is our strife, in the land of the free " ;
 Over your children their branches en-
 twine,
 Thrones of the continents ! isles of the sea !

A FAMILIAR LETTER.

TO SEVERAL CORRESPONDENTS.

YES, write, if you want to, there 's nothing like trying ;
 Who knows what a treasure your casket may hold ?
 I 'll show you that rhyming 's as easy as lying
 If you 'll listen to me while the art I unfold.

Here 's a book full of words ; one can choose as he fancies,
 As a painter his tint, as a workman his tool ;
 Just think ! all the poems and plays and romances
 Were drawn out of this, like the fish from a pool !

You can wander at will through its syl-labled mazes,
 And take all you want, — not a copper they cost, —
 What is there to hinder your picking out phrases
 For an epic as clever as " Paradise Lost " ?

Don't mind if the index of sense is at zero,

Use words that run smoothly, whatever they mean ;
 Leander and Lilian and Lillibullero Are much the same thing in the rhyming machine.

There are words so delicious their sweetness will smother
 That boarding-school flavor of which we're afraid, —
 There is "lush" is a good one, and "swirl" is another, — Put both in one stanza, its fortune is made.

With musical murmurs and rhythmical closes
 You can cheat us of smiles when you've nothing to tell ;
 You hand us a nosegay of milliner's roses,
 And we cry with delight, "O, how sweet they do smell !"

Perhaps you will answer all needful conditions
 For winning the laurels to which you aspire,
 By docking the tails of the two prepositions
 I' the style o' the bards you so greatly admire.

As for subjects of verse, they are only too plenty
 For ringing the changes on metrical
 chimes ;
 A maiden, a moonbeam, a lover of twenty Have filled that great basket with bushels of rhymes.

Let me show you a picture — 't is far from irrelevant —
 By a famous old hand in the arts of design ;

'T is only a photographed sketch of an elephant, —
 The name of the draughtsman was Rembrandt of Rhine.

How easy ! no troublesome colors to lay
 on,
 It can't have fatigued him, — no, not in the least, —
 A dash here and there with a hap-hazard crayon,
 And there stands the wrinkled-skinned, baggy-limbed beast.

Just so with your verse, — 't is as easy as sketching, —
 You can reel off a song without knitting your brow,
 As lightly as Rembrandt a drawing or etching ;
 It is nothing at all, if you only know how.

Well ; imagine you've printed your volume of verses :
 Your forehead is wreathed with the garland of fame,
 Your poems the eloquent school-boy rehearses,
 Her album the school-girl presents for your name ;

Each morning the post brings you autograph letters ;
 You'll answer them promptly, — an hour is n't much For the honor of sharing a page with your betters,
 With magistrates, members of Congress, and such.

Of course you're delighted to serve the committees
 That come with requests from the country all round ;

You would grace the occasion with poems and ditties

When they've got a new schoolhouse, or poorhouse, or pound.

With a hymn for the saints and a song for the sinners,

You go and are welcome wherever you
please ;

You're a privileged guest at all manner of dinners,

You've a seat on the platform among the grandees.

At length your mere presence becomes a sensation,

Your cup of enjoyment is filled to its brim

With the pleasure Horatian of digitmonstration,

As the whisper runs round of "That's he!" or "That's him!"

But remember, O dealer in phrases sonorous,

So daintily chosen, so tunefully matched,

Though you soar with the wings of the cherubim o'er us,

The ovum was human from which you were hatched.

No will of your own with its puny compulsion

Can summon the spirit that quickens the lyre ;

It comes, if at all, like the Sibyl's convulsion

And touches the brain with a finger of fire.

So perhaps, after all, it's as well to be quiet,

If you've nothing you think is worth saying in prose,

As to furnish a meal of their cannibal diet

To the critics, by publishing, as you propose.

But it's all of no use, and I'm sorry
I've written, —

I shall see your thin volume some day on my shelf ;

For the rhyming tarantula surely has bitten,

And music must cure you, so pipe it yourself.

UNSATISFIED.

"ONLY a housemaid!" She looked from the kitchen, —

Neat was the kitchen and tidy was she ;

There at her window a sempstress sat stitching ;

"Were I a sempstress, how happy I'd be!"

"Only a Queen!" She looked over the waters, —

Fair was her kingdom and mighty was
she ;

There sat an Empress, with Queens for her daughters ;

"Were I an Empress, how happy I'd be!"

Still the old frailty they all of them trip
in !

Eve in her daughters is ever the same ;

Give her all Eden, she sighs for a pippin ;

Give her an Empire, she pines for a
name !

HOW THE OLD HORSE WON THE BET.

DEDICATED BY A CONTRIBUTOR TO THE COLLEGIAN, 1830, TO THE EDITORS OF THE HARVARD ADVOCATE, 1876.

'T WAS on the famous trotting-ground,
The betting men were gathered round From far and near; the "cracks" were
there

Whose deeds the sporting prints declare :
The swift g. m., Old Hiram's nag,
The fleet s. h., Dan Pfeiffer's brag,
With these a third — and who is he
That stands beside his fast b. g.?
Budd Doble, whose catarrhal name
So fills the nasal trump of fame.
There too stood many a noted steed
Of Messenger and Morgan breed ;
Green horses also, not a few ;
Unknown as yet what they could do ;
And all the hacks that know so well
The scourgings of the Sunday swell.

Blue are the skies of opening day ;
The bordering turf is green with May ;
The sunshine's golden gleam is thrown
On sorrel, chestnut, bay, and roan ;
The horses paw and prance and neigh,
Fillies and colts like kittens play,
And dance and toss their rippled manes
Shining and soft as silken skeins ;
Wagons and gigs are ranged about,
And fashion flaunts her gay turn-out ;
Here stands — each youthful Jehu's
dream —

The jointed tandem, ticklish team !
And there in ampler breadth expand
The splendors of the four-in-hand ;
On faultless ties and glossy tiles
The lovely bonnets beam their smiles ;
(The style 's the man, so books avow ;
The style 's the woman, anyhow) ;
From flounces frothed with creamy lace
Peeps out the pug-dog's smutty face,

Or spaniel rolls his liquid eye,
Or stares the wiry pet of Skye —
O woman, in your hours of ease
So shy with us, so free with these !

"Come on ! I'll bet you two to one I'll make him do it !" "Will you ?
Done !"

What was it who was bound to do ?
I did not hear and can't tell you, —
Pray listen till my story 's through.

Scarce noticed, back behind the rest,
By cart and wagon rudely prest,
The parson's lean and bony bay
Stood harnessed in his one-horse shay —
Lent to his sexton for the day ;
(A funeral — so the sexton said ;
His mother's uncle's wife was dead.)

Like Lazarus bid to Dives' feast,
So looked the poor forlorn old beast ;
His coat was rough, his tail was bare,
The gray was sprinkled in his hair ;
Sportsmen and jockeys knew him not
And yet they say he once could trot
Among the fleetest of the town, Till something cracked and broke him
down, —
The steed's, the statesman's, common lot !

"And are we then so soon forgot ?"
Ah me ! I doubt if one of you
Has ever heard the name "Old Blue,"
Whose fame through all this region rung
In those old days when I was young !

"Bring forth the horse !" Alas ! he showed
Not like the one Mazeppa rode ;
Scant-maned, sharp-backed, and shaky-kneed,
The wreck of what was once a steed,
Lips thin, eyes hollow, stiff in joints ;

Yet not without his knowing points.
The sexton laughing in his sleeve,
As if 't were all a make-believe,
Led forth the horse, and as he laughed
Unhitched the breeching from a shaft,
Unclasped the rusty belt beneath,
Drew forth the snaffle from his teeth,
Slipped off his head-stall, set him free
From strap and rein, — a sight to see !

So worn, so lean in every limb,
It can't be they are saddling him !
It is ! his back the pig-skin strides
And flaps his lank, rheumatic sides ;
With look of mingled scorn and mirth
They buckle round the saddle-girth ;
With horsey wink and saucy toss
A youngster throws his leg across,
And so, his rider on his back,
They lead him, limping, to the track,
Far up behind the starting-point,
To limber out each stiffened joint.

As through the jeering crowd he past,
One pitying look old Hiram cast ;
"Go it, ye cripple, while ye can !"
Cried out unsentimental Dan ;
"A Fast-Day dinner for the crows !"
Budd Doble's scoffing shout arose.

Slowly, as when the walking-beam
First feels the gathering head of steam,
With warning cough and threatening wheeze
The stiff old charger crooks his knees ;
At first with cautious step sedate,
As if he dragged a coach of state ;
As if he dragged a coach of state ;
He's not a colt ; he knows full well
That time is weight and sure to tell ;
No horse so sturdy but he fears
The handicap of twenty years.

As through the throng on either hand
The old horse nears the judges' stand,
Beneath his jockey's feather-weight
He warms a little to his gait,

And now and then a step is tried
That hints of something like a stride.

"Go !" — Through his ear the summons stung
As if a battle-trump had rung ;
The slumbering instincts long un-stirred
Start at the old familiar word ;
It thrills like flame through every limb—
What mean his twenty years to him ?
The savage blow his rider dealt Fell on his hollow flanks unfelt ;
The spur that pricked his staring hide Unheeded tore his bleeding side ;
Alike to him are spur and rein, —
He steps a five-year-old again !

Before the quarter pole was past,
Old Hiram said, "He's going fast."
Long ere the quarter was a half,
The chuckling crowd had ceased to
laugh ;

Tighter his frightened jockey clung
As in a mighty stride he swung,
The gravel flying in his track,
His neck stretched out, his ears laid back,

His tail extended all the while Behind him like a rat-tail file !
Off went a shoe, — away it spun,
Shot like a bullet from a gun ;
The quaking jockey shapes a prayer
From scraps of oaths he used to swear ;
He drops his whip, he drops his rein,
He clutches fiercely for a mane ;
He 'll lose his hold — he sways and reels—
He 'll slide beneath those trampling heels !

The knees of many a horseman quake,
The flowers on many a bonnet shake,
And shouts arise from left and right,
"Stick on ! Stick on !" "Hould tight !
Hould tight !"

"Cling round his neck and don't let go —

"That pace can't hold — there! steady!
whoa!"

But like the sable steed that bore
The spectral lover of Lenore,
His nostrils snorting foam and fire,
No stretch his bony limbs can tire;
And now the stand he rushes by,
And "Stop him! — stop him!" is the cry.

Stand back! he's only just begun —
He's having out three heats in one!

"Don't rush in front! he'll smash your brains;

But follow up and grab the reins!"
Old Hiram spoke. Dan Pfeiffer heard,
And sprang impatient at the word;
Budd Doble started on his bay,
Old Hiram followed on his gray,
And off they spring, and round they go,
The fast ones doing "all they know."
Look! twice they follow at his heels,
As round the circling course he wheels,
And whirls with him that clinging boy
Like Hector round the walls of Troy;
Still on, and on, the third time round!
They're tailing off! they're losing
ground!

Budd Doble's nag begins to fail!
Dan Pfeiffer's sorrel whisks his tail!
And see! in spite of whip and shout,
Old Hiram's mare is giving out!
Now for the finish! at the turn,
The old horse — all the rest astern —
Comes swinging in, with easy trot;
By Jove! he's distanced all the lot!

That trot no mortal could explain;
Some said, "Old Dutchman come
again!"

Some took his time, — at least they tried,
But what it was could none decide;

One said he could n't understand
What happened to his second hand;
One said 2. 10; that could n't be —
More like two twenty two or three;
Old Hiram settled it at last;
"The time was two — too dee-vel-ish fast!"

The parson's horse had won the bet;
It cost him something of a sweat;
Back in the one-horse shay he went;
The parson wondered what it meant,
And murmured, with a mild surprise
And pleasant twinkle of the eyes,
"That funeral must have been a trick,
Or corpses drive at double-quick;
I should n't wonder, I declare,
If brother Murray made the prayer!"

And this is all I have to say About the parson's poor old bay,
The same that drew the one-horse
shay.

Moral for which this tale is told:
A horse can trot, for all he's old.

AN APPEAL FOR "THE OLD SOUTH."

"While stands the Coliseum, Rome shall
stand;
When falls the Coliseum, Rome shall fall."

FULL sevenscore years our city's pride —

The comely Southern spire —
Has cast its shadow, and defied

The storm, the foe, the fire;
Sad is the sight our eyes behold;

Woe to the three-hilled town, When through the land the tale is told —

"The brave 'Old South' is down!"

Let darkness blot the starless dawn
That hears our children tell,

“Here rose the walls, now wrecked and gone,

Our fathers loved so well ;
Here, while his brethren stood aloof,
The herald's blast was blown
That shook St. Stephen's pillared roof
And rocked King George's throne !

“The home-bound wanderer of the main Looked from his deck afar,
To where the gilded, glittering vane
Shone like the evening star,
And pilgrim feet from every clime
The floor with reverence trod,
Where holy memories made sublime
The shrine of Freedom's God !”

The darkened skies, alas ! have seen
Our monarch tree laid low,
And spread in ruins o'er the green,
But Nature struck the blow ;
No scheming thrift its downfall planned,
It felt no edge of steel,
No soulless hireling raised his hand
The deadly stroke to deal.

In bridal garlands, pale and mute,
Still pleads the storied tower ;
These are the blossoms, but the fruit
Awaits the golden shower ;
The spire still greets the morning sun, —
Say, shall it stand or fall ?
Help, ere the spoiler has begun !
Help, each, and God help all !

THE FIRST FAN.

READ AT A MEETING OF THE BOSTON
BRIC-À-BRAC CLUB, FEBRUARY 21, 1877.

WHEN rose the cry “Great Pan is dead !”
And Jove's high palace closed its portal,
The fallen gods, before they fled,
Sold out their frippery to a mortal.

“To whom ?” you ask. I ask of you.
The answer hardly needs suggestion ;
Of course it was the Wandering Jew, —
How could you put me such a question ?

A purple robe, a little worn,
The Thunderer deigned himself to offer ;
The bearded wanderer laughed in scorn, —
You know he always was a scoffer.

“Vife shillins ! 't is a monstrous price ;
Say two and six and further talk shun.”

“Take it,” cried Jove ; “we can't be nice, —
'T would fetch twice that at Leonard's auction.”

The ice was broken ; up they came,
All sharp for bargains, god and goddess,
Each ready with the price to name
For robe or head-dress, scarf or bodice.

First Juno, out of temper, too, —
Her queenly forehead somewhat cloudy ;
Then Pallas in her stockings blue,
Imposing, but a little dowdy.

The scowling queen of heaven unrolled
Before the Jew a threadbare turban : “Three shillings.” “One. 'T will suit some old Terrific feminine suburban.”

But as for Pallas, — how to tell
In seemly phrase a fact so shocking ?
She pointed, — pray excuse me, — well,
She pointed to her azure stocking.

And if the honest truth were told,
Its heel confessed the need of darning ;

“Poor Venus! What had she to sell?
For all she looked so fresh and jaunty.”

“Gods!” low-bred Vulcan cried, “behold!
There! that’s what comes of too much larning!”

Pale Proserpine came groping round,
Her pupils dreadfully dilated
With too much living underground, —
A residence quite overrated;

“This kerchief’s what you want, I
know, —
Don’t cheat poor Venus of her ces-tus, —
You’ll find it handy when you go To — you know where; it’s pure as-bestus.”

Then Phœbus of the silver bow,
And Hebe, dimpled as a baby,
And Dian with the breast of snow, Chaser and chased — and caught, it may be:

One took the quiver from her back,
One held the cap he spent the night
in,
And one a bit of bric-à-brac,
Such as the gods themselves delight in.

Then Mars, the foe of human kind, Strode up and showed his suit of armor;
So none at last was left behind
Save Venus, the celestial charmer.

Poor Venus! What had she to sell?
For all she looked so fresh and jaunty,
Her wardrobe, as I blush to tell,
Already seemed but quite too scanty.

Her gems were sold, her sandals gone, — She always would be rash and flighty, —
Her winter garments all in pawn,
Alas for charming Aphrodite!

The lady of a thousand loves,
The darling of the old religion,
Had only left of all the doves
That drew her car one fan-tailed pigeon.

How oft upon her finger-tips
He perched, afraid of Cupid’s arrow,
Or kissed her on the rosebud lips,
Like Roman Lesbia’s loving sparrow!

“My bird, I want your train,” she cried; “Come, don’t let’s have a fuss about
it;
I’ll make it beauty’s pet and pride,
And you’ll be better off without it.

“So vulgar! Have you noticed, pray,
An earthly belle or dashing bride walk,
And how her flounces track her way,
Like slimy serpents on the sidewalk?

“A lover’s heart it quickly cools;
In mine it kindles up enough rage To wring their necks. How can such fools
Ask men to vote for woman suffrage?”

The goddess spoke, and gently stripped
Her bird of every caudal feather;
A strand of gold-bright hair she clipped,
And bound the glossy plumes together,

And lo, the Fan! for beauty’s hand,
The lovely queen of beauty made it;
The price she named was hard to stand,
But Venus smiled: the Hebrew paid it.

Jove, Juno, Venus, where are you?
Mars, Mercury, Phœbus, Neptune, Saturn?

But o’er the world the Wandering Jew
Has borne the Fan’s celestial pattern.

So everywhere we find the Fan, —
In lonely isles of the Pacific,

In farthest China and Japan, —
Wherever suns are sudorific.

Nay, even the oily Esquimaux
In summer court its cooling breezes, —
In fact, in every clime 't is so,
No matter if it fries or freezes.

And since from Aphrodite's dove
The pattern of the fan was given,
No wonder that it breathes of love And wafts the perfumed gales of heaven !

Before this new Pandora's gift
In slavery woman's tyrant kept her,
But now he kneels her glove to lift, —
The fan is mightier than the sceptre.

The tap it gives how arch and sly !
The breath it wakes how fresh and grateful !

Behind its shield how soft the sigh !
The whispered tale of shame how fateful !

Its empire shadows every throne
And every shore that man is tost on ;
It rules the lords of every zone,
Nay, even the bluest blood of Boston !

But every one that swings to-night,
Of fairest shape, from farthest region,
May trace its pedigree aright
To Aphrodite's fan-tailed pigeon.

TO R. B. H.

AT THE DINNER TO THE PRESIDENT,
BOSTON, JUNE 26, 1877.

How to address him? awkward, it is
true :

Call him "Great Father," as the Red Men do ?

Borrow some title ? this is not the place

That christens men Your Highness and Your Grace ;
We tried such names as these awhile,
you know,
But left them off a century ago.

His Majesty? We've had enough of that :

Besides, that needs a crown ; he wears a hat.

What if, to make the nicer ears content,
We say His Honesty, the President ?

Sir, we believed you honest, truthful,
brave,

When to your hands their precious trust we gave,

And we have found you better than we
knew,

Braver, and not less honest, not less
true !

So every heart has opened, every hand Tingles with welcome, and through all the land

All voices greet you in one broad acclaim, Healer of strife ! Has earth a nobler
name ?

What phrases mean you do not need to learn ;

We must be civil and they serve our turn :

"Your most obedient humble" means
— means what ?

Something the well-bred signer just is not.

Yet there are tokens, sir, you must believe ;

There is one language never can deceive :
The lover knew it when the maiden
smiled ;

The mother knows it when she clasps her child ;

Voices may falter, trembling lips turn
pale,

Words grope and stumble ; this will tell their tale

Shorn of all rhetoric, bare of all pretence,
But radiant, warm, with Nature's eloquence.

Look in our eyes ! Your welcome waits you there, —

North, South, East, West, from all and everywhere !

"THE SHIP OF STATE."

A SENTIMENT.

THE Ship of State ! above her skies are
blue,

But still she rocks a little, it is true,
And there are passengers whose faces
white

Show they don't feel as happy as they might ;

Yet on the whole her crew are quite content,

Since its wild fury the typhoon has spent,

And willing, if her pilot thinks it best,
To head a little nearer south by west.

And this they feel : the ship came too near wreck,

In the long quarrel for the quarter-
deck,

Now when she glides serenely on her
way,

— The shallows past where dread explosives lay, —

The stiff obstructive's churlish game to try :

Let sleeping dogs and still torpedoes
lie !

And so I give you all the Ship of State ;
Freedom's last venture is her priceless freight ;

God speed her, keep her, bless her, while she steers

Amid the breakers of unsounded years ;

Lead her through danger's paths with even keel,
And guide the honest hand that holds her wheel !

WOODSTOCK, CONN., July 4, 1877.

A FAMILY RECORD.

WOODSTOCK, CONN., JULY 4, 1877.

NOT to myself this breath of vesper
song,

Not to these patient friends, this kindly throng,

Not to this hallowed morning, though it be

Our summer Christmas, Freedom's jubilee,

When every summit, topmast, steeple,
tower,

That owns her empire spreads her starry
flower,

Its blood-streaked leaves in heaven's benignant dew

Washed clean from every crimson stain they knew —

No, not to these the passing thrills belong

That steal my breath to hush themselves with song.

These moments all are memory's ; I have come

To speak with lips that rather should be dumb ;

For what are words ? At every step I tread

The dust that wore the footprints of the dead

But for whose life my life had never known

This faded vesture which it calls its own.
Here sleeps my father's sire, and they who gave

That earlier life here found their peaceful grave.

In days gone by I sought the hallowed
ground ;
Climbed yon long slope ; the sacred spot
I found
Where all unsullied lies the winter snow, Where all ungathered Spring's pale violets blow,
And tracked from stone to stone the Saxon name
That marks the blood I need not blush
to claim,
Blood such as warmed the Pilgrim sons
of toil,
Who held from God the charter of the soil.

I come an alien to your hills and
plains,
Yet feel your birthright tingling in my veins ;
Mine are this changing prospect's sun and shade,
In full-blown summer's bridal pomp arrayed ;
Mine these fair hillsides and the vales between ;
Mine the sweet streams that lend their brightening green ;
I breathed your air — the sunlit landscape smiled ;
I touch your soil — it knows its children's child ;
Throned in my heart your heritage is
mine ;
I claim it all by memory's right divine !
Waking, I dream. Before my vacant
eyes
In long procession shadowy forms arise ;
Far through the vista of the silent years
I see a venturous band ; the pioneers, Who let the sunlight through the forest's gloom,
Who bade the harvest wave, the garden
bloom.
Hark ! loud resounds the bare-armed settler's axe, —

See where the stealthy panther left his tracks !
As fierce, as stealthy creeps the skulking foe
With stone-tipped shaft and sinewcorded bow ;
Soon shall he vanish from his ancient
reign,
Leave his last cornfield to the coming
train,
Quit the green margin of the wave he drinks,
For haunts that hide the wild-cat and the lynx.

But who the Youth his glistening axe that swings
To smite the pine that shows a hundred rings ?
His features ? — something in his look
I find
That calls the semblance of my race to
mind.
His name ? — my own ; and that which goes before
The same that once the loved disciple
bore.
Young, brave, discreet, the father of a line Whose voiceless lives have found a voice in mine ;
Thinned by unnumbered currents though they be,
Thanks for the ruddy drops I claim from
thee !

The seasons pass ; the roses come and go ;
Snows fall and melt ; the waters freeze and flow ;
The boys are men ; the girls, grown tall and fair,
Have found their mates ; a gravestone here and there
Tells where the fathers lie ; the silvered
hair

Of some bent patriarch yet recalls the
time
That saw his feet the northern hillside
climb,
A pilgrim from the pilgrims far away,
The godly men, the dwellers by the bay.
On many a hearthstone burns the cheerful fire ;
The schoolhouse porch, the heavenward pointing spire
Proclaim in letters every eye can read, Knowledge and Faith, the new world's simple creed.
Hush ! 't is the Sabbath's silence-stricken morn :
No feet must wander through the tas-selled corn ;
No merry children laugh around the
door,
No idle playthings strew the sanded
floor ;
The law of Moses lays its awful ban
On all that stirs ; here comes the tithing-man !
At last the solemn hour of worship calls ;
Slowly they gather in the sacred walls ;
Man in his strength * and age with knotted staff,
And boyhood aching for its week-day
laugh,
The toil-worn mother with the child
she leads,
The maiden, lovely in her golden beads, —
The popish symbols round her neck she wears,
But on them counts her lovers, not her prayers, —
Those youths in homespun suits and ribboned queues,
Whose hearts are beating in the high-backed pews.
The pastor rises ; looks along the seats
With searching eye ; each wonted face he meets ;
Asks heavenly guidance ; finds the chapter's place
That tells some tale of Israel's stubborn
race ;
Gives out the sacred song ; all voices join,
For no quartette extorts their scanty
coin ;
Then while both hands their black-gloved palms display, Lifts his gray head, and murmurs " Let us pray !"
And pray he does ! as one that never fears
To plead unanswered by the God that hears ;
What if he dwells on many a fact as though Some things Heaven knew not which it ought to know, —
Thanks God for all His favors past, and
yet,
Tells Him there's something He must not forget ;
Such are the prayers his people love to hear, —
See how the Deacon slants his listening
ear !
What ! look once more ! Nay, surely there I trace
The hinted outlines of a well-known
face !
Not those the lips for laughter to beguile,
Yet round their corners lurks an embryo
smile,
The same on other lips my childhood
knew
That scarce the Sabbath's mastery could subdue.
Him too my lineage gives me leave to
claim, —
The good, grave man that bears the Psalmist's name.

And still in ceaseless round the seasons passed ;
 Spring piped her carol ; Autumn blew his blast ;
 Babes waxed to manhood ; manhood shrunk to age ;
 Life's worn-out players tottered off the stage ;
 The few are many ; boys have grown to men
 Since Putnam dragged the wolf from Pomfret's den ;
 Our new-old Woodstock is a thriving town ;
 Brave are her children ; faithful to the crown ;
 Her soldiers' steel the savage redskin knows ;
 Their blood has crimsoned his Canadian snows.
 And now once more along the quiet vale
 Rings the dread call that turns the mothers pale ;
 Full well they know the valorous heat that runs
 In every pulse-beat of their loyal sons ;
 Who would not bleed in good King George's cause
 When England's lion shows his teeth and claws ?
 With glittering firelocks on the village green
 In proud array a martial band is seen ;
 You know what names those ancient rosters hold, —
 Whose belts were buckled when the drum-beat rolled, —
 But mark their Captain ! tell us, who is he ?
 On his brown face that same old look I see !
 Yes ! from the homestead's still retreat he came,
 Whose peaceful owner bore the Psalmist's name ;

The same his own. Well, Israel's glorious king
 Who struck the harp could also whirl the sling, —
 Breathe in his song a penitential sigh
 And smite the sons of Amalek hip and thigh :
 These shared their task ; one deaconed out the psalm,
 One slashed the scalping hell-hounds of Montcalm ;
 The praying father's pious work is done,
 Now sword in hand steps forth the fighting son.
 On many a field he fought in wilds afar ;
 See on his swarthy cheek the bullet's scar !
 There hangs a murderous tomahawk ; beneath,
 Without its blade, a knife's embroidered sheath ;
 Save for the stroke his trusty weapon dealt
 His scalp had dangled at their owner's belt ;
 But not for him such fate ; he lived to see
 The bloodier strife that made our nation free,
 To serve with willing toil, with skilful hand,
 The war-worn saviors of the bleeding land.
 His wasting life to others' needs he gave, — Sought rest in home and found it in the grave.
 See where the stones life's brief memorials keep,
 The tablet telling where he "fell on sleep," —
 Watched by a winged cherub's rayless eye, —
 A scroll above that says we all must die, —

Those saddening lines beneath, the "Night-Thoughts" lent :

So stands the Soldier's, Surgeon's monument.

Ah ! at a glance my filial eye divines
 The scholar son in those remembered lines.

The Scholar Son. His hand my footsteps led.

No more the dim unreal past I tread.
 O thou whose breathing form was once so dear,

Whose cheering voice was music to my
 ear,

Art thou not with me as my feet pursue
 The village paths so well thy boyhood
 knew,

Along the tangled margin of the stream Whose murmurs blended with thine infant dream,

Or climb the hill, or thread the wooded vale,

Or seek the wave where gleams yon distant sail,

Or the old homestead's narrowed bounds explore,

Where sloped the roof that sheds the rains no more,

Where one last relic still remains to tell Here stood thy home, — the memory-haunted well,

Whose waters quench a deeper thirst than thine,

Changed at my lips to sacramental
 wine, —

Art thou not with me, as I fondly trace
 The scanty records of thine honored
 race,

Call up the forms that earlier years have known,

And spell the legend of each slanted
 stone ?

With thoughts of thee my loving verse began,

Not for the critic's curious eye to scan,
 Not for the many listeners, but the few

Whose fathers trod the paths my fathers
 knew ;

Still in my heart thy loved remembrance burns ;

Still to my lips thy cherished name returns ;

Could I but feel thy gracious presence near

Amid the groves that once to thee were
 dear !

Could but my trembling lips with mortal
 speech

Thy listening ear for one brief moment reach !

How vain the dream ! The pallid voy-ager's track

No sign betrays ; he sends no message
 back.

No word from thee since evening's shadow fell

On thy cold forehead with my long farewell, —

Now from the margin of the silent sea,
 Take my last offering ere I cross to thee !

FIRST VERSES.

PHILLIPS ACADEMY, ANDOVER, MASS., 1824 or 1825.

TRANSLATION FROM THE ÆNEID,—Book I.

THE god looked out upon the troubled deep Waked into tumult from its placid sleep ;
The flame of anger kindles in his eye
As the wild waves ascend the lowering sky ;
He lifts his head above their awful height
And to the distant fleet directs his sight,
Now borne aloft upon the billow's crest,
Struck by the bolt or by the winds oppressed,
And well he knew that Juno's vengeful ire
Frowned from those clouds and sparkled in that fire.
On rapid pinions as they whistled by
He calls swift Zephyrus and Eurus nigh :
Is this your glory in a noble line
To leave your confines and to ravage mine ?
Whom I — but let these troubled waves subside —
Another tempest and I 'll quell your pride !
Go — bear our message to your master's ear,
That wide as ocean I am despot here ;
Let him sit monarch in his barren caves,
I wield the trident and control the waves !

He said, and as the gathered vapors break
The swelling ocean seemed a peaceful lake ;
To lift their ships the graceful nymphs essayed
And the strong trident lent its powerful aid ;
The dangerous banks are sunk beneath the main,
And the light chariot skims the unruffled plain.
As when sedition fires the public mind,
And maddening fury leads the rabble blind,
The blazing torch lights up the dread alarm,
Rage points the steel and fury nerves the arm,
Then, if some reverend sage appear in sight,
They stand — they gaze, and check their headlong flight, —
He turns the current of each wandering breast
And hushes every passion into rest, —
Thus by the power of his imperial arm
The boiling ocean trembled into calm ;
With flowing reins the father sped his way
And smiled serene upon rekindled day.

"OLD IRONSIDES."

This was the popular name by which the frigate "Constitution" was known. The poem was first printed in the Boston Daily Advertiser, at the time when it was proposed to break up the old ship as unfit for service.

"THE CAMBRIDGE CHURCHYARD."

"The Goblet and the Sun" (Vas-Sol), sculptured on a freestone slab supported by five pillars, are the only designation of the family tomb of the Vassalls.

"Hark! The sweet bells renew their welcome sound."

The churches referred to in the lines which follow are, —

1. "King's Chapel," the foundation of which was laid by Governor Shirley in 1749.

2. Brattle Street Church, consecrated in 1773. The completion of this edifice, the design of which included a spire, was prevented by the troubles of the Revolution, and its plain, square tower presents nothing more attractive than a massive simplicity. In the front of this tower is still seen, half imbedded in the brick-work, a cannon-ball, which was thrown from the American fortifications at Cambridge, during the bombardment of the city, then occupied by the British troops.

3. The "Old South," first occupied for public worship in 1730.

4. Park Street Church, built in 1809, the tall white steeple of which is the most conspicuous of all the Boston spires.

5. Christ Church, opened for public worship in 1723, and containing a set of eight bells, until of late years the only chime in Boston.

AGNES.

The story of Sir Harry Frankland and Agnes Surraige is told in the ballad with a very strict adherence to the facts. These were obtained from information afforded me by the Rev. Mr. Webster of Hopkinton, in company with whom I visited the Frankland Mansion in that town, then standing; from a very interesting Memoir, by the Rev. Elias Nason of Medford, not yet published; and from the manuscript diary of Sir Harry, or more properly Sir Charles Henry Frankland, now in the library of the Massachusetts Historical Society.

At the time of the visit referred to, old

Julia was living, and on our return we called at the house where she resided.¹ Her account is little more than paraphrased in the poem. If the incidents are treated with a certain liberality at the close of the fifth part, the essential fact that Agnes rescued Sir Harry from the ruins after the earthquake, and their subsequent marriage as related, may be accepted as literal truth. So with regard to most of the trifling details which are given; they are taken from the record.

It is to be hoped that the Rev. Mr. Nason's Memoir will be published, that this extraordinary romance of our sober New England life may become familiar to that class of readers who prefer a rigorous statement to an embellished narrative. It will be found to contain many historical facts and allusions which add much to its romantic interest.

It is greatly to be regretted that the Frankland Mansion no longer exists. It was accidentally burned on the 23d of January, 1858, a year or two after the first sketch of this ballad was written. A visit to it was like stepping out of the century into the years before the Revolution. A new house, similar in plan and arrangements to the old one, has been built upon its site, and the terraces, the clump of box, and the lilacs, doubtless remain to bear witness to the truth of this story.

Since the above note was written the Rev. Mr. Nason's interesting Memoir of Sir Harry Frankland has been published.

GRANDMOTHER'S STORY OF BUNKER-HILL BATTLE.

"They're as safe as Dan'l Malcolm."

The following epitaph is still to be read on a tall gravestone standing as yet undisturbed among the transplanted monuments of the dead in Copp's Hill Burial-ground, one of the three city cemeteries which have been desecrated and ruined within my own remembrance:—

"Here lies buried in a Stone Grave 10 feet deep,
Capt DANIEL MALCOLM Mercht
Who departed this Life
October 23d, 1769,
Aged 44 years,
a true son of Liberty,
a Friend to the Publick, an Enemy to oppression, and one of the foremost in opposing the Revenue Acts on America."
